True Bills Charge Racketeering.

Thomas E. Maloy, czar of the motion picture operators' union, and six of his associates last night were reported named in a true bill voted by the grand jury charging conspiracy.

Thomas Maloy, who was shown by union records to be receiving $1,000 a week in salary and expenses in his position as business manager of the organization, those named are:

Joseph Maloy, brother of Thomas, who holds the city hall post of examiner of motion picture operators. He is named alone in a second true bill, it was reported, charging him with malfeasance in office.

Ralph O'Hara, Maloy's chief lieutenant. He draws $150 a week as organizer for the operators' union, is business agent of the theater janitors' union, and serves also as Maloy's bodyguard.

Thomas J. Reynolds, president of the operators' union. He receives a salary of $5,000 a year from the union and has received an additional payment of $5,000 annually from an electrical company manufacturing sound equipment for theaters, union records show.

Louis B. Miller, better known as Barney Miller, president of the Exhibitors' association, an organization of the larger motion picture theaters of Chicago. Miller is a former business agent of the operators' union.

Frank J. Clifford, business agent of the operators' union, at a salary of $100 a week and expenses.

Bennett C. Quinn, steward of the union, whose duty it is to collect dues from members. Union books showed no payment of salary to him, but he was carried regularly on the pay rolls of two or three theaters as an operator, and in addition received a payment of $150.50 every time a theater installed sound equipment.

Report Conspiracy Charges.

Charles E. Lounsbury and Charles Bellows, the assistant state's attorneys in charge of the investigation of the union, refused to give out any information regarding the charges against its leaders. From other sources, however, it was reported that the true bills charge conspiracy on five counts.

The first count, it is reported, charges conspiracy to obtain money under false pretenses; the second charges conspiracy to do illegal acts, injurious to public trade; the third charges conspiracy to commit a felony, to wit, an assault with intent to kill upon Nils Kueger, owner of a theater at Hinsdale, and conspiracy to extort by threats; the fourth count, dealing with the relations between Joseph Maloy and the union heads, charges conspiracy to violate the city ordinance governing the licenses of motion picture operators; the fifth charges conspiracy to commit illegal acts injurious to the property of another.

Accused as Go-Between.

The portion of the third count dealing with extortion by threat refers, it was reported, to the alleged payment of money to union officials for settlement of strikes. Miller, in his post as head of the Exhibitors' association, was the go-between in these negotiations, it is charged. The proceedings are reported to have evidence that through him at least $65,000 was turned on to union officials for settlement of labor disputes.

Conviction on any one of the five counts makes the defendants liable to a penitentiary sentence of one to ten years. The true bills will be returned today as indictments, it was reported, and bonds probably will be fixed at $10,000.

Union Closed for 10 Years.

The books of the union have been closed to membership for more than 10 years, according to the testimony given by Maloy in a previous appearance before the grand jury.

Since no new members are taken in, the investigation disclosed, a system of temporary permits to supply the demand for more operators was devised after the sound apparatus was installed in the theaters.

Thomas Maloy, in his capacity as a city employe, had charge of issuing the temporary permits. The operators working under such permits were required to pay into the union 10 per cent of their weekly earnings. The minimum salary of an operator is $75

Mr. Gaw Tells Why He Is the City's Greeter

"Just why" said the city editor, "just why does a fellow want to be a city greeter?

"What does he get out of leaving his own business flat, chasing rapidly from one railroad station to another, putting on the glad hand for folks he never heard of before? Especially when the thermometer's at 97."

The reporter found George Gaw, Chicago's nonsalaried, official greeter, en route from the Navy Pier to the Municipal airport. Perspiration was streaming down Mr. Gaw's face. But he was smiling.

"Glad to See You."

"Hello, glad to see you. Always glad to see a member of the press. Willing to do anything for reporters. Belonged to the Press club. Sorry never got there. What can I do for you now?"

"You can tell me, if you will," said the reporter, "why in the world the president of a successful business wants to be running around greeting visitors to Chicago. I know New York has had one in the famous Grover Whalen."

Tells Why He Does It.

And this is Mr. Gaw's explanation of the motive or complex, call it what you will, that is giving Chicago its first official greeter. Mr. Gaw talking:

"I blew into Chicago a ham actor. Didn't have a dime. Got a job as a bookkeeper in an envelope concern. Worked up until I became a salesman. Always liked people. Liked to talk to folks and wanted them to like me. Maybe you could call that my religion—liking people.

"Sometimes I say to myself: 'George, you've only got one chance to square yourself when you get to heaven. That's to get the Lord to give you 30 minutes' time. Tell him of all the folks you've met below and how you liked them and tried to be kind to 'em and make them like you. That'll be your only talking point, but somehow I think the Lord will be impressed with that story.'

Started Making Envelopes.

"Well, anyhow, I finally got together a little money and went to making envelopes for myself. John Eastman of the old Journal helped me get started. Gave me four months' rent for nothing. [Another reason I like newspapers.]

"At first I used to push a handcart delivering envelopes. Knew most of the whitewings in the loop. They knew me, too. Always spoke to them. There's one thing about me, I haven't got a snobbish drop of blood in my veins. I learned a long time ago that the bigger a fellow gets the kinder he is to little fellows.

"Why, as Chicago's greeter, I'd like to meet every poor man who comes to Chicago and say: 'Hello, friend! Chicago's a good place to visit or to live. How can I help you become one of us?'

"Yes, sir, be they potentates or peasants, George Gaw will be glad to see Chicago's visitors.

Knocking Worried Him.

"But, to get back to the subject of how I became a greeter. I got my business going, made money, was able to afford most of the things I wanted. Then I traveled around. Everywhere I went I heard folks knocking Chicago as a city of gangsters and its streets as unsafe for visitors. By golly, it got under my skin.

"Chicago took me in when I was a poor fellow and gave me the right hand of fellowship and it made me tired to hear everybody saying Chicago wasn't a good place. When Tony Cermak was running for mayor I told him that if he got elected I'd like to repay Chicago for what it had done for me.

"Now, I think my talent lies in meeting people. I think I've got the right personality to win folks. So I said to Tony, 'If you're elected I'll devote my time to making people like Chicago.' He was elected. And here I am.

No Political Ambitions.

"Some folks say, 'George Gaw must be looking for something. Maybe he wants to be mayor.'

"Say, folks would have to send me to school before I'd learn what the mayor of Chicago has to do. I don't want anything—yes, I do—one thing. And that apple is going to be knocked into my basket on Friday.'

"When Mayor Cermak made me the official greeter I said: 'Mayor, there's just one favor I want to ask. No matter whether queens or duchesses come to Chicago, I want you to hold

GIRL BURIED TO 'CHIN IN A STREAM OF TAR; DUG OUT UNINJURED

Brookville, Mass., July 15.—[Special.]—Marion Beagler, 12 years old, today was standing beside a pile of barrels of tar when one exploded due to the heat.

The 600 pounds of tar, slowly moving, trapped her feet. It moved slowly down a grade, pulling its prisoner to her hands and knees and binding here more tightly.

She screamed for rescuers but when they arrived she was engulfed until only her head was free. Some held her head from the fluid for two hours while others were digging her free.

Physicians cut the clothing from her body. Tonight she is resting, unharmed except for shock and fright.

Lace Curtain Solves Image of Mystery

The source of the luminous image cast on a blank brick wall at 1105 South Ashland avenue, which thousands of persons visited, many of them believing they were witnessing a miracle, was discovered last night in the window of a nearby flat occupied by a gangster.

Many thousands of the curious were gazing in awe at the image on the wall at 11:30 o'clock last night when some one in a second story flat across Elburn avenue at 1023 South Ashland avenue chanced to raise a bedroom curtain. Immediately the lower portion of the image was obliterated.

It's Sam Genna's Flat.

Newspaper men, who had been scratching the wall with pen knives on the theory the image was formed by phosphorescent paint, observed the raising of the curtain. There was a rush for the apartment across the street.

The tenant proved to be Sam Genna, one of the two surviving Genna brothers who formerly dominated the alky cooking industry in Little Italy. Mr. Genna received the investigators without cordiality.

"Miracle?" he grunted. "I don't know nothing. Get out!"

Meantime the police decided to make the investigation official. Lieut. Joseph Pieroth of the Maxwell district demanded entrance to the Genna flat.

Lieutenant Enters Flat.

"I got visitors," Genna remonstrated, but the lieutenant flashed his star, pushed the gangster aside and strode to the bedroom.

The reporters rushed back to watch the image. The lieutenant raised the curtain a little higher. Another section of the image disappeared. He raised it to the top and the image vanished altogether. He pulled it down and the image reappeared.

Application of the elementary principle of physics solved the problem. It became evident that the rays of a nearby street lamp, shining on the Genna bedroom window, were reflected to the wall, the curtain of lace distorting the light into an image.

The Crowd Melts Away.

With the mystery solved, the crowd began melting away. Previously there had been so much trampling of lawns and overloading of roofs that Deputy Police Commissioner James B. Scanlan had ordered 400 policemen to the scene.

Ice cream and hot dog venders plied a rushing trade. Pickpockets also were busy, numerous complaints being received at police headquarters.

SHOT TO DEATH IN FOREST PARK DRINK PARLOR

See War to Control Teamsters.

Two men believed to be agents of the teamsters' union were shot to death in the saloon of George Connors, 100 Circle avenue, Forest Park, shortly before midnight last night, and police of the suburb believe the double killing is the start of a new war for control of the union in the western part of Chicago and west suburbs. One of the slain men was L. S. Murphy, 1131 South Mozart street, with the aliases of Harry Davis, Edward Myers, and several other aliases and a long record for larceny and burglary. The other man was unidentified.

The killings occurred as a dozen men stood at the bar. Two strangers entered, and with the curt command, "stick 'em up," began shooting. At the first volley Murphy and the unidentified man fell mortally wounded. Murphy died at the West Suburban hospital and the other man at the Oak Park hospital.

Linked to Teamsters' Union.

For a time Chief Fred Licht of the Forest Park police worked on the theory that the murders were committed during a bona fide holdup. However, he soon found three automobiles parked near Connors' place and discovered that their licenses all were issued to men with the address of 12 North 5th avenue, Maywood, headquarters of Timothy Lynch, czar of the teamsters' union in the towns west of Chicago. Cards in Murphy's pocket indicated he was a business agent for Lynch and it was believed the other man was an agent for the union.

Edward McFadden, another business agent for the teamsters' union, was in the saloon at the time of the shooting, but was in a rear room and escaped the bullets. He took Murphy to the hospital and was taken into custody a short time later.

Refuses to Tell Name.

The man taken to the Oak Park hospital was thrown upon the steps of the hospital by two men who took him there and then fled. He was conscious for some time, but refused to give his name or any other information about himself and refused to discuss the shooting.

Murphy and his wife had been in the café part of the saloon for an hour before his assassins appeared. Twice he had walked to the front of the place before he was shot, according to Edward Graduski, 1011 South Circle avenue, Forest Park, the bartender, who gave the only eye witness story of the tragedy.

"Several of us were in front," he said, "when the door opened. Two strangers entered, guns drawn. They called out to stick up our hands, and started firing right away. Then they escaped."

Head of Paint Company Ends Life by Shooting

Harold W. Scott, 305 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, committed suicide early this morning by shooting himself in his home. The shot was heard by Mrs. Scott, who found her husband dead. He was head of the Bradley-Hurtz company, paint manufacturers, at 2632 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

2 Hungarian Ocean Flyers Near Ireland

BULLETIN.

STEAMSHIP MAYA, July 15.—(AP)—Radio signals of the Hungarian flyers were heard at 2:15 a. m. Chicago time, when the Maya was 150 miles south of Fastnet, Ireland.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, July 16 (Thursday).—(AP)—The Daily Mail received a wireless message from the master of the steamer Kennebec this morning, saying the Hungarian flyers had given their position at 8:37 p. m. (Chicago time) Wednesday as 700 miles west of Fastnet, southwest Ireland, and stated all was well.

BULLETIN.

S. S. STAVANGERFJORD, AT SEA (By Radio), July 15.—(AP)—The airplane Justice to Hungary, which took off from Harbor Grace, N. F., today on a projected trans-Atlantic flight to Hungary, reported at 6 p. m. (Chicago time) that it was proceeding eastward in a true course with the help of its radio direction finder. "Our position is latitude 54.08 north, longitude 37:50 west," the report said. In an earlier message, the plane radioed "all well. Had bad weather, but now clear sky."

(The position given by the S. S. Stavangerfjord at the time she reported the progress of the airplane Justice to Hungary was directly along the route of most of the well known eastward trans-Atlantic flights and indicated the plane had traversed somewhat more than one-third of the distance from Harbor Grace to the British Isles.)

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., July 15.—The Hungarian flyers, George Endres and Alexander Magyar, were speeding over the Atlantic ocean tonight on their proposed nonstop flight from Harbor Grace to Budapest, Hungary. They took off here at 11:24 a. m. [Chicago time].

The Justice to Hungary got away to a good start, considering the heavy load of gasoline it carried. Some difficulty had been encountered in starting the motor, and it was warmed up for 40 minutes before the mechanics declared it in satisfactory condition and the flyers took off.

Weather reports furnished the flyers just before the start by Dr. James H. Kimball, New York weather bureau meteorologist, said they would encounter favorable winds over most of their route. They were warned, however, that heavy clouds formed a dangerously low ceiling, which might impede their progress.

Flyers Confident of Success.

"If everything goes well after we have traveled 2,000 miles, we believe we can safely say we will complete the trip," Endres said as he entered the plane.

The Hungarians expect to reach Ireland, the first land they will pass on their route, about dawn Thursday morning.

While the motor was being warmed up an unidentified woman suddenly dashed out of the crowd and presented rosary beads to each of the men. They slowed the roaring motor as she wished them good luck.

The object of the flight, Endres and Magyar had previously announced, is to call the attention of the world to what they termed wrongs done Hungary by other nations following the world war. For that reason they named the big monoplane "Justice to Hungary."

Wire "All Is Well."

VIENNA, July 16.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—Hungarian aviation authorities received a message at 6 p. m. [Chicago time] from the airplane "Justice to Hungary," now over the Atlantic on a flight from Harbor Grace, N. F., to Hungary, saying, "All is well, going fine."

DEATH IN CHAIR GIVEN SLAYER OF CAFE OWNER

Howard Bonham, 29 years old, called by police the "phantom robber," was found guilty of murder early this morning by a jury before Judge Joseph Burke of the Criminal court. His punishment was fixed at death in the electric chair. The verdict was returned at 1:30 o'clock.

The condemned man was convicted of the slaying of Paul Tulupan, proprietor of a restaurant at 1234 North Dearborn street, on the night of Dec. 13, 1930. Tulupan and six patrons were in the café when a bandit appeared. Tulupan was too slow in raising his hands and was killed.

Conviction of Bonham marked another speedy trial in the criminal courts. The jury was selected yesterday and evidence heard during the afternoon and night. Shortly before midnight the case was submitted to the jury after arguments by Assistant State's Attorneys Abe Marowitz and Albert Woll and Defense Attorney Emory Smith. Motion for a new trial will be heard Aug. 13.

GERMAN BANKS TO OPEN TODAY; BATTLE RIOTERS

BULLETIN.

PARIS, July 16.—(AP)—Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius of Germany will be invited to come to Paris this week-end for a conference with French statesmen instead of participating in an anglo-American parley in Berlin, it was decided today.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, July 16.—(AP)—The German cabinet convened at noon today and it was understood that the departure of Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius for Paris was the subject of discussion.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 15.—Heroic remedies in a desperate attempt to save Germany from another plunge into bankruptcy were announced by the cabinet tonight after day long deliberations.

Simultaneously with the cabinet's announcement came reports of communist riots in various parts of the country. Police clubs smashed an attempt by Dortmund communists to hold an unemployment protest meeting. One red was seriously injured and 38 arrested. One person was killed in a riot at Ischlwerte, near Dortmund, while at Gelsenkirchen, in the Ruhr, 500 reds battled police from house tops. In Dresden, Munich, Breslau, Altona, Hamburg, Leipzig, and Karlsruhe police also were forced to use firearms to put down riots. In Berlin police broke up several demonstrations.

Banks Reopen Today.

The cabinet's announcement was that the banks which were closed by the government two days ago, will reopen tomorrow as scheduled, but only partially. Ordinary depositors cannot withdraw savings indiscriminately nor can the clientele take out funds without providing sufficient reasons.

Partial payments are permissible when investigation proves that the depositor actually needs cash to discharge vital obligations, but in no case can withdrawals exceed a certain proportion of the balance on hand. The percentage has not yet been announced.

First, the decree asserts that banking operations will begin solely to relieve the situation regarding the wage earners and that it is aimed to ensure that employers will be able to pay salaries. Withdrawals for doles, pensions, and tax obligations will also receive preference at the cashier's windows.

Confiscates Foreign Currency.

Savings accounts will remain closed, Finance Minister Dietrich explaining to the nation by radio that the very nature of these deposits indicate that they are for emergencies and not for current expenditures.

Second, the decree establishes centralized control of all foreign currencies, practically amounting to confiscation of all valuta and exchange values by the Reichsbank, which will gather up these funds from all banks all over the country.

The Reichsbank will decree the daily exchange rate for dollars, sterling, francs, lira, and florins, and the Berlin quotations will apply all over the country. The rates will be arbitrary and, regardless of quotations the mark may command on foreign money markets, thereby making the entire exchange situation artificial.

Bans Stock Quotations.

Third, the decree provides that no unofficial stock, bond, or metal quotations may be published in newspapers of elsewhere because of the danger of causing unrest. Thus Germany must wait until the domestic bourses reopen—which will not be before the end of the month, according to the latest indications—before knowing the fluctuations of their holdings.

Fourth, the decree tersely states that the Reichsbank is negotiating with the treasury and the government to make monetary dealings easier. This phase concerns an increase of the currency in circulation to meet the huge amount of paper which has been withdrawn and frozen in the pocketbooks of people who prefer to carry their savings with them rather than face another closure of banks and go without funds.

nouncement, but reports insist that an additional billion marks must be issued to enable business and fiduciary transactions to go on.

The Reichsbank in a statement tonight confirmed the decision to increase paper circulation. The statement announced that the legal gold coverage for paper money had been decreased under the present 40 per cent. It reminded the public that the bank's constitution provides for even a legal 0 per cent coverage. Financial circles believe the coverage will be dropped to 0 per cent.

The Reichsbank's weekly balance statement is due for publication tomorrow, and advance indications are that the total of gold bullion and foreign exchange will have dropped considerably below last week's figures, which revealed $350,000,000 worth of the precious metal and $87,500,000 worth of foreign exchange on hand.

Discount Rate Is Boosted.

The Reichsbank also announced that the discount rate had been raised from 7 to 10 per cent, and that the interest on collateral loans had been advanced from 10 to 15 per cent.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, who is mentioned for a specially created cabinet post of "director of currency," today became the object of bitter opposition by the radicals.

Much of the discussion of the cabinet today centered along lines of Germany seeking to work out her own salvation without resorting to foreign financial aid, in view of France's attempt to impose political considerations as the price of participating in international fiscal help.

Reveal Inroads on Banks.

An indication of the tremendous inroads made in bank deposits is seen in the admission tonight that Berlin banks alone paid out $1,200,000 from savings accounts Monday.

Unemployment increased in Berlin last week and there are now 245,000 persons in the capital, and more than 2,300,000 throughout the nation, on the dole.

The crisis is paralyzing tax payments, and revenue officials today appealed to the population over the radio urging them to come forward during the emergency and discharge their obligations. The government also issued a radio appeal to the people to keep their nerve, to use common sense and to stand behind the country's leaders in their task of restoring financial and industrial equilibrium.

Finance Minister Dietrich, who made the radio appeal, also declared that "it is not the government but private industry which is pressed for cash." The Hoover plan, together with Chancellor Bruening's drastic economy program, has put the German exchequer on its feet, he said, and even enabled the government to begin repaying some of its floating debt. Already, he said, several hundred millions have been returned to industry.

Throughout the rural districts and in the poorer quarters of large cities today the people made runs on grocery stores, seeking to buy all sorts of unperishable foodstuffs to hoard.

In many cases the shop keepers refused to sell more than the usual allowance of canned goods and foodstuffs, fearing a depreciation in money before they can replenish their supplies.

"Hyenas" Face Prison.

As a result of the government taking control of foreign currencies, the bootlegging of foreign money is now punishable here almost as severely as in Russia. Black bourse "hyenas," who buy dollars, sterling and other outside currency at bargain rates, better than the official gold standard the Reichsbank dictates, are subject to imprisonment and fines aggregating ten times the amount of money involved in the transaction.

'BIG SIX' MEET IN PARIS TODAY TO TALK OVER CRISIS

U. S. and Britain Seek to Ease French Demands.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 15.—What to do about Germany—whether to cut the rope or try to pull her back to her feet—will be argued out tomorrow morning by responsible agents of the three big solvent powers—France, Great Britain, and America.

Secretary of State Stimson, President Hoover's emissary on disarmament, who arrived here this afternoon from Rome, found his colleagues so preoccupied with the present financial crisis and its political consequences that discussion of disarmament is out of the question. He held preliminary conferences this afternoon with Foreign Minister Briand and later with Foreign Secretary Henderson of Great Britain, who arrived earlier today. Mr. Henderson previously had held a conference with M. Briand. During his visit with M. Briand, Mr. Stimson sprung a surprise by conducting the conversation in fluent French. Briand was greatly pleased.

Seeks Uniform Attitude.

Mr. Stimson learned that before disarmament can be brought up, the plight of Germany must be fully gone into. So tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock Mr. Stimson, American Ambassador Edge, Briand, Henderson, Premier Laval, and Finance Minister Flandin will meet at the ministry of interior to try to agree on a uniform attitude towards Germany.

American spokesmen, while admitting the crucial importance of this meeting, deny that any commitments can or will be taken in the name of the United States.

The American stand, as far as can be gathered from the bearing of Mr. Stimson, is a neutral one. America's intention is to learn all sides of the affair and then decide who is nearest right.

In this connection, there seems to have been a slight shift in the American attitude, which a few days ago was definitely hostile to France. While the Americans still show little sympathy for what looks like obstructionist French tactics, there are now signs of certain impatience with Germany.

No Brass Bands for Stimson.

Mr. Stimson learned a lot of things in Paris today. In the first place it is possible that he was mildly surprised at the failure of the French government, which had accepted his statement that he was just a tourist, to call out brass bands on his behalf when he arrived from Rome. There was no one at the station to say it with roses, as the Italians did. All he got in the way of a glad hand was supplied by a minor French department head, the embassy staff, headed by Ambassador and Mrs. Edge, and a crowd of inquisitive newspaper men.

Mr. Stimson has something up his sleeve to give his European colleagues a big surprise tomorrow. It is a piece of diplomacy "a l'Americaine"—a style of diplomacy popularized by Myron T. Herrick and Mr. Kellogg.

Plans to Work on French.

It is customary European procedure to entertain visiting American diplomats with stately banquets and fancy dress parties, with a select number of transplanted Americans, all wearing red ribbons in their button holes, who explain the European viewpoint to the newcomers. Mr. Stimson is putting the shoe on the other foot. He is giving a lunch to his French hosts at the embassy and inviting a squad of influential Paris Americans to work on the French.

The guest list is unique. The French include Premier Laval, Minister of Marine Dumont, Gen. Gouraud, and the naval expert, Rene Massigli. The Americans include Gen. Pershing, Edward Tuck, Ridgley Carter, associated with the J. P. Morgan company, and William N. Taylor, president of the American chamber of commerce here.

Causes of Germany's Financial Crash Are Traced Since End of World War

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 15. — Psychology stands revealed as the most important factor contributing to Germany's present crisis, following a careful investigation by impartial and neutral observers, who studied the situation as it developed and became aggravated.

ADOLF HITLER.

Blaming metaphysical causes for material effects is always unsatisfactory, but the deeper one investigates Germany's existing difficulties, the more apparent it becomes that abstract rather than concrete influences played a preponderating rôle leading up to the crash.

It is true, however, that three material reasons served to accentuate and precipitate the reich's plunge into financial and economic chaos.

Three Reasons Outlined.

The first was the repercussion of the Wall street debacle in the autumn of 1929, just as Germany's industrial reorganization and modernization had been completed and when German manufacturers were prepared to launch a world trade campaign to keep their plants occupied.

The second was the unexpected landslide in favor of Fascism under the banners of Adolph Hitler's Nazi party last September, when the National Socialists swept the country and became overnight the most powerful single political unit in the fatherland.

The third was the crash of the Credit Anstalt bank of Vienna six weeks ago, involving more than 200,000,000 schillings [$28,260,000] directly and a huge amount of marks indirectly. The marks were lost by German concerns.

Focuses Eyes of World.

The Credit Anstalt failure, coming on the eve of President Hoover's proposal for a one year's war debt and reparations moratorium to save staggering Germany, focused the eyes of the world on the reich's precarious position and concentrated the thoughts of the German people on the instability of their fiscal situation and the shaky condition of their banking institutions.

Unbiased observers here insist that Germany's banking laws must be revised and more efficient safeguards be placed in the hands of trustees and directors to protect the depositors' funds before domestic fiscal affairs can enjoy the stability and guarantees they do in other countries.

The reorganization of the nation from a monarchy to a republic after the armistice, with simultaneous shouldering of tremendous economic and moral difficulties entailed by the world war, offered the first serious obstacle for the new administration, and Germany slipped automatically into similar erroneous tactics as France did, although for diametrically opposite reasons.

Successive French governments, following the hostilities, blinded themselves, parliament and the public into the delusion that Germany could be made to pay the entire costs of the war, and through reckless waste and spending and failure to apply proper taxation and collect such revenues as could be legally levied, brought about a financial malady which drove the franc to two cents in 1926 and necessitated final stabilization at four cents —one-fifth of the pre-war gold value.

Successive German cabinets since the war have attempted to soothe themselves, the reichstag and the public with assurances that Germany could not, and therefore would not have to pay the gigantic sums the allies considered as rightful reparations.

Since 1919 the leitmotif of every succeeding German government has been the policy of impressing the outside world with its inability to discharge the indemnity to the victors, and with every reduction in the originally fantastic reparations figures the outcry against indebtedness has become louder and more determined.

Mark Becomes Worthless.

With the mark slowly but continually depreciating, and backed by unanimous public opinion, Germany pleaded inability to meet any reparations payments during the first few years after the armistice, while politicians and bankers and industrialists became hopelessly involved in a desperate and prodigate struggle to reorganize the country after four and a half years of hostilities.

The result was the Ruhr occupation of 1923 and the plummet like drop of the mark to worthlessness, creating the 1923 crisis, when the Dawes plan was negotiated and Germany received a $200,000,000 loan to guarantee new currency and get back on her feet.

With her internal debt practically obliterated through the collapse of the mark and the foreign debt chiefly represented by the nebulous Dawes plan accord, fixing two billion 500 million marks annually [$725,000,000] for an indeterminate number of years as a maximum payment, Germany began to borrow abroad feverishly.

Not only the government but cities and private enterprises floated loans, to a large extent in the United States, where American capital was seeking an outlet in foreign markets and Wall street bankers were eager to accept the attractive terms the Germans were offering.

An Orgy of Spending.

In the five or six ensuing years until the market crash at the end of 1929, Germany engaged in an orgy of spending and, under Socialist influences, parliament promulgated welfare legislation to aid unemployment and other humanitarian ideals, involving expenditure of untold millions of marks, far beyond the point which national resources could justify.

Colossal sums were expended in reorganizing industrial plants, railways and civic housing reforms, with insufficient taxation from certain critical items, such as the beer tax. This aroused an outburst from Seymour Parker Gilbert, American agent general for reparations.

Gilbert Predicts Results.

In several reports during the last year of his tenure of office, before the Young plan's international bank at Basel took over the handling of the reparations payments, Mr. Gilbert accurately forecast the inevitable result of the continuation of the lavish spending policy of Germany and pointedly summoned the government to accept responsibilities to increase taxation, curtail waste and reckless expenditures and seek to avert the impending crash.

Mr. Gilbert's warning fell on deaf ears—muffled and drowned out by the keystone policy that reparations must be cancelled and Germany "liberated from tribute."

Two years ago the Dawes' plan was succeeded by the Young plan, which definitely fixed the total of reparations annuities, reduced the total present value of the indemnity to about ten million five hundred thousand and removed all foreign control and restraint from the Berlin government.

Stresemann Death a Blow.

Although this fixation of the reparations total was insignificant, compared to the one hundred billion originally contemplated during the Paris peace conference of 1919, and much less than Germany's offer of twelve billion five hundred million as global indemnities to the allies during those negotiations, the German policy for the elimination of the indemnity never relaxed.

The death of Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann in October, 1929, during the organization of the international bank at Baden-Baden, seriously jeopardized the German campaign for further ameliorations, as no Teuton statesman, before or since, enjoyed the confidence of the allies, particularly the French, as the one-time beer salesman, who arose to obtain such remarkable easements for the Fatherland through skillful application of the "policy of conciliation."

Won Many Victories.

Stresemann's successors lacked the rare touch of sympathy, grace and charm which endeared him to Aristide Briand of France and won him endless diplomatic victories in petty league of nations bickerings at Geneva.

Two years ago Germany obtained complete liberation of the Rhineland when the last contingent of French troops evacuated Wiesbaden and Mayence, nearly six years before the implacable terms of the treaty of Versailles required.

Two months later, despite this concession from France, Adolf Hitler's party, whose double barreled slogan is "Cancel reparations and tear up the war treaties," swamped the country with ballots, and the consequent prestige of his group of newly elected representatives in the reichstag seriously interfered with the government's efforts to take the middle path and carry on the fight for reparations abandonment through the devious and long drawn out channels charted by Stresemann.

Hitler's Victory a Shock.

The Hitlerites' victory gave the outside world its second political shock since the armistice. The first was the election of President von Hindenburg to succeed Friedrich Ebert. While the aged marshal at that time was backed by a large proportion of women and it seemed inconceivable at a time when the world was outlawing war.

But Hitler's success was due more to economic reasons—through his demagogic pledges to cancel "tribute payments," thereby enabling him to promise reduction in taxation, and through his denunciation of the Versailles treaty, thus tacitly assuring readjustment of the frontiers, especially the eastern borders, the obliteration of the Polish corridor, and the return of upper Silesia and the colonies.

BRITAIN RUSHES PLANS TO BREAK FINANCIAL CRISIS

Issues Midnight Call for Conference of Ministers.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 16.—[Thursday.]—The British government moved hurriedly today in an effort to break the European financial crisis before it causes a world disaster. A communique, which was rushed out of the foreign office after midnight, summoned a council of ministers of the big European powers, which had been indefinitely scheduled to follow Friday's meeting of moratorium experts, to meet Monday. It was announced that the ministers will act in conjunction with the experts who are to iron out technicalities in connection with the Hoover moratorium.

The conference probably will be held at Chequers, the country home of Premier MacDonald, who, with Foreign Secretary Henderson, will fly back from Germany in time for the opening of the conference at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon.

May Invite German Leaders.

Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, and Premier Laval are expected to be at the meeting, as are Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy and Foreign Minister Hymans of Belgium. It is believed an invitation will be sent to Germany, and that Foreign Minister Curtius and Chancellor Bruening will come to England, unless the internal situation in Germany should become too desperate to allow their absence at the time.

Just what unexpected developments during the day caused the speedy midnight diplomacy is not known. It is known, however, that Prime Minister MacDonald this afternoon had a long and earnest telephone conversation with Foreign Minister Henderson, who was located on sight seeing trip through the French Colonial exposition.

"The government has decided that it is now necessary to summon immediately the conference of ministers which was foreseen at the time of the invitation for the experts' committee," the communique said. "It is desired that a conference of ministers should meet in London at 6 p. m. on Monday. The experts' committee will, as arranged, arrive on Friday, and they will put themselves at the disposal of the ministers on Monday.

"Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson will go to Berlin as arranged on Friday, returning in time for the conference of ministers on Monday."

CHILE DECLARES MORATORIUM ON FOREIGN DEBTS

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 15.—(AP)—A partial financial moratorium was declared in Chile tonight. The moratorium, it was announced, will only be temporary.

The government issued a statement to the effect that interest and service charges on the foreign debt abroad would be temporarily suspended in view of the Chilean and international economic conditions.

Money covering interest for July will be deposited in local banks instead in order to help the gold exchange situation. The arrangement will be effective until August, when a division as to the future will be made.

MERCURY RISES TO 97°; HEAT TO REMAIN TODAY

New Records Are Set in Plains States.

Chicago and other sections of the central west are scheduled for another sweltering day today, according to the prediction last night of Forecaster W. P. Day. The temperature in the city may attain a maximum of 97 or 98 degrees.

Should the mercury reach the predicted mark, it would equal that of yesterday, when, at 5 p. m., it registered 97 degrees at the University of Chicago and 98 at the federal building. The university readings are official, and yesterday's mark established a 24 year record for the day.

In the evening the temperature dropped to 87 degrees at 8 p. m.

No Immediate Relief.

No immediate relief from the present heat wave was in sight last night, but Mr. Day said he considered it improbable that the spell will be as protracted as that of two weeks ago when the city, as well as most of the country, sizzled for nearly ten days.

"There is no cool weather in sight," said the forecaster last night. "The lake is Chicago's only chance, but even the chance of immediate help from lake breezes is slim now. The rain last evening helped reduce the temperature, but the rain was local, and touched only one section of the city, the downtown district and the areas near it."

The record high temperature for Chicago is 103 degrees, set on July 21, 1901. The peak heat for the summer usually comes about July 20. Thus far, Mr. Day said, the month has been two degrees above normal.

New Heat Records Set.

Dispatches from cities in the northern plains states reported new heat records set yesterday. Aberdeen, S. D., topped the list with a maximum of 114, while all records were broken at Pierre, S. D., with a temperature of 111 degrees.

A new record was set at St. Cloud, Minn., with 102.5 degrees; Ortonville, Minn., had a maximum of 105; Fergus Falls, 104.5; and Minneapolis, 102. At Fargo, N. D., the mercury rose to 101.

Continued warm weather is predicted throughout these states and others in the middle west today, while tomorrow may bring scattered showers in the upper Great Lakes region, according to the forecast.

2 ADMIT ROBBERY FOR WHICH YOUTH IS NOW IN PRISON

On March 28, Eugene Piantkowski, 19 years old, of 5711 South Laflin street, was convicted of robbery by a jury, and sentenced by Judge Philip Finnegan to Pontiac reformatory for from one year to life. He is now in the reformatory.

On Tuesday night the last of a gang of ten bandits was rounded up by Capt. Joseph Goldberg of the Albany Park police. Two of the men, it became known last night, confessed the crime for which Piantkowski is now a prisoner. They are Nick Berndniek, 3051 Belmont avenue, and Joseph Koopsheck, 2931 Wisner avenue.

Piantkowski and Bruno Kasper, 23 years old, 4815 South Paulina street, were tried before Judge Finnegan for the robbery on March 17, of Leon Bonnallet, 459 East 71st street, a delicatessen owner, and William J. Niemeyer, 700 Eberhart avenue, and Mendall Hall, patrons. Niemeyer lost $20 and his wallet bearing a Masonic emblem. Kasper and Piantkowski offered alibis, but only Kasper had witnesses. Piantkowski was found guilty.

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—Washington's view of the European financial situation took on a more optimistic tone today, when it was announced that the President had been informed that the principles of his proposal for a debt moratorium were in operation, except for a small number of technical difficulties affecting countries signatory to the Young plan.

DR. HJALMAR SCHACHT.

The White House was advised that no government had made a demand on Germany for the payment of the monthly amounts due today. Germany, so official word from Europe explained, had paid into the Bank of International Settlements the 41 million reichsmarks constituting the French share of the unconditional reparations payments, but this amount, it was said, would immediately be loaned back to the reich.

Shuns European Conference.

The administration was described today as being in favor of a conference among the heads of the European states. But, it was added, the United States would hold itself strictly aloof from such a conference and its possible political results, extending no more than sympathetic good wishes.

It was stated on good authority that though Secretary of State Stimson might talk plans for disarmament, he would be particular to keep away from any involvement in the European political tangle and would in no case offer his good influences in attempting to straighten out difficulties which the American administration regards strictly as Europe's to solve.

Observers in Washington were watching with interest to see whether Hjalmar Schacht, former head of the Reischbank, would be made financial director of Germany. Though regarded as one of the world's greatest central bankers and with the experience and force necessary to bring about financial order, it is being remarked that Dr. Schacht's appointment might make trouble with France, with whom he is not popular.

Experts Confer Tomorrow.

It is the opinion here that many critical questions will be held in abeyance by the various governments until they can be taken up by the commission of experts when it meets in London next Friday. Among these questions is the matter of the French demands for political guarantees on the part of Germany.

Acting Secretary of State Castle announced today that the state department had received official word from the government of Czecho-Slovakia accepting President Hoover's proposal of a debt holiday unconditionally.

Car Shades Drawn

A private car attached to the Santa Fe Chief and bearing, according to all reports, the film star, Constance Bennett, and Marquis Henri de la Falaise de la Coudray, ex-husband of Gloria Swanson, stopped in Chicago yesterday eastward bound. But the public was not permitted a glimpse of the couple.

The car, with blinds drawn closely and doors locked, was switched in the Santa Fe yards at 18th street and taken to the La Salle street station. There it remained throughout the morning until, attached to the advanced New York Century train, it pulled out shortly after noon.

A porter who relayed messages from reporters and photographers to the hidden movie royalty and party said Miss Bennett boarded the train at Los Angeles and the marquis got on at Pasadena. With Miss Bennett in addition to the marquis were her 2 year old son by her marriage to Philip Plante, a governess and a maid, it was said.

Picks Up Live Wire on Golf Course; Killed

Emil Kearns, 43 years old, attendant at the Briargate Golf club at Deerfield, was electrocuted yesterday when, while walking along the east border of the club with the assistant superintendent, Edward Koeberlin, he picked up a high tension wire which the wind had blown down.

SIX MEN DEAD AFTER DRINKING POISON ALCOHOL

Tamaqua, Pa., July 15.—(AP)—Six men were dead today and another critically ill from drinking an alcoholic preparation containing poison. Meanwhile state police were searching for an eighth man, believed to have been a member of the group.

Daniel Evans, 54, staggerd into police headquarters yesterday and said he was sick. Before he died, a short time later, he told police that some of his friends were ill at a camp on the outskirts of town. Officers found two men dead at the camp and another dead at a nearby gasoline station, where he had gone for aid. Later a motorist saw a man topple into a creek near the camp. He died soon after being taken to a hospital. The sixth man died at a hospital last night.

SEIZE RUNAWAY BOYS AS STOLEN CAR OVERTURNS

Three youths who ran away from their suburban homes last Saturday intending to hitch hike to Baltimore, yesterday ended their trip in jail at Robinson, Ill., about 250 miles south of Chicago. They are charged with stealing an automobile which overturned three miles from Robinson.

The prisoners identified themselves as Lowell Schrader, 16 years old, 598 Hill avenue, Glen Ellyn, son of a Chicago patent attorney and a student at Morgan Park Military academy; Gordon Bordwell, 17, of 844 Duane street, Glen Ellyn; and Robert Schafer, 17, of 306 Wooster avenue, Lombard. Schafer was injured in the automobile wreck.

POLICE COMBAT HOODLUMISM ON OAK ST. BEACH

Carry Nightsticks to Quell Disorders.

An outbreak among the thousands of bathers who swarmed to Oak street beach yesterday brought to light that the Lincoln park police are now carrying nightsticks to enable them to control hoodlums who have been causing disturbances at the beach, the racket extending through the whole night in torrid weather.

In yesterday's outbreak a crowd of some 50 bathers surrounded Policeman Edward Penny when he ordered a scantily clad bather off Lake Shore drive and back to the beach. The bather, Haltan Olafsen, 1641 North Maplewood avenue, resisted and the crowd gathered, pushing the policeman about.

Other Police Disperse Crowd.

Sergt. John Conlon called three other policemen and the crowd was dispersed. Olafsen was arrested and looked up at the East Chicago avenue police station on a charge of disorderly conduct. He will be arraigned today.

Inquiry revealed that several outbreaks of hoodlumism have occurred recently at the beach. On Tuesday night, the police reported, a beach guard was attacked by a gang of ruffians who objected when one of their number was ordered from the water after the closing hour. On another occasion last week police said ball bats were brought to play in a disturbance among bathers.

Many Complaints Received.

"Disturbances are the usual thing among the bathers at Oak street," Capt. James Samis of the Lincoln park police said last night. "Complaints are constantly coming in of hoodlumism, petty thievery, and vandalism. The younger element—hoodlums and loafers between the ages of 18 and 20—are at the bottom of most of the trouble. If we had 50 more policemen we could use them to good advantage during the summer season at the beach.

"For crowds numbering, in an entire day, as many as 100,000 people, however, the behavior of people at the beach is generally pretty good. We are determined to keep control of the hoodlum element. The park authorities furnish this amusement free to the people and they ought to appreciate it by decent behavior."

BANKERS BLAME FAILURES UPON RESERVE BOARD

Neglected to Use Power to Prevent Them.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—For the failures of member banks of the federal reserve system the federal reserve board and the federal reserve banks are not entirely blameless, according to the commission of the American Bankers' association which recently concluded a study of bank failures in this country.

MELVIN TRAYLOR.

"We believe," said the commission, "that the federal reserve banks should exercise more freely their rights to examine banks and use their discretionary power to refuse rediscount facilities to banks indulging in objectionable banking methods."

Could Have Averted Failures.

The finding of the commission supports the charges of other critics that had the federal reserve banks been more vigilant in the examination of member banks and in enforcing compliance with the standards of banking practice many, if not all, of the failures of member banks would have been averted and millions of dollars saved to depositors.

There is evidence that the reserve banks have failed to exercise their supervisory powers over member banks and that the federal reserve board has failed to exercise its power to compel the reserve banks to do their duty. The reserve board demonstrated its power to impose its will upon the reserve banks when it compelled the Chicago bank to lower its rediscount rate in 1927, although the officers of the bank deemed it an unwise move that would promote speculation which it did.

All member banks of the federal reserve system capitalize their membership in this semi-governmental institution. They emblazon their stationery and their bank windows with the legend: "Member of the Federal Reserve Bank." They profit from the implication that deposits in such a bank are as safe as deposits in the government treasury itself.

It is contended that such safety would attach to deposits in member banks were the federal reserve board to exert the power in protection of depositors that it brought to bear on the Chicago reserve bank in the rediscount rate reduction affair in 1927.

The outstanding instance of the laxity of the federal reserve authorities in this respect is that of the Bank of United States, a New York state bank and member of the federal reserve system, which was the largest bank that ever failed in this country. For several years, according to the testimony of J. Herbert Case, chairman of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, some of the practices of the Bank of United States were questioned by the federal reserve authorities who, however, failed to take action to enforce reform.

Bank failures are increasing. In the last fiscal year there were about 1,800, which was double the number of the year before. There have been nearly 7,000 suspensions in the last decade. There are now about 23,000 banks in the country.

In the calendar year of 1930 there were 1,345 failures involving deposits of $85 million dollars. Of these banks, 137 were members of the federal reserve system and 1,158 were nonmembers. Of the member banks, 101 were national and 26 were state banks.

Illinois Second on List.

In the number of suspended banks in 1930, Arkansas headed the list with 135 and Illinois came next with 126. There were 104 in Missouri, 93 in North Carolina, 90 in Indiana, 86 in Iowa, 60 in North Dakota, 54 in South Dakota, 44 in Nebraska, 43 in Kansas, 39 in Florida, and 34 each in Alabama and Texas.

The federal reserve board does not evince any concern over bank failures and measures to prevent them. On the other hand, John W. Pole, controller of the currency, who is charged with the enforcement of the national banking laws, has made numerous proposals of remedial action. He would have either the reserve board or the controller vested with authority to remove officers of a bank who persist in pursuing practices deemed likely to result in the insolvency of the institution.

"The public perhaps does not realize," says Controller Pole, "that short of applying legal remedies so drastic that they would precipitate a run on the bank and force its closing, the supervising authorities can only remonstrate with an obdurate or arrogant management until the bank reaches a point where its paid in capital is actually impaired."

In contrast with Mr. Pole's complaint of lack of power is the opinion of the commission of the American Bankers' association that refusal of rediscount facilities by the federal reserve banks would be sufficient to bring recalcitrant members banks to time.

Favors Branch Banking.

Because it is generally the small, weak banks that fail, Mr. Pole would build up stronger banks and to that end he advocates legislation to authorize branch banking by large banks in designated trade areas transcending state lines, if necessary. Illinois furnishes the controller with a text for his branch banking argument. Discussing failures in the fiscal year of 1930, Mr. Pole said:

"Illinois, a state wherein anti-branch banking sentiment is quite pronounced, suffered a striking increase in bank failures during the last year. During the fiscal year of 1929, only 8 state banks and one national bank in Illinois closed their doors, while in 1930, no less than 42 state-chartered institutions and 11 national associations, a total of 53, were placed in receivership."

He cited similar increase in failures in other states, commenting that "the great bulk of the failures was made up of banks with limited capital, located in communities of the type which, in my opinion, can be adequately served only by branches of the larger banks in the nearest large commercial centers."

3,000 STORM HOME OF NEGRO FAMILY IN WHITE SECTION

Minneapolis, Minn., July 15.—[Special.]—A cordon of policemen standing a few feet apart all around the home of a Negro postal clerk, who three weeks ago moved into a white residential district, late tonight protected the man and his family from an angry mob of more than 3,000 white persons.

While the patrolmen formed a square about the house motorcycle policemen and all available gun squads smashed into the crowd attempting to drive it back. One policeman was hauled from his cycle and beaten. Several persons were arrested.

Feeling which has been mounting since the Negro, A. A. Lee, bought the house three weeks ago and moved in first broke into the open Tuesday night when a crowd of about 300 persons stoned the house.

Today Mayor Anderson and other city officials attempted to settle the dispute amicably, but failed. Lee said he would stand on his rights as a property owner as long as force was displayed against him and his wife and small daughter.

White property owners in the neighborhood held a massmeeting and announced they would "see that the Negro" moved.

At midnight the policemen and the crowd were standing almost breast to breast, each waiting for the other to make a move.

YANKEE DOCTOR KILLS CHINESE MISSION WORKER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, July 15.—Carl D. Meinhardt, American consul at Tsinan, today arrived in Techow, in the province of Shantung, to investigate the reported killing of a Chinese worker at the Porter Memorial hospital, of the American Congregational mission, by Dr. Francis F. Tucker.

Dr. Tucker, a classmate of Gen. John J. Pershing at the University of Nebraska and a graduate of the Rush Medical college of Chicago, was said to have killed the man whom he suspected of being a burglar. According to the report received here, Mrs. Tucker, also a Rush graduate, had gone to a sea resort for the summer with other members of the mission staff. In their absence Dr. Tucker slept in the hospital to guard a considerable amount of money which was stored in the office. He was awakened by the opening of a door and pursued the intruder. His fourth shot killed the fleeing Chinese.

The Shantung Kuomintang assumed charge of the case, and has asked the Nanking government to institute a vigorous investigation. Consul Meinhardt will oppose any attempt of the Chinese to obtain custody of Dr. Tucker and will demand that the hearing be held under the extraterritoriality law.

CAPITAL'S GREAT AND NEAR GREAT HIT BY NEW BOOK

"Stingers" Are Directed at Public Figures.

New York, July 15.—[Special.]—Few if any of the great and near great who occupy the stage in Washington or play a part behind the scenes are spared in a book of "Stingers," written anonymously and just published by Horace Liveright.

"Washington Merry Go Round" undertakes to tell in 366 pages "what the newspapers do not print about the politics and politicians of this country and what the Washington correspondents write only between the lines; the inner realms of politics, society, the diplomatic corps, the White House, and the press itself."

The Climbers and Others.

Washington society, split into "many cliques and schisms," says the author, "can be divided into two classes: those who want to get their names in the papers and those who want to keep them out."

In the first category, we are told, "are the congressional climbers, the army and navy, the professional pushers," while "the young set, the intellectuals, and the fast riding, hard drinking poker players are in the second."

"There are in Washington a half dozen middle aged or aging ladies who absolutely dominate the social stage," we are informed. In this part of the book is detailed the feud between Dolly Gann, the Vice President's sister, and Alice Longworth for supremacy in the social world of the capital and the part played therein by the Vice President.

As to Starched Futility.

In the chapter on "starches futility" is undertaken the dissection of the diplomatic corps, "divided into those who dine out and those who work."

For "purposes of strict accuracy," however, the diplomatic corps is divided into four groups, "which, except when they attend the secretary of state's breakfast on New Year's day or the diplomatic reception at the White House, have about as much in common as Dolly Gann and Alice Longworth."

"Egg Charley," is Vice President Curtis, portrayed as a simple, kindly man, corrupted by ambition for social recognition and overpowering desire to be President. The following is quoted to elucidate the alleged insistence of Mr. Curtis on recognition of his high position:

"Good night," said Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, an old friend of Charley's, one evening in his response to his thanks for a pleasant visit at her home. "Come again, Charley."

"Say," was the outraged rejoinder. "Where do you get that Charley stuff? Don't you know I'm Vice President now?"

On Our Secretary of State.

"Wrong Horse Harry" is a chapter on Secretary of State Stimson, not too critical and, in spots, quite friendly, followed by "Peppermints and Protocol," which is likely to make some high personages wish they could make the acquaintance of the author.

"The Man Who Stayed Too Long" is Andrew Mellon, whose dubbing as "the greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton," is seriously disputed.

"Sons of the Wild Jackass," are the insurgents in the senate, shown with all their supply of alleged virtues and shortcomings. "The Monkey House" is the "House of Representatives." Charles G. Dawes of "Hell and Maria" fame is "The Court Jester." There are chapters on "Little Nemo," or Dwight Morrow, and on the "Vestal Virgins," or those comprising the entourage of President Hoover.

Vitriolic as to Hoover.

The chapter on President Hoover, in which the chief executive is portrayed as a product of publicity, who failed to stand up under the test of events, is intended to be devastating. Both as political leader and man, the President is depicted in the following comment:

"His whole record, throughout the great national disaster is unbelievable for its abysmal incompetence, donothingness, and reactionary stultification."

The President is pictured as a myth, a legion, a straw man of the publicity machine, and as one who has, on more than one occasion, given evidences of a petty personal temper.

SOUTHERN SUBURBS ARE ENJOINED FROM POLLUTING STREAMS

Superior Judge William J. Lindsay yesterday granted an injunction restraining the city of Chicago Heights, the Bloom Township Sanitary district, the village of South Chicago Heights, the Glenwood Manual Training school, and the village of Lansing from polluting the waters of Thorn creek and the Little Calumet river. The injunction is a step in the fight against pollution which was started 14 years ago by 300 residents along both streams.

The bill for an injunction was filed by Attorney Robert E. Downs, and the evidence was heard before Master in Chancery Thomas J. Holmes, whose recommendations were sustained by Judge Lindsay. The municipalities were granted until Jan. 15, 1933, to provide adequate sewerage systems. It is estimated by engineers that a total of more than $500,000 will be spent in completing this work.

The first complaints against the pollution of the streams were filed in 1917 with the Illinois department of rivers and lakes. In their testimony complainants testified that the mists from the streams tarnished the walls of their houses and were unhealthful.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES DEFY GOVERNOR'S TAX COMMITTEE

Board Defaults on Three More Pay Rolls.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Stung by the comments of Gov. Emerson's revenue committee on school waste and extravagance, spokesmen for a majority of the trustees hurled defiance at their critics at a special meeting of the board yesterday. At the same time the board defaulted on three more pay rolls which included home employés who have not had their salaries for three months.

JOSEPH SAVAGE.

The board has now defaulted on 24 pay rolls since April 1 and more than $15,000,000 is owed in over due salaries and bills. However, the board voted to open the schools in September at the regular time with full pay to the teachers. The trustees also voted to push an investigation of their stewardship, which was ordered a month ago.

Savage Assails Critics.

The most bitter of the attackers upon the board's critics, came from Trustee Joseph Savage.

"We have been called extravagant and inefficient by critics who have been given misinformation," he said. "I notice that no one has cited any specific case of graft or corruption, or pointed to one act which sustains the charges. But the people are justified in believing what has been said because we have not given them the truth. We did not have our department heads before the governor's commission last night to explain the situation. The charge that our janitors are paid for eight hours and work only four is a lie.

"The only trouble with the school board is that it has not received the money it should and cannot operate. There are big private businesses which have been getting regular incomes which are having trouble. One of them had to go out and sell $100,000,000 in bonds, but our money has been delayed two years. Let every board member stop broadcasting the story that there is something wrong with the board, that it is squandering money."

Willing to Save, They Say.

The board decided upon no savings in expense yesterday, although that was the technical subject under discussion at two long sessions. All of the trustees said that they were willing and anxious to save cash, but some of them frankly admitted they did not know where any money is being squandered.

Every group of employés who spoke attempted to show how injurious "to the school children" it would be to reduce expenses in their particular group.

Finally Trustee Carr said: "From what we have heard there is no place where we can cut, although in any large business like this there are always innumerable places where savings can be made. The democratic form of government cannot go on spending without limit. If we do, every one will be on the public pay roll eventually. Then we will take what the government will give us as in Russia.

"Why shouldn't everyone lend a hand? The school costs must be cut. If not this year then it must be done later. We cannot go on spending and spending. Public expense is running away with us from the federal government down. We are in a very severe crisis, and the expense must be trimmed."

Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, another minority member, who was before the revenue committee Tuesday night, told her fellow trustees:

"The prominent men on that committee know what they are talking about. There is wastage, leakage and extravagance in the operation of the schools and the governor's committee as good as said that public confidence must be restored, in cuts of public expense, before a special session of the legislature will be recommended. The situation is serious—much more serious than the trustees realize."

Spain Ready to Fight.

That made no impression upon Joseph Spain, representative of the engineer-custodian union. He emphasized the Savage slap at the revenue committee.

"Mr. Insull, Mr. Sargent, and some of those others know as much about the schools as I know about public utilities. We are willing to cooperate with the trustees, but if they will not we will show our teeth and fight back. The board of education hasn't the slightest idea of what 100,000 square feet means in a school building."

William McFetridge of the janitors' union said that his organization would not permit the school board to kick the janitors around any longer.

"We withdraw as the football for the board of education," he added. "You can return to the contract system of cleaning the schools if you desire, but we will see to it that you shall not readopt sweatshop methods."

The representatives of the teachers' organizations were more conciliatory. They were willing to take a 2½ per cent cut in wages, "if it was absolutely necessary," but protested against it as unjust and inequitable.

Calls Assessors Racketeers.

James A. Meade of the men's teachers' union said that the board's troubles were due to the delay in reassessment of real estate. Then he added: "The assessors were and are a bunch of racketeers."

The three pay rolls due, and unpaid yesterday, are those of the playground employés, totaling $20,000; construction employés, totaling $75,000, and other civil service employés for $270,000. The unpaid pay rolls of the board may be summarized as follows:

Employés—	Amount.
Teachers	$ 7,390,835
Substitute teachers	508,990
Playground attendants	300,535
Construction	402,605
Community centers	61,139
Civil service	1,837,468
Total	$10,300,973
Due yesterday	365,000
Grand total	$10,665,973

In addition the board owes approximately $2,000,000 in bills for educational supplies, materials and equipment; and about $3,250,000 on construction contracts.

Only About 800 Ask for Scrip.

To satisfy some of its debtors the board has established a trust of $5,250,000 of tax anticipation warrants, and against it has issued participation certificates. On Tuesday it was reported that 1,200 had applied for this scrip and yesterday it was said that the applications would not be more than 800.

Officials of the Chicago Teachers' federation and of the High School Teachers' association stated last night that they had been advised by their attorneys, I. T. Greenacre and Wiley W. Mills, that there is doubt as to the legality of the scrip offered to the school employés by the board. The attorneys said that the scrip is not necessarily redeemable and its acceptance may invalidate lawful salary claims. Objection was also raised to the selection of Secretary Gilbert of the school board as trustee of the scrip warrants because in case of his removal from office the disposition of the warrants would be in doubt.

Thomas V. Sullivan, attorney for the board, said that a bond and investment house had offered to buy all of the $5,250,000 issue of scrip at 95. No deal was made, Mr. Sullivan said, as the board would not authorize discounting the participation shares if it had the authority to sell them.

The Commonwealth Edison company announced through advertisements in Chicago newspapers that it would accept the scrip from employés of the board of education on accounts of electricity furnished or merchandise sold.

UNPAID TEACHER IS STRANDED IN BERLIN; ASKS AID

U. S. Consul Radios Plea to Cermak.

Because of the failure of the school board to pay the salaries of its employés, Miss Virginia Hart, 3847 North Kedvale avenue, a teacher in the Lovett elementary school, is stranded in Berlin, Germany, and forced to depend on the hospitality of the American consulate. She has been employed by the school board since 1919. Her situation became known yesterday when Mayor Cermak received a wireless message from the American consul.

"Miss Hart is destitute in Berlin due to the failure to secure salary due," the message said in part. "Funds may be cabled her care of the consulate."

Miss Hart is on a year's sabbatical leave and is touring the world. Under normal conditions half of her salary of $250 a month would have been sent her each month through her bank. In a letter to her mother, Mrs. William Hart, two months ago, she said that she was without funds but had borrowed $200 from a teacher who is accompanying her. Mayor Cermak referred the message to President Myers of the school board.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR SEVEN LANES TO TEST AUTOS

Truck dealer members of the Chicago Automobile Trades association met yesterday at the Hotel Sherman and arranged for opening a truck testing safety lane next week in Polk street, between Union avenue and Halsted street.

Their action completed the plan for holding seven such safety lanes in the city next week, at which automobile drivers may have their cars tested to determine if they have any defects likely to cause accidents. The safety week is sponsored by the Chicago Safety council and the city council committees on traffic and public safety.

COUNTY WORKERS TO GET PART OF SALARIES TODAY

County employés, payless for more than a month, will get checks for part of what is due them today. Funds have been found to meet pay rolls for the month of June, totaling more than $1,000,000, County Treasurer McDonough announced yesterday.

The checks distributed today will be for the first half of June. Monday checks for the latter half of the month will be distributed. No funds are available, however, to meet pay rolls for the first half of July, which fall due tomorrow.

The pay roll funds were gathered from two sources, by borrowing $400,000 from the county cash working fund, and by dipping into the fees earned by Treasurer McDonough as county tax collector, for the remainder. Employés of the highway department will also be paid.

LEGISLATORS OFF FOR EUROPE TO STUDY PRISONS

Shanahan Thus Becomes Acting Governor.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Prohibition as a main cause of overflowing jails in Illinois is to be one major phase studied by the joint legislative commission which left yesterday to look over the prisons of England and Europe. As the research expedition departed, carrying six political booms for various state offices among the luggage, it left Speaker David E. Shanahan serving at Springfield as acting governor—the first Chicago governor since Gov. Edward F. Dunne.

JAMES A. KEARNS.

Speaker Shanahan stepped into the succession temporarily thuswise: Gov. L. L. Emmerson is up at Mercer, Wis., seeking a 32 pound muskie. Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, next in line, heads the foreign prison expedition, as representative of the state officers. Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet, as president pro tem of the senate, is next in line, but he is impresario of the European trip.

Shanahan Goes Into Office.

As soon as these substitute governors passed the state line yesterday morning, the governorship, temporarily, as ordained by the constitution, devolved upon Speaker Shanahan. He went to the second floor of the state house, where the temperature was like the hinges of Gehenna, and signed a few extradition papers and notary public commissions. His friends at once started a boom for him for governor, which is one of the automatic ceremonies of politics.

Simultaneously, from the Deneen camp, burst a boom for James A. Kearns, city treasurer, as a possible Chicago candidate in the Republican primaries in April. Kearns made one of the quickest comebacks in local contemporary politics. In November he was beaten for clerk of the Municipal court in the Democratic landslide, but in April he was elected city treasurer. His friends have been tentatively grooming him for governor for months.

Problem of Conduct.

A problem of conduct arose as the penological pilgrims left for Montreal, where tomorrow they sail on the Empress of Britain. On prohibition the commission is almost 50-50 as to wet or dry. Senator Thomas Courtney, minority leader and a head battler for prohibition repeal at Springfield, announces no dry preachments from drys will be permitted such as brought discord to the recent visit of American mayors to European capitals. Courtney, who is to catch the boat at Quebec Saturday, says the motto is to be "when in Rome do as the Romans."

The drys on the commission are Senators Barr and Harry G. Wright of De Kalb and Representatives Rollo R. Robbins of Augusta and Gordon W. Childers of Normal. They all voted against the repealer at Springfield.

The liberals are Senators Arthur Adam, Huebsch [Rep., Brookfield], John Broderick [Dem., Chicago], and Representatives Michael L. Igoe, minority leader; Michael Fahy [Dem., Tolono] and Edward M. Overland Rep., Chicago]. They all voted for repeal of the state prohibition law and the search and seizure act. Lieut. Gov. Sterling, who is to be keynoter at foreign banquets and such, is listed neutral, as he has no vote on repeal. Courtney, a liberal, is with Judges Denis E. Sullivan and Harry M. Fisher as member of the judicial advisory council.

Liquor Main Issue.

"The liquor question," said Senator Courtney yesterday, "is the main thing to be studied. We will have a chance to learn why in dry America our jails are filled to bursting as a result of prohibition. This should be an educational trip to some of the legislators who have been voting dry. We only regret Gov. Emmerson could not have taken such a trip—it might have led him to sign the repealer instead of vetoing it. Why are crime and drunkenness greater in dry America than in wet Europe? That's a great prison phase.

"Some jokers have been saying we're going to the Tower of London and to Marseilles to see the Château d'If, of count of Monte Cristo fame. But this is to be real research, and the only château which, I imagine, may be studied is, maybe, Château Yquem.

"And this will be a dignified commission, comporting itself in full courtesy in relation to foreign customs, and there will be no international dissonances by dry zealots such as made the visit of the mayors a world-wide laugh."

The cost of the journey, to be paid by the state's taxpayers, has been estimated at $35,000.

Promised Divorce

MRS. MARION DODGE HUMBERT.

Her husband bought her orchids when she would rather have had a kitchen garden, and showered her with Paris frocks and slippers with four inch heels when she wanted to don gingham, settle down, and raise a family, Mrs. Marion Dodge Humbert, stage dancer, complained to Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday.

She sought a divorce from Maj. John Horace Humbert, New York stock broker, on charges of desertion. He left her, she charged, on Oct. 15, 1929, because his desire for night life conflicted with her wish for a quiet home. She waived alimony, saying that she had received a settlement out of court.

Judge Desort indicated that he would grant a decree. Although Mrs. Humbert is now appearing in a New York show, she testified that for more than a year her residence has been 7016 Oleander parkway, in Chicago.

CIVIL SERVICE AX FALLS ON 2 MORE POLICE; TOTAL 22

Board Finishes Case of Health Inspector.

The civil service guillotine fell upon two more policemen yesterday, when Edward D. Burke and Leonard E. Trainor were discharged for intoxication. This makes 22 policemen who have been removed from the force by the new city administration's civil service commission, which consists of Richard J. Collins, president; Joseph F. Geary and Prof. Leonard D. White.

"We are seeking to improve the morale of the force and we think we are succeeding," said Mr. Collins. "And we are only acting in cases where guilt seems to us well proven."

Burke and Trainor, members of the mounted squad and on the force since 1929, went into a speakeasy at 8606 Summit avenue and remained there several hours, until they were intoxicated. When another patron of the place, Ralph Watske, 8621 Vincennes avenue, drew out his purse during a dice game, Burke, it was charged, grabbed $150 in cash and a check for $82.50.

Shooting Leads to Arrest.

Then Burke and Trainor divided the money but later quarreled about it and when Trainor left in a cab Burke fired a shot into the tire. The shot was heard by other police and the two men, who were off duty but in uniform, were arrested. They were charged with robbery, but this was nolle prossed when Watske said he would not prosecute.

Cases against Detectives Wellington W. Britton and James H. Howland, who are charged with having extorted money and stolen goods from narcotic peddlers, were continued until next Monday to permit the commissioners to read the federal court record in this case, in which the detectives were convicted of having violated the narcotic laws and sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary.

Brunswick Case Concluded.

"Political persecution" was the cry of the defense in the case of Dr. Edmund L. Brunswick, supervising health inspector and a member of the city health department for 15 years until his suspension a few weeks ago on charges of neglect of duty and pernicious political activity.

This case was concluded yesterday with the testimony of Dr. Brunswick and was taken under advisement. He was accused among other things of having circulated pledge cards for a mayoralty candidate during the last primary and election and of spending his time in getting up banquets for raising private funds.

Dr. Brunswick told of these banquets. They were given during the administration of Dr. Arnold H. Kegel as health commissioner. One was at the Rainbo gardens, as a testimonial to Dr. Kegel after a year's service. Dr. Brunswick was chairman of the committee. A large fund was raised and a $3,800 grand piano presented to Mrs. Kegel.

Tells of Another Banquet.

At another banquet of health department employés at the Canton Tea garden a large fund was raised and what was left over, Dr. Brunswick said, was given to Dr. Kegel to use as he saw fit, with the suggestion that it go to a fund for immunizing children against diphtheria. This, he said, was done, although the prosecution made the point that the state was giving anti-toxin away.

He Likes Chicago and Also People.

off giving them the first ride in the official white car and making them the city's first guest until a little old lady that I know has arrived.'

"'She's the woman who worked for eighteen years at a clerking job so that George Gaw could go through the parochial schools and then when everybody else left George right on his own kept working away to help him.

It Is His Mother.

"'That little old lady, Mayor, is my mother, and she's coming to visit Chicago after I get to be the official greeter.'

"'Mayor Cermak agreed, and so on Friday George Gaw is going to have the greatest honor in his life. He's going to greet his mother.

"That's the personal side of this business. Now, I don't tell it to everyone, but I got an idea back in my mind of a great big thing that I can accomplish by this greeting.

"'Why, suppose some time there's a big parley voo in some foreign capital and there's sitting around the table a lot of big guys and some one says: 'Well, we'll have to declare war on America.' Then supposing one of these fellows at the table gets up and says: 'Hold on there. I was in Chicago and I never met so many fine folks in my life. Americans are all right. Let's go slow about this.'

"'Wouldn't that be a fine return for my work? Sure, you can laugh at that. But aren't folks human, whether they're kings or diplomats or white wings? George Gaw thinks they are and that's the way he's going to treat the visitors he meets in behalf of this great city.

"So long, I got to be hurrying for that airport. The western mail ship is coming in and I promised to be there."

The city editor listened to the reporter's story. "But why? Just why does George Gaw want to be the city's official greeter?"

"Darn if I know," said the reporter, grinning, "guess it's because Chicago's such a grand place to visit or to live.

HIGHWAY STRIKERS AND POLICE CLASH; WOMEN DISPERSED

White Plains, N. Y., July 15.—[Special.]—A group of the 750 road workers on strike in this city and vicinity clashed today with the police. In the ensuing scuffle, after policemen had fired warning shots in the ground, Patrolman Joseph McCue shot Arthur Rose, a striker, in the right arm. In another skirmish, five women pickets, three of whom carried babies, were dispersed when the police resorted to the use of their batons.

At the request of Mayor Frederick C. McLaughlin, who said he wanted to "get rid of the agitators who are inciting the workers to fight," the United States immigration authorities sent two inspectors here. More than 150 strikers detained in police alien raids were questioned, more than a score ordered from the city for not having their citizenship papers with them and more than a dozen held for deportation.

Rose was taken to White Plains hospital where it was reported tonight he would recover unless complications set in.

Vision

TANDEM teams flashing yellow-wheeled victorias up and down Prairie Avenue . . . Mrs. Potter Palmer dazzling Chicago society with her new home on the "Drive" . . . the city bright with the soft radiance of gas light. That was forty years ago. Lighting, then, was practically the only use for gas. Yet, in a few years this great demand for gas was to disappear entirely.

With the passing of the mauve decade, gas companies were discovering important new uses for gas. Gas, for cooking, had been introduced a few years earlier, and was now intensively sold to the public.

Engineers sought new uses for gas in industry; developed important economies and labor savings with this clean, flexible, instant fuel; actively pushed its adoption by the industrial shops of Chicago. Gas was successfully adapted to house heating. The last five years have brought gas for cold—in automatic gas refrigeration. Soon we are promised gas home-cooling units for summertime comfort.

Thus, in a few years, gas companies changed their business from a lighting service to a new, indispensable heating, and now cooling, service. This was accomplished by vision, salesmanship, . . . initiative, and the application of sound business principles.

CERMAK ORDERS CITY TO REDUCE PHONE SERVICE

Free Calls Will End Under Franchise.

In anticipation of the city having to pay for its telephone service under the terms of the proposed new franchise granted to the Illinois Bell Telephone company, Mayor Cermak, at a meeting of his cabinet yesterday, ordered a cut made in the number of calls over city telephones.

Each department head has been instructed to direct the employés under him to confine all outgoing calls to those required by office business, eliminating all personal calls. Incoming calls for a personal nature, except in cases of emergency, are included also in the ban.

Official Survey Ordered.

Jeffrey O'Connor, commissioner of public service, has been instructed to figure up the number of calls originating in each department, and the number of extensions in use. It will be determined from his data whether any of the extensions can be taken out to retrench further telephone charges.

Calls originating in all city departments average approximately 5,000,000 a year, according to information given to the city council. Under the old franchise no charge has been made for those originating in the city hall, but for those originating in branches of city departments located outside the hall the city has been paying $50,000 annually.

It has been estimated that under the terms of the new ordinance the city calls will have to be limited to 4,250,000 a year to keep the payment the same as under the old ordinance. It is the purpose of the mayor's order to effect the required reduction of $50,000 calls annually.

Use in Private Business.

Because the city phone service has been free persons have used the city telephones for the operation of private businesses. According to charges made by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey (24th), one person carried on a real estate sales campaign free of charge to himself over the city phones.

Another use of city phones that has been characterized as an abuse of the free service privilege was the extensive campaign carried on over city phones by the last administration during the alleged "prosperity" drive. Salesmen of the "prosperity" coupons solicited business over a number of phones installed in the mayor's office for that purpose. No payment was made to the telephone company for those calls.

An example of to what extent outgoing calls can be curtailed was furnished recently when a switchboard was installed in the controller's office. On the first day the operator, Miss Margaret Shevlin, was swamped with calls. As the result of an order from Deputy Controller Peterson to cut personal calls to a minimum the traffic on the board during the second day was cut nearly one-half of that of the preceding day.

MRS. WILLIAM L. AUSTIN. (IRENE DELROY.)

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Irene Delroy, stage and screen actress, and William L. Austin Jr., real estate operator and member of a socially prominent Philadelphia family, were married by Mayor Walker in a hotel here today.

Mr. Austin is the son of a former president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. Miss Delroy's real name is Josephine Sanders. She is the daughter of Royal and Dellia Sanders of Bloomington, Ill. She formerly attended Hyde Park High school, Chicago.

German Farmer Burns Self and Four Children to Death

WAGE LAW TIES UP $10,000,000 STATE ROAD JOBS

$1,000,000 County Work Delayed by New Act.

BY HAL FOUST.

The state highway department is holding up road contracts totaling $10,000,000 pending a decision on how to proceed under a wage scale law enacted by the recent session of the legislature. The law went into effect on July 1. Bids on additional work were to have been received yesterday, but contractors were notified that the letting of contracts had been indefinitely postponed.

H. H. CLEAVELAND. [Eckman Photo.]

The new law, sponsored by union labor, provides that on public construction political units are required to enforce a minimum wage scale equal to the prevailing scale in the vicinity of the job. Bids for $10,000,000 worth of work had been received by the state before July 1 and the award of contracts was pending.

Work May Be Delayed.

"We haven't decided," said Director H. H. Cleaveland of the department of public works, "whether these contracts can now be awarded, since the call for bids did not include any provision for the minimum wage scale. If we have to advertise for new bids there will be weeks of delay, a delay that we are anxious to avoid, since we are in the middle of the construction season."

Mr. Cleaveland was interviewed over the telephone at his home in Rock Island, where he was catching a train last night to confer with Attorney General Carlstrom's office today. Political observers are watching the outcome of this conference, because Gov. Emmerson and Attorney General Carlstrom may be opponents for the Republican gubernatorial nomination next year and because any protracted delay in highway work at a time when employment is scarce might become a political issue.

The Chicago Motor club expressed fears that the state will be able to finish only a fraction of this year's construction program, due to the problem arising from the new law. The program called for the expending of $21,000,000 this year, and contracts awarded to date total $13,787,438, leaving $17,212,562 worth of work awaiting the solution of the issue.

$2,824,353 in Chicago Area.

The bids pending, with the contracts being held up, include $2,824,353 worth of road work in the Chicago area. This is itemized as four highway grade separations, two railroad grade separations, four bridges, 16.53 miles of forty foot pavement, 10.72 miles of resurfacing, and 51.24 miles of twenty foot pavement.

Bids were to have been received yesterday on $750,000 worth of work in the metropolitan area, including 8.87 miles of forty foot pavement, 4.1 miles of twenty foot pavement, two bridges, and one highway grade separation.

The Cook county highway department likewise is holding up the award of contracts for more than $1,000,000 worth of work. This, with the state's delayed projects, makes a total of nearly $4,000,000 worth of construction held up in the Chicago area, according to the motor club.

SHEDS CLOTHES AND 95 YEARS TO GO FOR SWIM; HE'S RESCUED

New York, July 15.—[Special.]—Sam Rothstein, 95, stood on pier 37, East river, today and looked enviously at four naked boy swimmers. He remembered the days forty years ago when he was a widely known swimmer in his native Poland.

Mr. Rothstein divested himself of his outer clothes and the little black cap which he and others who live at the Home of Old Israel, half a block up Jefferson street, wear. He dived off the pier.

Sam Blackin and Sam Gazzo, passersby, dived after him and held him up until other men got a rope and lifted him to the pier.

ARREST 8 MEN AND WOMAN IN RAID; SEIZE GUNS

Police from the Warren avenue station raided a flat at 2554 West Madison street last night and arrested eight men and a woman. A ninth man jumped through the glass of a third story window when the raiders entered, dropped to the ground and escaped.

In the flat the police seized six revolvers, a quantity of rope, and two rolls of broad adhesive tape such as robbers use to bind and gag their victims. The flat was rented by Joseph Brown, 31 years old. Joan Hayes, 27 years old, the woman arrested, had been living there with Brown, the police said.

The others captured gave their names and addresses as Joseph Lane, 28 years old, 3012 Washington boulevard; Thomas J. Jones, 34 years old, 3852 West Monroe street; David Cohen, 24 years old, 1513 South Spaulding avenue; Kenneth Whitley, 27 years old, 2756 Warren avenue; George Clas, 27 years old, 1135 North Hamlin avenue; Charles Harriss, 29 years old, 1641 Fullerton avenue; and Joe Lewis, 27 years old, 3854 Fifth avenue.

BANDIT'S ARREST BARES PLAN FOR BANK ROBBERIES

Plans for the robbery of many small banks in Marshall, Kendall, La Salle and Grundy counties were discovered yesterday following the arrest of Jack Sullivan, Thomas Harper and Jerry Fitzgerald at Newark Monday. In their possession Sheriff Martin Hextell of Kendall county found sketches of banks in Yorkeville, Newark, Oswego, Minooka, Marseilles, Millbrook, and Lacon with notes regarding roads in and out of each town.

The bandits were captured by two quick village vigilantes after they fled from the First State bank of Millington with $1,300. Harper was seriously wounded in the back and is near death in a hospital at Sandwich. Sullivan and Fitzgerald are held at Yorkeville.

Mrs. Helen Fitzgerald, 555 Surf street, and Mrs. Anna Imms, 542 Arlington place, were arrested and are being held by Chicago police at the request of Kendall county authorities in connection with the Millington robbery.

Following Our Charted Course

We have devoted the past twenty-five years to building a business of Quality Merchandising which has merited and won the confidence of a very large patronage. The present trend for lower prices is in many instances resulting in lowering quality both as to materials and workmanship. While we always keep our costs as low as possible, we are unwilling to sacrifice our High Standard of Quality—a sacrifice that would remove the very purpose of our existence.

By adhering strictly to the Business we best understand, by continually bettering quality wherever possible, and by keeping prices adjusted according to actual costs we have built up a Dependable Organization. In our London and Paris Shops we cater to many of the most Distinguished Men of Europe, and in New York and Chicago we enjoy the esteemed patronage of the most Notable and most Discriminating Men of America.

COURT SYSTEM FAULTY, REPORT OF COMMISSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—In the eighth report of the new defunct Wickersham commission, made public at the White House today American criminal procedure was dissected and many of its component parts demonstrated to be unsound.

Throughout the report the commission persistently called attention to the infringement of politics on the courts, and deplored the influence which expediency exercised on weak judges living in fear of the next election.

Refer to Mooney Case.

In the obscurity of a technical discussion of the processes of judicial review, the report made striking reference to the Mooney and Billings case in California. The famous case, in which the two radicals were sent to prison for murder on conviction of having bombed the San Francisco preparedness day parade, was cited as an instance of the inadequacy of laws permitting the review of convictions.

"Such a state of the law is shocking to one's sense of justice," said the commission, "pointing out that though evidence charging perjury on the part of a material witness for the state had been unearthed, this did not constitute ground for granting Mooney and Billings a new trial under California law.

The report was not unanimous. It was signed by ten of the eleven commissioners, but Monte M. LeMann submitted a separate opinion, saying that he could not join in what he said were too inclusive generalizations based on an insufficient factual inquiry.

Conclusions Summarized.

The conclusions of the commission in brief were that:

1. Above all there is need of a change of attitude both in the legal profession and in the public as to mode of choice, tenure, and personnel of the bench.

2. There should be a fuller appreciation of importance of the inferior criminal courts.

3. These lower courts should be modernized.

4. Judges and magistrates should be given powers commensurate with their tasks, "but no amount of procedural machinery will produce an efficient administration of criminal justice at the hands of incompetent, weak, or politics ridden judges."

5. Procedural details should be left to the rules of court, rather than rigidly laid down by legislature.

Favor Arrest Reforms.

The commission recommended that the laws as to arrests should be restated in the light of modern urban conditions, with provisions made for administrative adjustment rather than arrest, and for a more general use of summons; that there should be but one review, and that on the whole case, in inferior tribunals; that the system of short indictments should be universally adopted; that the court rather than counsel should examine and qualify jurors; that the laws relating to challenges of jurors be revised; that waivers of jury trials in criminal cases be generally permitted; that motions in arrests of judgment be eliminated; that notice of affirmative defenses be required with a plea of guilty; that the statutes relating to expert testimony be revised to do away with evils now prevalent; that there should be a uniform law among the states as to proving prior convictions in other states; that the common law powers of judges be restored where restricted, and exercised more effectively; that a system of review of a criminal case as a whole be adopted which would be as simple as the present method of moving for a new trial.

Dealing with minor offenses in the lower courts, the commission had a good word for the Chicago Municipal court's bureau of information, which it termed a step forward in the interest of preventive justice.

Fire attacked the four story building at 919 West Randolph street housing the Banner Wholesale Grocery company, Inc., yesterday, doing damage estimated at $150,000 by J. C. Gross, 1323 Estes avenue, office manager. Twenty-five employés fled the burning building after some had risked their lives by locking strong boxes containing records and valuables.

The first was discovered by Wade Porter, a Negro employed on the fourth floor, who saw smoke pouring from the pent house on the roof. He ran through the building warning others to flee and on the ground floor notified the fire department. Thirty minutes later Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan pronounced the blaze under control. The only casualty reported was Fireman Joseph Dubinsky who was overcome by smoke, but was revived at the scene.

Groceries valued at $500,000 were stored in the building and policemen armed with shotguns were stationed at the doors to prevent looting of the foodstuffs. Traffic in the Randolph street warehouse and marketing district was stopped during the blaze and hundreds deserted their offices to watch the firemen.

NEW LOVE THEFT SUIT IS FILED AGAINST VELIE

John Velie, 65 years old, wealthy Chicagoan, was sued for $50,000 for alienation of affections yesterday by Ray Powell at Iron Mountain, Mich., Velie's former home. Powell charges that Velie stole the love of his young wife, Hazel Powell, 21 years old.

The suit is the second instituted against Velie. Another, for $100,000, was filed several months ago by Chalmers Chappell, Chicago artist, who accused Velie of winning the love of his wife, Dorothy, former Milwaukee model. On Feb. 16 Chappell and Velie engaged in a fist fight on a train as it entered the Union station when Chappell found Velie and Mrs. Chappell riding together from Milwaukee.

SUSPECT QUIZZED IN NEW GANGLAND DEATH RIDE CASE

Murder Victim Linked to Zuta Killing.

In the investigation of the murder early yesterday of Edgar A. Smith, bodyguard for Danny Stanton, Chief of Detectives Norton ordered the arrest of James L. Quigley. The suspicion is that the south side's beer war furnished the background for the murder of Smith, who was taken for a ride in his own automobile and shot to death on South Park way by two men he apparently considered his friends. Norton questioned Quigley as follows:

Q.—What are you doing now, Quigley.

A.—I'm running a restaurant at 5445 Shields avenue called the Railroad Men's club. You know I was a railroad fireman for 13 years.

Q.—You were in the beer business?

A.—Yes, I used to be in with Spike O'Donnell and Frank McErlane, but I split up with them a long while ago.

Refused to Go "Hunting."

Q.—Why? A.—They wanted me to go hunting with them and I didn't want to.

Q.—What do you mean, hunting?

A.—I don't want to say any more about it.

It was recalled by Chief Norton that a few weeks ago McErlane, whose reputation as a beer runner and killer goes back many years, was arrested in his territory at 2 o'clock in the morning armed with a shotgun and he said he was hunting squirrels. So Norton continued:

Q.—They're tough boys? A.—No, they're only tough when they have a lot of guns and a crowd with them. I took two guns off McErlane once and punched his ears off.

Q.—What do you know about the killing of Smith? A.—Nothing.

Body Found in Auto.

Smith's body was found in an automobile parked in front of 5420 South Park avenue early yesterday morning. The police had been looking for it for several hours because Milton Winfield, 6330 Champlain avenue, had reported the murder. He heard shots in front of his home and saw two men jump out of an automobile while a third man slumped over the wheel. Then another automobile drew alongside this machine and one man got out of it, pushed the body away from the wheel of the other car, and drove away. Why this was done police couldn't say.

When the body was identified the first thought of detectives was "find Stanton," but they couldn't do it. Stanton and Smith were arrested last fall in an automobile in which there was a revolver which later, by ballistics tests, was shown to have been used in the murder of Jack Zuta, public enemy and generally disreputable character, in Waukesha county, Wis.

They were ordered extradited to Wisconsin, but after several months in jail here obtained their liberty pending an appeal to the Supreme court which was to decide if they were to be extradited. Stanton, who is a Capone lieutenant, was suspected of the Zuta murder, but Smith was also accused so as not to give Stanton the opportunity of claiming the revolver belonged to Smith.

Smith's murder was one of a series on the south side among beer runners during the last few months. Quigley was accused of the murder of Edward Fitzgerald, a McErlane beer runner, but was freed, and therefore he was at least an object of suspicion yesterday.

FOUNTAIN PEN BOMBS WOUND TWO FASCIST OFFICIALS AT GENOA

GENOA, Italy, July 15.—(AP)—An alleged bomb plot, in which the bombs were forty fountain pens loaded with high explosive, resulted in the wounding of two Fascist officials here, it was revealed today, and mobilization of all politcal police units. Police said the fountain pens were sent through the mail to Fascist leaders and that the first two which were opened by the recipients exploded, wounding the men.

The plot was discovered two days ago, it was said. Efforts to trace the origin of the bombs have so far been fruitless, but postal authorities were working on clews tonight. After the explosion of the first two pen bombs all Fascist leaders were warned not to open small packages, but to take them to police headquarters for examination.

ARGUMENTS NEAR END IN TEST OF CAR ORDINANCE

Oral arguments on the question of the validity of the transit legislation and ordinance were practically completed yesterday before Judge Stanley Klarkowski. After a two hour session of court last night Judge Klarkowski said he thought the attorneys would finish their final rebutial pleas today.

Seeking an early decision by the Illinois Supreme court on the transit franchise, the attorney general and state's attorney are challenging its constitutionality before Judge Klarkowski in a test case.

Walter L. Fisher, special assistant corporation counsel, representing the city, presented the closing arguments yesterday afternoon and last night in defense of the validity of the transit measures. He reviewed the steps leading up to the passage of each of the transit bills, stressing the necessity for a terminable permit and subways.

In reply to arguments advanced by Special Assistant Attorney General John L. McInerney, Mr. Fisher contended that the legislature did not exceed its authority by passing special legislation for Chicago or by delegating regulatory control to an appointive transit commission.

DECLARATION OF FASCISTS BRINGS RELIEF IN ITALY

Door Is Left Open for Discussion.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 15.—Relaxation of the tension in the Italo-Vatican controversy was felt all along the line today following yesterday's pronouncement of the directorate of the Fascist party. This pronouncement, which, according to the government spokesmen, was meant as a reply to Pope Pius' encyclical, was expressed in measured, even though intemperate, language, and was intended to leave the door open for resuming negotiations when Premier Mussolini has less urgent matters with which to deal.

Fascist opinion considers that the pronouncement has in firm but not offensive terms, laid down to the pope the lines along which he can exert his activities as a spiritual power in Italy, and at the same time warned the pontiff that the church must limit its ambitions.

Vatican Opinion Hopeful.

Vatican opinion today was that things have not been made worse by the party's pronouncement.

Vatican spokesmen point out that no mention was made of the adult organizations of Catholic Action, which they interpret as meaning either that Mussolini considers this question settled by his own action of dissolving the clubs or else does not want to compromise his chances of reaching ultimate peaceful settlement with the church.

This latter view is held in most favor, as it is pointed out that Il Duce has in past diplomatic notes always expressed willingness to negotiate the scope and meaning of article 43, which deals with the Catholic Action. The Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, tonight analyses the Fascist pronouncement, asserting that it does not deal with the main contentions of the pope in his encyclical, but only with marginal matters in the pope's letter.

Called Iron Hand.

A Fascist paper tonight declared that the party declaration was an iron hand in a velvet glove. And, while bitter newspaper polemics continue, it is noted that the Fascist papers have begun printing the pontiff's encyclical almost in entirety, whereas they had formerly failed to divulge and of its textual contents.

ROBBED OF LIFE SAVINGS.

Three youthful bandits obtained entrance to the apartment of Peter Diron, 4527 South Lincoln street, a junkman, and robbed him of $500, his life savings, yesterday.

DOUBLES FURNISHED BOOTLEGGERS TO GO TO PRISON FOR THEM

Los Angeles, Cal., July 15.—[Special.]—Existence of a bootlegger and bail bondsmen ring which supplies "doubles" to substitute for men sentenced to terms in Los Angeles county jail, was charged in a letter which Superior Judge Samuel Blake sent to District Attorney Buron Fitts today.

Judge Blake accompanied his letter with reports turned in to him by investigators, giving a detailed account of one such jail "bounty server," and informed the district attorney that he had knowledge that a series of such substitutions had been made in cases where jail terms for liquor offenses had been imposed.

RUSSIA, FRANCE RESUME NORMAL TRADE RELATIONS

Action Intended to Pave Way for Agreement.

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

PARIS, July 15.—Preparing the way for commercial negotiations now in progress, France and Russia tomorrow will publish decrees in Paris and Moscow reestablishing normal economic relations between the two countries.

This action will abrogate retaliatory measures taken when commercial negotiations failed in October, 1930.

France Has Been Loser.

Louis Rollin, French minister of commerce, recently pointed out that the existing situation between France and Russia was primarily unfavorable to France, since Russia exports to France several hundred million francs' worth of products, while the Russian market has been practically closed to French goods.

The resumption of a normal trade basis is intended to pave the way for a commercial agreement which soviet delegates are now endeavoring to obtain with the French government and which is expected to be pressed rapidly during the next week or two. Under the plan proposed, Russia expects to place considerable orders for machinery and manufactured products, some of which she now purchases from the United States, with France.

Agree on Wheat Deficit.

There is also understood to have been some proposal with regard to France's wheat deficit and an arrangement by which the Russians might indirectly be enabled to compensate French holders of Russia prewar bonds without openly signing an agreement of this kind.

Soviet Menace to U. S. Trade a Myth, Says Engineer

Cleveland, O., July 15.—(AP)—The rest of the world was advised today by R. E. Baker, secretary and treasurer of Arthur G. McKee & Co., Cleveland engineers, to quit worrying about Russia as an international competitor in manufactured goods.

Russia's own vast boundaries, coupled with inadequate transporation, will keep her busy with her own needs for many years, according to Baker, whose company designed and is supervising the construction of a steel plant at Magnitogorsk which the soviet government hopes to make the largest in the world.

"Distances are great and transportation is poor in Russia," Baker said. "I am convinced that it will be many years before Russia can take care of her own primary needs and that if the government attempted to ignore those needs it would cost them so much to get their own manufactured goods to their borders that they would be beaten in competition before they started.

Her Rail Problem.

"When you realize that this great steel plant at Magnitogorsk, with a steel capacity of 2,100,000 tons of open hearth and Bessemer steel per year, could put that whole capacity into steel rails for the whole life of the plant without producing enough to give Russia a competent transportation system, you quit worrying about Russia being any menace to even her industrial neighbors in middle Europe, to say nothing of the rest of the world."

Economically neither Magnitogorsk nor Kuznetsk, another plant in Siberia of about half the size of Magnitogorsk, holds any actual or potential threat for the iron and steel industry of Europe, much less the United States, Baker believes.

India More Dangerous.

Baker said his firm has designed and built, in whole or part, some of the principal iron and steel plants of India and China "and neither of the Russian plants mentioned is ever likely to compete successfully in either of those countries."

SUES EXECUTIVE OF STEEL CO. FOR $1,000,000

Emory H. Wilder, an investment broker with offices at 137 South La Salle street, yesterday filed the praecipe of a suit for $1,000,000 against Elbert Gary Sutcliffe, assistant to a vice president of the Illinois Steel company. Attorney Howard D. Moses, who represented Wilder, refused to reveal the nature of the suit.

Both Wilder and Sutcliffe live in Winnetka, the former residing at 711 Locust road and the latter at 614 Pine Lane. Servants at the homes of Sutcliffe said they knew nothing about the suit. Wilder could not be found and his wife refused to make any statement.

Three Children Arrested on Liquor Law Charges

Blanche Cobb, 11 year old school girl, was charged with selling whisky. Edward Awtry, 13, was charged with delivering whisky for his father, John Awtry. Both were arrested. Grady Thompson, 16, was arrested in a raid in which his mother, Mrs. M. B. Witt, and his two older sisters, Mrs. Mae Adams and Miss Nina B. Thompson, also were taken into custody.

INDICT MALOY, FILM UNION CZAR, AND SIX OTHERS

Conspiracy Is Charged in True Bills.

per week and the maximum $150 a week. It is estimated that between 400 and 500 operators pay into the union 10 per cent of their weekly earnings. It is alleged that these large payments are not shown in the union records.

An official of the Allied Theater Owners of Illinois, an association of independent exhibitors, is reported to have told the grand jurors that the union as operated under Maloy has virtually ruined the business of some of the smaller theaters, which are compelled to pay the salaries of two union operators. This official cited figures to show that in Minneapolis the wages of the operators range from $43 to $50 a week, as compared with $75 to $150 in Chicago.

In four states covered by this theater official, only three movie houses have been forced to close by the business depression, while in Chicago, he said, seventy-five theaters have closed, mostly because of the demand that two operators be maintained at a cost of approximately $200 a week.

Cards Issued to Brothers.

It was discovered that Leo V. Brothers, convicted slayer of Alfred Lingle, held two operator's membership cards issued by the union under his alias of Louis V. Bader. One was a traveler card, the other a regular card issued in February, 1930, four months before the Lingle murder, and good until July 31 of this year. Although the cards bore the signature of Reynolds as president, no record of them was found on the union books.

The investigation of the union has been progressing for several months. A month ago Jacob Kaufman, a movie operator known to have been unfriendly to Thomas Maloy and his administration of the union, was murdered a few days before he was to have testified before the grand jury. Thomas Maloy, O'Hara, and others were questioned in the case, but were released.

Swanson Issues Statement.

After the news of the voting of the true bills became public, State's Attorney Swanson issued a short statement saying that it was his aim to drive "hoodlums and racketeers from the labor movement."

"This is one more move by my assistants to drive the hoodlums and racketeers from the labor movement so that the unionists can elect to office men who have their interests at heart and are not moved in their actions by desires of personal gain."

Thanks Prosecutor and Jury.

On behalf of the Allied Theater Owners of Illinois Aaron Saperstein, president, issued a statement last night thanking the state's attorney and grand jury for the investigation.

"We have no quarrel with regular members of the motion picture operators' union," he declared, "but we do ask an elimination of the superfluous operator known as the permit man, who has been forced upon us by the selfishness and greed of certain officials in collusion with certain employés of the city of Chicago.

"In many cases inexperienced boys have been sent us to act as operators at salaries ranging from $100 to $165 a week, salaries exceeding those received by operators of 20 years' experience. These excessive salaries have made it necessary for many of our theaters to close and will cause the closing of many others unless we are relieved."

Mrs. Marie O'Donnell Wins Divorce from N.Y. Clubman

Reno, Nev., July 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Marie J. O'Donnell, the former Josephine Hartford, New York and Baltimore society woman, obtained a divorce today at Minden, near here, from Charles Oliver O'Donnell, clubman of New York and Oyster Bay. She charged cruelty. They married at Bayside, L. I., Sept. 8, 1923, and have two children.

Rosalind Dorr McMillan, daughter of John Van Nostrand Dorr, metallurgical chemical engineer and an associate of Thomas A. Edison, was granted a divorce today at Minden from Donald Cameron McMillan.

The complaint charged mental cruelty. They married in New York April 2, 1923, and have two children.

LIGHTNING STRIKES WHITE HOUSE TREE AND CENSUS OFFICE

Washington, D. C., July 15.—(AP)—Lightning today struck within 150 yards of the White House, destroying a big hickory tree in the northeast corner of the grounds. No one was injured. The bolt struck near the top of the tree and came down, tearing out large pieces of wood and throwing them 30 and 40 feet away. Where tree surgeons had filled in a cavity on one of the limbs the concrete was torn out and flung some distance.

Lightning also struck one of the ramshackle buildings of the census bureau today, causing an attic blaze, extinguished in time to prevent serious damage.

The six thousand employés of the bureau already had been dismissed for the day because of the extreme discomfort of working in the temporary wartime structures in the intense heat.

FIVE BANDITS ROB BANK OF $20,000;; TERRORIZE TOWN

Staples, Minn., July 15.—[Special.]—Five machine gun bandits held up the First National bank here today, terrorized the main street of the community of 3,500, and escaped with between $15,000 and $20,000 without firing a shot.

Apparently aware that the bank had a large cash supply on hand to meet a pay day at the local railway shops, the bandits arrived in a sedan this morning when only a few pay checks had been cashed.

Alighting from the car, they trained two machine guns on a dozen persons outside the bank and lined them up facing the outside wall. While the driver covered those outside with one machine gun, the other four entered singly, stationing themselves in various parts of the bank.

At a shout from their leader all drew pistols. They forced ten customers, including a policeman, to lie on the floor while the leader strode behind the counter, scooped up all the cash in sight, and compelled a bank official to open the vault, from which he took several sacks of currency.

Investigators tonight were seeking to determine whether the raid here was executed by the same band which seized $21,000 in a holdup of a Yankton, S. D., bank last Friday.

This was the second Minnesota bank holdup in two days, a cashier having been shot when a bandit seized $650 from a bank at White Bear Lake yesterday.

$200,000 Alienation Suit Filed Against Chicagoan

Portland, Ore., July 15.—(AP)—Suit for $200,000 damages charging alienation of the affections of her former husband, Clarence M. Frank, Chicago stock broker, has been filed here by Wilma Bennett against Mabelle Dant, wife of C. E. Dant, Portland lumber man, and her daughter, Kathryne Frank.

Mrs. Bennett alleges the two schemed to win the affections of Frank, now the husband of the younger.

Frank married Kathryne last May, or six months and one day after the plaintiff obtained a divorce.

Crops Thrive and All Are Prospering.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Carbondale, Ill., July 15.—[Special.]—Some one has been rubbing Aladdin's lamp down in southern Illinois.

Just a year ago the natives in the Ozark foothills and their neighbors in a dozen counties of little Egypt were scorching, along with vegetation, through ten months of the droughtiest period on record. Fruit orchards were barren, corn fields and gardens singed to the dust.

But an oasis has come out of this desertlike situation. Government loans for seed and feed have paved the way for the best and largest crops of small grains, home gardens, commercial peach and apple and berry crops this section has even known.

Fruit Loaded for Market.

A tour of these hills and dales of luxuriant growth and scenic beauty discloses the transformation of a repentant Mother Nature in 1931. Nearly every home has its vegetable and flower garden. Farmers are threshing a record breaking wheat crop for these parts, with yields of 25 to 40 bushels to the acre.

On the railroad track sidings in nearly every community stand refrigerator cars, with man pouring ice into the hoppers and baskets and crates of luscious fruits being lifted from truck to train. Every car takes 9,000 pounds of ice.

A conservative estimate places the income on farm products to be returned to this district this year at between 9 and 10 million dollars—just that much more than was passed back into this country a year ago.

Not a Hungry Family.

"While prices might be better," said a Union county farmer, who is rated as worth almost half a million, an accumulation in his own lifetime, "everybody is feeling the relief from several years of struggle to keep from losing everything. There isn't a hungry family south of Effingham, and there aren't many of them idle, either."

Arid 1930 also seems to have taken its toll of destructive insect and crop disease pests.

Strawberries, red raspberries, and early apples in carload lots have been moving out of this region constantly, finding ready sales in some thirty American markets, and crossing the border into Canada. The Illinois berries and melons in Chicago markets this morning were picked and iced in cars here yesterday morning.

Head of Restaurant Chain Gives Employes Bonuses

Albert J. Pixley, president of the restaurant chain of Pixley & Ehlers, paid his 450 employés a total of $20,000 in semi-annual bonuses yesterday. Payment began at 68 East Lake street and continued at the other twelve restaurants in the loop and the west side. Mr. Pixley distributed the cash himself.

PHILIPPINES MUST FORGET POLITICS, DAVIS DECLARES

MANILA, P. I., July 16 [Thursday].—(AP)—Filipinos were urged today by Gov. Gen. Davis in his annual message to the insular legislature to turn their minds from political to economic problems, in order that the Philippines islands may hold their commerce.

Repeal of anti-trust laws, private ownership of communications, governmental economy, diversification of crops, and scientific agricultural methods were recommended by Davis to steer the islands through the economic depression and toward commercial freedom.

Davis told the Filipinos they cannot compete in the world market with their crops unless they adopt modern scientific agricultural methods. Removal of the free trade privilege with the United States would ruin the Philippine sugar industry, he said, and the Philippine supremacy in hemp is seriously threatened because of the more efficient methods adopted by competitor countries. He warned the islands of attacks by "interested parties" against their free trade privilege with the United States.

1 DEAD, 3 HURT IN RACE RIOT IN NEW YORK

New York, July 15.—[Special.]—Ill-feeling between Spanish Americans and Filipinos, which had been smoldering for some time in the section of the city bounded by 5th and 8th avenues and by 110th and 111th streets, flared up suddenly tonight, resulting in two simultaneous riots in which one man is known to have been shot to death, another shot in the hand, and two others stabbed. About 1,000 persons took part in the riots. Police believe that there still were other casualties, but that the victims were concealed.

Dies of Injuries Received in Shallow Water Dive

Joseph Pratcher, 23 years old, of 4241 Wentworth avenue, died early this morning in the Billings Memorial hospital of injuries received while diving in the lake. Pratcher dived into shallow water and struck a rocky bottom at the 50th street beach last Sunday. His spine was injured.

No wonder Women are switching to Camels

The steady increase in the number of women who are switching to Camels is a tribute to the mildness of this cigarette.

A woman's throat is more delicate than a man's — more easily irritated by the unkindly hot smoke of parched, dry-as-dust tobaccos.

Camels are milder, first, because they are a throat-friendly blend of fine Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos that require no parching.

Camels are milder, second, because all peppery dust is removed by a special vacuum-cleaning process before Camels are air-sealed in the Humidor Pack of germ-safe moisture-proof Cellophane.

Camels are milder, third, because this wrapping of moisture-proof Cellophane prevents the cigarettes from drying out. The natural moisture of the tobaccos is held intact.

When you inhale the cool fragrant smoke of a Camel you enjoy all the flavor, all the aroma of blended fine tobaccos kept in prime smoking condition — without the sting and bite-and-burn of stale, dried-out cigarettes.

Just try Camels, join the throng and switch to them for one day, then quit them — if you can.

● Now that Camels have led the way and in the Humidor Pack have demonstrated the great benefits to smokers of properly conditioned cigarettes, others may be expected to follow. The prediction is ventured that a year from now almost no cigarette seeking widespread public favor will be packed the old-fashioned way.

YARROW FREED FROM JAIL ON $6,000 SURETY

Judgment Is Guaranteed If Appeal Fails.

The Rev. Philip Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance association, got out of the county jail yesterday, after being there since June 26 because of his refusal to pay a $6,000 judgment for malicious prosecution obtained against him by Walter Shaver, a bookseller. It is considered unlikely that he will be compelled to return to jail.

The release was made possible by the posting of a $6,000 bond set by the Appellate court when it granted Yarrow a writ of supersedeas in his appeal from the verdict of the Superior court jury which found him guilty and awarded Shaver damages.

Friend Posts Bond.

The bond was posted by Frank Conner, a real estate man living at 249 North California avenue. He said he was a friend of Yarrow. The bond which he posted stands as a security for Shaver's judgment, providing the higher courts uphold the verdict of the jury which awarded the verdict.

Yarrow, who stated that he would "rot in jail" before he paid a penny to Shaver, thus is freed of any danger of being returned to his cell, unless Conner should decide later to withdraw the bond and surrender Yarrow to the court.

According to testimony in the case, George Brown, an investigator for Yarrow, entered Shaver's bookshop at 4715 Sheridan road in January, 1929, and asked the bookseller for a copy of "A Night in a Moorish Harem." Shaver testified later that he did not know the book, but promised to get it from a wholesaler. The next evening Brown returned, and when Shaver gave him the book, Yarrow and three policemen entered and arrested Shaver.

Acquitted by Jury.

When he was brought to trial, Shaver's attorney, Cameron Latter, admitted that the book was obscene, but asserted as a defense that Yarrow had entrapped Shaver in its purchase. Shaver was acquitted after a few minutes' deliberation by the jury. He then filed suit for $25,000 against Yarrow, charging malicious prosecution.

He won the $5,000, and because it contained a malice count, Yarrow was jailed for refusing to pay.

The reformer was met at the jail door yesterday evening by his attorney, Reuben Freedman, Conner, and his two sons, Paul and Philip Yarrow Jr., who escorted him to his home, 11156 Longwood drive, in Beverly Hills.

"Outside of the mental suffering while I was in jail I have no complaint to make," Mr. Yarrow said. "I have the highest regard for the warden and all his men. Just before I left the other eighteen debtors imprisoned there gave me a vote of thanks for the spiritual and mental aid I gave them."

WIFE COMBATS EX-MATE'S PLEA OF 'NEARLY BLIND'

Mrs. Oral Weidenhoefer, 2820 Nelson street, yesterday had her ex-husband, Herman, taken before Judge Rudolph F. Desort to show cause why he should not be cited for contempt for failure to pay for the support of their daughter, Hazel, 11 years old. They were divorced in 1922, and the payments of $10 a week which Weidenhoefer was ordered to make are now $5,000 in arrears.

"I can't pay," Weidenhoefer asserted. "I'm almost blind, and can't get work."

"Blind!" protested his former wife. "I've seen him driving his car in the loop, and my friends tell me he pilots an airplane."

"Maybe that's what they call blind flying," commented Judge Desort. He continued the case for two weeks, ordering other witnesses brought into the court.

Grants Accused Wife $18 a Week for Her Children

Judge John J. Sullivan yesterday granted Mrs. Lena Matarrese, 2605 North Hamlin avenue, $18 a week for the support of her children, Felix, 5 years old, and Carl, 2 years old, pending the hearing of the divorce suit brought against her by Felix Matarrese, a barber. The husband charges that he is not the parent of the younger boy. Mrs. Matarrese has offered to undergo scientific tests to prove the boy's legitimacy.

GOES TO PRISON

GLADYS CRAWFORD.

Gladys Crawford, 27 years old, Peoria, was sentenced to serve eighteen months in jail yesterday after a jury in Federal Judge Barnes' court had found her guilty on five counts of possessing, altering, and forging government securities—Liberty bonds.

Miss Crawford was arrested in an apartment at 4240 Kenmore avenue, in company with three bank robbers now serving prison sentences. They were Edward and Albert Corey, brothers, and Glenn Nichols. Securities to the value of $105,000, about one-third of which were stolen from the Farmers State bank of New Windsor, Ill., were found in the place. Among them were two Liberty bonds on which the names of the payee had been eradicated. The erasures were traced to Miss Crawford.

AWARD CONTRACT TO BUILD SPEED AIRPLANE MOTOR

Engine May Help Win Schneider Trophy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—The contract for the manufacture of an airplane engine, which, it is hoped, will eventually put the United States back in the running for the Schneider trophy, was let today by the navy department.

Secrecy surrounded the department's action, and the name of the contractor was not made known.

There is no chance of having the engine ready and tested in time for the United States to participate in the next Schneider cup races in September, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, announced, but the department hopes that the first step has been taken to restore this country to the place it once held in the competition for speed in the air.

The manufacture of the new engine, which is expected to be one of the most efficient and powerful of its type yet developed, was made possible by an appropriation of $220,000, introduced into the navy appropriation bill at the last congress upon the insistance of Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.]. It is the first appropriation received by the navy for the development of high speed airplane motive power since 1925.

The last time the United States was represented in the Schneider cup races was in 1926, when reconditioned service planes were used, only to see the cup go abroad, where it has remained ever since. In 1925, the United States army entry piloted by Lieut. Doolittle, won the trophy. A navy plane, flown by Lieut. Rittenhouse, won the cup in 1923.

In 1927 and 1928, Lieut. Alford Williams built and experimented with a plane, constructed with private capital, but was unable to get ready in time to enter the competition.

END TESTIMONY ON PETITION FOR MIXTURE OF GAS

I. C. C. Ponders Plea of Company.

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday took under advisement the application of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company for permission to raise the heating value of the gas it furnishes Chicago consumers. The proposed change is a part of the company's plan to mix natural gas, piped from Texas, with the present artificial supply.

ROBT. H. FARRELL.

Within the next few weeks the company is expected to file a new rate schedule for the proposed mixed gas service. It was indicated that hearings on the new rates will be held as a separate case, beginning probably in September.

Ends Taking of Testimony.

Assistant Commissioner Robert H. Farrell, to whom the heat value case was assigned, decided to close the taking of testimony in the case over the protests of attorneys for the Amalgamated Improvement association, who asked that the case remain open until they could further inquire into its possible effect upon rates. Farrell ruled that the two cases should be separate and informed the improvement association attorneys they could file a petition later to reopen the case in the event they wished to produce further testimony.

Although committing themselves to nothing definite, officials of the gas company have conveyed the impression that lower rates eventually will result from the gas mixing plan.

"My experience has been that rate hearings are long and complicated proceedings," said Mr. Farrell. "I do not think we could have the rate case until early in September. I see no reason, however, for further delaying the present case. The company has completed its testimony and the opposition has no testimony to put in now."

City to Study Rates.

Attorneys for the city informed the commission that the city's interest in the matter lies in the proposed rate schedule to be filed and that it will decide its course in the case after a study of the new schedules.

The company's petition asks for permission to change the heating value of its gas from 530 British thermal units, the value of the present coke oven product, to 500 units, the value of mixed gas. At present a majority of consumers are paying for their gas on the heat unit basis, but have the option of paying on the cubic foot basis. The petition in the rate schedule case is expected to ask that the heat unit basis of payments be made universal for all consumers. Such a change, according to the company officials, would not increase the cost of gas, but merely make the payment basis uniform.

CALIFORNIANS WHO SWAPPED WIVES TO FEAST

Pomona, Cal., July 15.—(AP)—George B. Spotswood and F. L. Stevens have announced a dinner for their families here Saturday to celebrate their exchange of wives.

Their new romances began over a bridge table. But going farther back, the original Spotswoods were married in Canada, and have two children, Doris, 10, and Billie, 9. The original Stevenses were married here 20 years ago, and also have two children, Dale, 19, and Thelma, 7.

Dale looked after the other three children as the couples met at one home or the other and found each other more than congenial. Their decision to change mates was mutual.

Spotswood and Mrs. Stevens went to Las Vegas, Nev., obtained divorces on grounds of mental cruelty and were married, Stevens and Mrs. Spotswood caring for the children meantime. When they returned Stevens and Mrs. Spotswood went to Las Vegas and were married last June 30.

Mr. Fitch calculated that the crop would bring only $160.

"I can't afford to fool with it," he told Custine. "You can have it all."

Forty Days of Rain for England, Old Omen Says

LONDON, July 15.—(AP)—Old England—at least the superstitious side of her—gloomily reconciled herself today to the prospect of forty consecutive rainy days. It was St. Swaithin's day and the skies were weeping. A measure of consolation was that raincoats and umbrellas were down near pre-war prices.

40 ROOKIE DRY AGENTS ON JOB IN CITY TODAY

About 40 new prohibition agents will begin their duties in Chicago this morning. This is two-thirds of the new allotment of agents for this district under a recent act of congress.

These agents completed their training yesterday as more than 1,000 men took examinations in Chicago for the 200 jobs remaining unfilled of the 500 created for the nation by congress. Two hundred men were examined at the federal building and 800 in the department of commerce building of Northwestern university, McKinlock campus. J. V. Swanson, chief of the federal civil service in Chicago, conducted the examinations.

Col. J. F. J. Herbert, prohibition administrator for the area, refused to say exactly how many of the 60 new agents would be assigned to Chicago.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE SCHOOL BUDGET UNDER FIRE.

The governor's committee has struck pay dirt. After preliminary meetings had been devoted to a general survey of the tangled affairs of the local governments, the committee has turned to an investigation of the various budgets. The first to be considered was that of the school board, and properly so because the schools cost more than any other of the public services. If there is to be any genuine tax relief it can come only through reduced spending by all the local governments. The school board, being the largest spender, offers the largest possibility of retrenchment.

The committee wisely directed its inquiry first to the costs of maintaining the school buildings, for it is known that these costs in Chicago are substantially twice as high as in other large cities of the country. Mr. Insull suggested that $4,000,000 a year could be saved in the costs of maintenance if sound business practices were substituted for political methods. He might have added that this saving in the costs of heating and cleaning the schools would entail no slightest hardship on the school children or the teachers. All the educational values in the school system would be retained.

Mr. Insull can hardly be regarded as an amateur in the field of business management. Neither can Mr. Fred Sargent, president of the North Western railroad. Mr. Sargent studied the schedule of salaries paid to the engineer-custodians of the schools and gave it as his deliberate opinion that no private business in the country pays as much for like services. If the school engineer has responsibilities they are certainly no more exacting than those borne by the locomotive engineer, said Mr. Sargent, and the locomotive engineer receives less pay. Incidentally, he might have added, the locomotive engineer who lives in Chicago, whether he owns his own home or rents a flat, is taxed to pay the exorbitant salaries of school maintenance.

At last disinterested and competent business judgment is being brought to bear upon the methods of public administration in this community. At last the principal cause of our tax troubles is being attacked. It is perhaps not without significance that the president of the school board, Mr. Myers, found it impossible to attend the committee's session.

A FEW BURMESE HEADS.

A statement by the provincial government in Burma, where British troops have been engaged with a native rebellion, says that no more heads will be cut off dead rebels. Officials are displeased to learn that some one was able to take photographs of an exhibit of heads on a table at headquarters and to circulate the pictures abroad in spite of measures taken for their confiscation. More is expected to be heard of this later and the government explanation may have difficulty in catching up with it.

The disposition of superior people in contact with simple people is to adopt some of the mores of the latter. (On the American frontier the whites took scalps.) In the time and place this may appear either natural or necessitous, but it is always subject to misconstruction elsewhere. Indeed the simple people, adopting some of the mores of the superior people, may try to have it misconstrued. A picture of these heads on a table at Burma headquarters might be understood equally well at 10 Downing street and in the Burmese jungle, but in a Clapham chapel or a Devonshire parish church the incident would be incomprehensible. Downing street as the seat of empire and the jungle as the home of primitives would know that a head off here or there was all in the way of nature, but in a London suburb or an English county a collection of fresh heads would seem to shatter the whole moral ideolatry for which 10 Downing street has so long been a shrine.

A British colonial officer rosy from a tub, at a table, refreshed with a spot of Scotch and ready for business might take a tally of heads for whatever purpose they were intended to serve, as, for instance, a census of dacoits or dyaks, good at last, but when Ramsay MacDonald comes into the picture, fresh from his background of pleasant week-ends at Chequers, symbolic of all the civilities of urban life, the charm of the parish countryside and of the true, the good, and the beautiful, the confusion of the mores is simply horrific. He becomes a howling Scot with a bloody claymore.

If England will shudder at such an apparition how will less well affected regions in white civilisation respond? The incident which is so reasonable in its proper setting (the troops brought the heads in for identification so that the rebellious villages might be revealed) becomes shocking when it is disclosed in communities where head trophies have been out of the mode for at least one hundred and fifty years or more. The head of many a great Englishman has looked down from a pole in a public place, but the custom is out.

The simple peoples whose mores are not offended by decapitation, least of all when death already has intervened, have learned from the superior people how to take advantage of the complex emotions of civilisation and make a hubbub about something which doesn't shock them at all. George Washington once thought that a price on French scalps would be a protection to the harried Virginia countryside. Some of his biographers delete the suggestion. Present day Americans are not on the Indian frontier.

A NEW RAILROAD INQUIRY.

The interstate commerce commission has undertaken an inquiry into a number of railroad practices, including the purchase of fuel, the handling of private freight cars, the spotting of cars and the construction and maintenance of private sidings for shippers. The investigation is intended to disclose whether present practices in such matters are "lawful and consistent with economical and efficient management."

The practices to be investigated are not new. They have been in effect for years during which rates have been raised and lowered. The commission seems to have waited until the railroads had presented their request for immediate relief before embarking upon an inquiry which must absorb much of the attention of the commissioners for many weeks.

On the day that the new inquiry was announced a committee of insurance company officials pleaded with the commission to take steps to save railroad bonds from the blacklist. Unless present earnings are increased, the insurance spokesmen said, many railroad bonds will no longer be legal investments for insurance companies and savings banks. Railroad bonds today are the foundation of our financial structure. The consequences of undermining that foundation are as obvious as they are serious.

Whatever the measures of relief ought to be, there is no question that a serious emergency exists or that the least the commission can do is to give prompt consideration to the railroads' complaint. The other inquiry can safely be postponed for a few months without entailing any disastrous consequences.

THE PUNISHMENT OF ALBERT FALL.

Warden Swope of the New Mexico state penitentiary has replied to an inquiry from the department of justice at Washington that he is prepared to receive Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, as a federal prisoner on the usual terms, a dollar a day for food, clothing and lodging. The federal court which found that Fall was physically able to serve his sentence permitted a choice of prisons with regard to the prisoner's health. It is thought that New Mexico would most congenially simulate conditions of the ranch for which Fall took the oil money and came to his disgrace.

Of the men involved in the post-war scandals of American government, Fall, everything considered, is the most severely punished. He approaches the actual penalty feeble in old age and the prospect of his imprisonment has been hanging over his head for years. In truth, from the time the scandals broke everything has been punishment for this derelict cabinet minister.

When President Hoover spoke at the dedication of the Harding memorial in Marion, O., his thought was of a President betrayed by his friends, but that conclusion is merely the product of public speaking. It is too convenient. It passes by too many exhibits without looking at them and it is too romantic for the good of the people asked to accept it. It isolates a few villains and burdens them with sins. This episode in American administration was not confined to strays in the realm of politics. It was the expectable blossoming of conditions prepared for it.

Men who proved they could control a Republican party convention conspired to cash in on illusions and credulities which they believed to be dominant in American thought and morality. The people were thankful they were out of a war. They were hopeful of keeping out of foreign complications. They had their eyes fixed on the noble experiment as on a symbol of guaranteed righteousness. They believed that democracy had proved itself to be invincible and inerrant, and with them in this blissful sentimentality the gray eyed Warwicks of the Republican party set up a government on a cash basis.

Mr. Fall does not go to prison as an exotic example of an official not to be accounted for as a product of his political soil, climate and culture. The episode in government was neither accidental nor incidental. It was in direct consequence. As irrelevant dereliction it would be forgettable. As the part of a devised organization of government it can be misexplained or forgotten only to the injury of the people whose trust was betrayed and whose sentimentality was their weakness.

Editorial of the Day

AMERICANS WILL RIDE!

[The Decatur Herald.]

A circular from an investment house calls attention to the interesting fact that 44 per cent of all the automobiles in use at the beginning of the present year were five years or more old. Remembering that the average life of automobiles in this country has been about seven years, one has an inkling of something tremendous that is about to happen to the American economy.

Probably one should consider the possibility that some millions of the ageing automobiles now in use will not be replaced when, in the near future, they must be junked. This supposes a shocking change in the national standard of living; a definite end to that glorious period in which we have assumed that this country will support a wage rate and a financial organization to permit distribution of most of the good things of life among most of the population.

This alternative is purely theoretical. Remembering the real temper of the American people, the almost universal experience now with automobiles and other conveniences of the sort, one is justified in a conclusion that they never will be forced into a more restricted mode of life for any long period at a time. A popular uprising in demand of automobiles would be more probable in this country than bread riots upon any large scale. Grocers and landlords might be compelled to whistle for their money, but Americans still would ride.

Such being the case, it follows that the long period of stagnation in the key industry of the country is nearing an end. The 10,730,000 cars now approaching the end of their usefulness are going to be replaced. Where the money is coming from we do not profess to know, but the money for this purpose will somehow be found, the factories will have work, the dealers will obtain orders, and all the varied businesses connected with the financing, fueling and servicing of automobiles will have customers.

MONKEYS AND DRUG ADDICTION.

Kolb and Dumes have demonstrated that monkeys react to dopes about as human beings do. They can be quieted by them or poisoned by them and they can become addicts. The experiments of these gentlemen show that codeine is far from being a harmless product made from opium.

A comparative study of nervine, codeine, and morphine shows that all three can be beneficial or harmful according to how they are used. They grade as follows, under three headings:

TOXICITY—Heroin decidedly the most toxic, morphine least so, and codeine in the middle position.

HARM TO GENERAL HEALTH—Codeine decidedly most harmful, heroin least so, and morphine in the middle.

DEPENDENCE PRODUCING PROPERTIES—Morphine most potent; potency of codeine very slight or nonexistent; heroin in the middle.

To illustrate what is meant by toxicity, we cite the reaction of a monkey that has been given full doses of heroin. Five minutes after the drug was injected the animal was unconscious and remained so for five hours. Several monkeys were killed by large doses of heroin.

After injections of codeine many animals became excited. Several had convulsions and some died. Convulsions never followed the use of morphine, not even in the monkeys that died.

Illustrating the harm to general health: When a monkey was given a daily injection of codeine he rapidly became stooped and aged in appearance. There was a thinning of the hair. The animal became emaciated. The tip of the ear ulcerated. Convulsions developed. It is a well known fact that some people use morphine for a long time without showing any ill effects, that is, provided they keep the dose down and watch their step. The harmful effects of small doses of heroin are still less marked.

By "dependence producing properties" is meant the tendency of the drug to cause a habit—addiction—to hook the man. The experiment with these monkeys showed that in this respect morphine was much the most dangerous of the three. Before a monkey had taken morphine for many days he was hooked. He had to have his daily dose. When the effect wore out and the hunger was on he sat hunched up, depressed in spirits, downcast in appearance, and irritated by being handled. Given his shot, he pepped up and became normal. The dose required rose very rapidly. A tolerance was acquired. When the drug was gradually withdrawn the animals at first suffered very little but after they got below a certain level evidence of drug hunger appeared. Some died from the effects of withdrawal.

Codeine had almost no tendency to hook the monkeys that were dosed with it.

QUIT LOOKING FOR THEM.

A Reader writes: What causes black specks before the eyes? I had my eyes examined and new glasses fitted just recently.

REPLY.

They may be due to glaucoma, eye strain, or fatigue. If your eyes are normal they are probably without significance. Almost any one can see black floaters before his eyes if he looks for them. Busy people don't take time to look.

DON'T EXPOSE YOURSELF.

M. T. writes: How can one avoid infection with scabies while living in a house where the whole family is infected?

REPLY.

Expose yourself as little as possible. Use separate towels, washbowls, and soap. Above all, avoid wearing gloves used by others. Use sulphur ointment, especially on the hands.

NEIGHBOR TRESPASSES.

Chicago, July 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The house next to me is just 4 inches from my lot line. The man who lives there says he can use the walk at the side of my house whenever he pleases without my consent. He wants to do some work on his house. Has he the right to use my walk without my permission? T. M.

No. He is not entitled to come on your land without your consent.

SHORT WEIGHT ICE.

Chicago, July 8.—[Friend of the People.]—I would like the city sealer or bureau of weights and measures to know about the icemen in our neighborhood. I am positive they are short weighting us and give us only about half what we pay for. Can you look into this for us?

W. C. H.

Investigation shows that the icemen were selling scored artificial ice and they were led to believe that the weighing of this was unnecessary. The deputies gave them summons to appear and advised them of the city ordinance which makes it mandatory that they weigh all ice sold.

REDUCTION IN RENT.

Chicago, July 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In March, 1930, I signed a lease on an apartment for one year, agreeing to pay $87.50 per month. When the year was up I asked the landlord if he could reduce the rent a little, and he lowered it to $52.50 per month, but we did not sign a new lease. Does the old lease at $87.50 still hold good even though we are paying only $52.50 now?

2. My sister, 19 years of age, signed for an art course. The firm she works for cut salaries to such an extent that she cannot afford to keep on with the course. The art school threatens to sue for the balance she agreed to pay. Does the fact that she is only 19 years old protect her in any way? Must she pay? MRS. E.

1. No.

2. No. Girls are of age at eighteen. The mere fact that a pupil becomes dissatisfied or unable to take the course does not free him from liability on the tuition contract nor entitle him to recover payments that he has made. He must show some additional defense, such as minority, breach of contract by the school, or fraud. The written contract legally supersedes terms that may have been discussed but were not incorporated in the writing. The school is ordinarily entitled to recover the agreed tuition. While the pupil is theoretically entitled to credit for the saving that the school enjoys by having one pupil less to serve, it is difficult to prove that such saving is appreciable.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

SAVED AGAIN! Or saved some more! Or so France says. Anyhow, she announces she is now dashing to the rescue of Germany. France reminds us of the old-time melodrama. You remember, the villain says, "Ha, ha, my proud beauty, so you thought to spurn muh love? Then die!" And he raps her over the bean with a club and ties her to the railroad track just as the fast mail train is heard approaching in the distance. Nearer and nearer comes the train! Heavens! Must that lovely young gel be crushed beneath the cruel wheels of yon oncoming train? But no! Look! Out bounds the hero. With one stroke of a knife he frees the poor gel from the ropes that held her to the rails and lifts her from the track just as the train dashes past. "Foiled again, Jack Dalton!" shrieks the bero. "I arrived just in the nick of time!" That's France all over. We wish the French didn't have such a strong sense of the dramatic. Some day they are going to stub their toes or something and not get out to the center of the stage quick enough. F'instance, it wouldn't surprise us none if she hasn't missed her cue this time.

A LADY TAKES THE VEIL.

Vain world, I here renounce
All thy crude pomps and shows.
The devil cannot pounce
On men in this sweet close
Where virgin lilies spring
Beside the garden path,
And nones and vespers ring
To mollify God's wrath.

Flesh, thou canst charm me not—
Either my own or others.
Love, thou art well forgot.
Here pure devotion smothers
All fires of earthly passion—
Ah, fierce they were and blasting—
The while I meekly fashion
My soul by prayer and fasting.

Dear God, I hope he every day reflects
How pale I grow behind the convent door,
And that that other grieves if he suspects
I had been his if he had kissed once more.

THE MOST CONTEMPTIBLE, lowest down, never to be sufficiently detested thieves we have ever heard of were those who raided the German embassy in Washington the other night and stole a lot of likker out of the cellar. Anybody that would steal anything from the German embassy under the present circumstances would rob a little baby in Lincoln park of its milk bottle. It is an act so mean, so horrible, so utterly abhorrent to all the principles of civilization that we glance over the 27,000 words in the English language in vain. It is impossible to find words that can adequately express the loathing, the scorn we have for the unspeakable persons who would commit such a crime.

THE SCRIP issued by the board of education in lieu of real money to the teachers seems faulty in many respects, but especially in that it's so drab in appearance and hasn't any eagles or flags or beautiful vistas on 'em, nor big gold seals, nor ribbons. Often when scrip or stock certificates or other things like that are not good as collateral they can be used in other useful ways. We papered our back bedroom one time with some very lovely stock certificates issued by the Dream On Sweet Maid Consolidated Oil and Silver Mine corporation [Unlimited]. The certificates had a lovely castle on the Rhine in one corner and three perfectly splendid goobookah birds in another corner, and great big gold seals and lovely blue ribbons all over them. When we found the certificates of the Dream On Sweet Maid Consolidated Oil and Silver Mine corporation [Unlimited] it only caused raucous laughter when presented anywhere for payment, so we just took them and papered the back bedroom. As money the certificates were a washout; as wall paper they were simply swell.

JULY 16, 1915.

CHICAGO.—Officials of the Chicago Surface Lines will not contest the car men's award which is to be made public by the arbitration board today. State's Attorney Hoyne worked all last evening drafting the formal award. The 3 cents an hour increase brings the wages up to a maximum of 35 cents for the first year of the two year contract and for the second year the maximum will be 36 cents. Acceptance of the award by the companies means that they will give the men an annual aggregate increase in pay of approximately $1,250,000 of which $800,000 will go to the motormen and conductors.

LONDON.—Abandoning for the moment their attempt to outflank Warsaw from the south, the Germans, probably under Field Marshal von Hindenburg, have renewed their attack on the Polish capital from the north. They captured a large number of prisoners south of Kolno, a Berlin statement says, and occupied Przasnyzse, 50 miles north of Warsaw, after storming the works.

LONDON.—The Anglo-French forces at the Dardanelles under command of Sir Ian Hamilton carried two miles of trenches after desperate fighting.

JULY 16, 1901.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—So far as the closing of the plants owned by the American Sheet Steel, Steel Hoop, and Tinplate companies is concerned, the first day's developments in the gigantic strike of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers resulted favorably for the strikers.

CHICAGO.—As Elijah II., John Alexander Dowie started his Zion City real estate boom with a prayer. He disposed of the leaseholds on nearly 300 lots and bound his followers to pay in rentals over $150,000. After a rest from his sales of real estate the self-proclaimed prophet ordered his twentieth century chariot. With imposing bodyguards he swept down Elijah boulevard, turned on Sheridan road, and proceeded seve miles to the office of the clerk of the County court of Lake county. There he formally declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States, while at the same moment the British flag swung lazily above the United States flag far up on the tower of Zion City.

CHICAGO.—The first signs of relief from the long dry spell are reported from various points in Kansas, Missouri, and Illinois. At Wichita, Kas., when the people felt the first drops falling they impressed the town band into service and marched around the streets gathering an impromptu procession and wound up at the procathedral, where they held a thanksgiving service.

WASHINGTON. — At 1:45 o'clock this morning the President's favorable condition remains unchanged and he is sleeping quietly. At 7 p. m. Drs. D. W. Bliss, J. K. Barnes, J. J. Woodward, and Robert Reyburn issued this bulletin: "The President has continued to do well during the day. The afternoon fever has been slighter than on any day since the 3d. Pulse, 98: temperature, 100.4; respiration, 20."

WASHINGTON.—Senator Cameceo, the Venezuelan minister, saw Guiteau shoot the President. He says that when Guiteau raised his pistol to fire the first shot his air was that of a calm, determined man. After having fired he became agitated and shot the second time at random. When the people cried out to kill the assassin, he seemed full of terror. The fellow is, besides being a cold-blooded ruffian, an arrant coward.

LONDON.—The heat in England was intense today. The thermometer marked 137 in the sun at Wimbledon.

CINCINNATI, O. — The working brewers of Cincinnati, to the number of 600, presented to their employers a demand for a reduction of the hours of daily labor from 15 hours to 13½ hours. Three employing brewers acceded to the demand. The strikers marched through the streets of Cincinnati visiting all the breweries. They seem to have the sympathy of the people with them.

IN DEFENSE OF KANSAS.

Chicago, July 12.—To begin with, I'm a Kansan. Then, of course, you know what I'm going to write about. Yes, that editorial, "This Is the Matter with Kansas." Of all illogical, insane—oh, well—forgive him—he knows not what he does. If he [the worthy who wrote this editorial] had ever lived in Kansas, he would soon find that heat here, "tempered by the lake breezes," is much more oppressive than the heat in Kansas, owing to the excessive humidity of the air here, and he forgets that "hot winds" are winds—which one doesn't have here. Perhaps he doesn't know that, due to the aforementioned fact of humidity, 100 degrees F. and upwards can be easier borne in Kansas than 90 degrees F. heat here.

And what does he know about life in Kansas? Why, I, living alternately there and here, look upon Kansas as a state of happy days. And what is more, I'm going back to that "underprivileged" state. And, speaking of flatness of Kansas, has he ever driven through eastern Kansas where most of the people live? It's so hilly that one longs for the smooth levels of the road between Chicago and St. Louis and "groans of growing corn." Again the locale is wrong. Kansas grows wheat. If you wish to hear the groans, go downstate, man, go downstate.

"Joyousness being out of expectation," does the writer known Kansans are incredible optimists, that every village of theirs is a city, every city a metropolis? And as to baseball, Kansas supports its minor league teams better than most states. And as to the majors, well, ask any barber in any town there his opinion on the outcome of the National league race and his answer won't be a short one. As to books and magazines—well, Kansans read more per person than Illinoisans—that's as good an answer as any; and as to fashions in clothes, why, one thing I like about Chicago is that I don't have to spend so much money on clothes. Back in Kansas keeping up with the Joneses is a deadly serious affair. Swimming pools? Why even our town of 5,000 had one, not to mention the Y. M. C. A. tank.

Going back to the "ruthless topography," I agree that the western section of Kansas is flat. Does not the writer know that there is beauty in all things and not least of all in the great plains? Has the writer seen a Kansas sunset? A harvest moon? The gold wheat before harvest, waving with the wind beneath the midday sun? Has the man ever heard the meadow lark in the morning? Build artificial heights to obscure the morning and evening sun, to stop the breezes and make breathing as difficult as it is here?

Let's change the subject. Speaking about a state in which there was "once good stuff," perhaps a gentleman at Senn, a future football coach at Notre Dame, a basketball coach at Northwestern, a poet named Masters, and another, Walt Mason; a writer, William Allen White; a Vice President of the United States, and one million eight hundred thousand other people will say that there still is good stuff in the body politic and that nothing is the matter with Kansas.

JAYHAWK.

FOR MORE JOB HOLDERS.

Chicago, July 10.—We listened to Mr. Oscar Hewitt talk on the radio Friday evening, July 10, regarding city contracts. I think it is about time that Mr. Hewitt and our honorable mayor find some constructive plan besides putting more men out of work and on the streets. That is all the citizens of Chicago have been hearing since the mayor has been put in office.

Mr. Hewitt compared the number of city employes in 1910 to those in 1931. Does Mr. Hewitt realize the number of city schools which have been built since 1910, and the upkeep they require? Does he realize all the city improvements that have been made and have to be operated by efficient men? We have a more beautiful city and one of the best school systems in the world. I believe it is about time that these fellows quit squabbling about the small fellow and hit on a plan where everybody will benefit, not only the fellow higher up.

E. F. LUTTON.

LAWYERS MAY NOT SOLICIT BUSINESS.

Chicago, July 12.—In the Voice of the People for July 11 one A. H. asks why it would not pay some bright lawyer to organize the small bondholders in the defunct apartment buildings in Chicago in order to enable them to act as a unit for their better protection.

The answer is simple: Lawyers are forbidden to solicit business. The reason for this is obvious enough. Were they able to do so their material success would no longer depend upon their honesty, integrity and professional skill, but upon their ability as salesmen, promoters or advertising copywriters. Abuses would creep in and the public would suffer.

In the problem presented by A. H. it is up to the small bondholders to get a lawyer, not for a lawyer to seek them out. DANIEL A. COWDRAN, RACE TRACK TIPS.

Chicago, July 10.—The United States mail service right now is being used by race track tipsters to fleece lovers of the sport of kings. Thousands of letters are daily in the mails telling of the infallible services of these racketeers. If every person receiving these bogus tips would send the circulars and the postmarked envelopes to the inspector general of the United States mails at Washington, D. C., these frauds would be behind the bars in a jiffy. GALLANT KNIGHT.

WHEAT.

Chicago, July 10.—The wheat cartoon by Mr. Orr on the front page of this morning's TRIBUNE has caused more comment on La Salle street than any similar cartoon in recent years. It is remarkably well done and its accuracy shows careful study of the situation. Mr. Orr is to be congratulated.

Mottram Tells Changing Story of Old England

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

R. H. MOTTRAM, author of "The Spanish Farm," has written another leisurely novel with 19th and 20th century England as its background in "Castle Island" [Harper's], published a few days ago. Mr. Mottram's manner of telling a story is so calm and quiet, his characters so devoid of anything striking or flamboyant, that to many readers this new book will hold little allure. To others, who have ample time for the slow enjoyment of a good book, this tale of the life of Stephen Dormer, from early childhood through adolescence and maturity to death, will afford hours of unhurried pleasure.

R. H. MOTTRAM.

"Mr. Mottram, besides relating the many and varied experiences of a boy born of a fine and honorable family and intent on maintaining its traditions for meticulous attention to duty and "keeping things right," also depicts the gradual decline of an epoch—that of the 19th century with its Victorian customs and standards of doing business—and the beginning of a new cycle, that of the 20th century, with its attendant emphasis on standardization, mass production, the submerging of individual enterprise, the growth of great industries, and the merging of many businesses into one.

The childhood of Stephen is beautifully done. Mr. Mottram is at his best in depicting the unfolding character of this boy whose father is the head of the Dormer bank in Eastbampton, an institution founded by Stephen's grandfather. The very first glimpse of the town in which most of the action of the book takes place is given with great originality and charm. The little boy has climbed to the roof of his beloved home, which in his heart he calls his "castle island," because it signifies to him the greatest beauty, solidarity and romance, and is looking out over the red slate roofs of the town—he calls them "the Red Sea"—to the "far distant shore," the open country beyond the suburbs. From this height the author describes Easthampton, its houses, its people, its businesses.

Doughty Dormer, Stephen's father, represents the old school prosperous English gentleman, who is trusted by all the customers of his bank, and who never fails in his duty. His mother is the intelligent partner to such a man, managing a huge and important household, bringing up her children in the traditions of the family and being adored by them, and giving a lifelong devotion to her husband. The Bank House, in which they all live, seems like a fortress of security, a landmark of honor and well-being.

The gradual changes which undermine this safety make up the major portion of the novel. And the greatest of all, of course, are those brought on by the war. Stephen, who fought to save the old, is unable to cope with the new and loses many of the things he valued most highly in life. His is a pathetic story echoed in fact by the experiences of thousands of world war veterans the world over. It is this sense of deep reality behind the writing of Mr. Mottram that makes it so poignant.

Another brand new book is "The Gaming Lady," by Alden Hatch [Farrar & Rhinehart]. This pleasantly light story, which by the way is the author's first novel, would be an amusing companion for a vacation—that is, if you wished as companion something that would not cause any tension of the work weary brain cells.

ROYALTY GIVES DANCE TONIGHT FOR BRITONS OF THE YOUNGER SET

LONDON, July 15.—(AP)—Buckingham palace tomorrow evening will respond for the first time since 1924 to lilting waltzes, rhythmic tangos, and the jazz tunes of the modern dance.

Youth of the empire's aristocracy will gather for the ball, which, lacking the formality of a state affair, is being given by the king and queen primarily for entertainment of the younger set. During the months of his majesty's illness and the succeeding period of recuperation the young people have seen almost no royal gaiety.

In accordance with precedent selection of music is made by the king and queen, but the prince of Wales, recently returned from an extensive South American tour, has requested two or three tangos.

Queen Mary, when at Windsor castle recently, asked to have the popular "Peanut Vendor" played for her by the Scots' guards and is understood to have included it in the music list.

The ballroom will contain the official dais and thrones for the king and queen with chairs for the prince of Wales and the duke and duchess of York. The royal portrait gallery will be used for sitting out dances.

In accordance with the queen's wish, there will be the customary royal cotillion and quadrille. The only official touch will be given by the advent of the royal procession, led by their majesties.

Officers have been warned they must leave their swords on the gilt chairs at the edge of the ballroom while dancing, since not to do so might endanger the ladies' gowns.

but on the contrary would prove light and gay and occasionally make you wonder what would happen next.

There are many young girls, I am sure, a vittly approaching the end of their teens who have spent thoughtful moments in contemplation of a future which at that period in life appears to have so many delightful possibilities, and who would throw everything else aside to be able to step into the adventurous slippers of a certain young Lady Victoria Vernon, known to us in this book as "the gaming lady."

Lady Victoria, daughter of the marquis of Plymouth, is an attractive young virgin whose gambling father and somewhat jealous stepmother are much too occupied to spend time in contemplation of their daughter's activities. Consequently, they conveniently arrange for her visit to wealthy relatives whose social sphere includes Bar Harbor, Long Island and New York.

The situation of this as yet unklassed young lady fresh from the barred doors of convents and the ever watchful eye of a governess and suddenly plunged into all night dancing and p tting parties, staid formal dinners and airplane dashes through the sky, while not unheard of before, is somewhat unique. She does not have any too much money, either, but her gaming fortune opportunely remedies this.

Vickey, as Lady Victoria Vernon becomes better known to her playmates, has several quite narrow escapes, not airplane accidents, either, but in the end finds herself contemplating a much pleasanter future than faced her when we picked up the book.

Mr. Hatch's style is light and airy, in keeping with his subject matter.

Good morning!

There was QUITE a FLUTTER and a FLURRY Yesterday afternoon at the Cinema THEATER Caused NOT by the Slightly HIGHBROW element that Usually PATRONIZES the house, but By GAY YOUNG THINGS [Feminine gender] Who are SIMPLY CRAZY about MARLENE Dietrich and SEEK at every OPPORTUNITY to Solve the SECRET of Her MYSTERY. GARBO and DIETRICH! These Be MAGIC names so far as The FEMALE of the Film-going PUBLIC is CONCERNED and they mean a LOT To some MEN, who, however, are LIKE to BURST a blood vessel DENYING the fact. "Three Loves" [far fetched title!] is A SILENT picture, SAID to have Proved MARLENE'S short ROAD To FAME. It is A QUEER concoction Rather NUTTILY strung TOGETHER, and the MANNER In which the SEQUENCES play HIDE and SEEK keeps Your COGITATIONS hopping About like FLEAS. [Speaking of Same what ARE those Little THINGS that BITE Your ankles in MOVIE Theaters?] The HERO is a ROMANTIC YOUTH who makes a MARRIAGE of convenience. On the TRAIN that bears him And his BRIDE awa' he Encounters a LADY In SORE DISTRESS. "HELP HELP!" she begs, just Like HARVEY Woodruff. So, forgetting ALL about Mrs. LE BLANC [that's his name—Le Blanc] He TEARS off AFTER The lady LATER known as STASHA, and the Very QUEER man with Her who is One DR. Karoff. He becomes INVOLVED in a STRANGE affair that has To do with a COUPLE of MURR-RR-DERR-S! But I won't say any more about THOSE. The ACTING is intelligent, though CLUMSY DIRECTION rather SPOILS Its EFFECT. However, There is some STUNNING Photography, and atmosphere, SETS and SCENERY are Intriguingly FOREIGN. Subtitles are STILTED and rather Too Sparse, considering the DIRECTORIAL drawbacks. "Three Loves" is NOT one of Germany's great pictures. BUT it DOES have Marlene, SO I PREDICT for it a RUN at the CINEMA.

See you tomorrow.

Hollywood, Cal., July 15.—[Special.]—Unless some new hitch intervenes, the Dempsey-Taylor divorce, despite each side's previous protestations of a last ditch battle, will unreel smoothly in Reno, Nev.

Jack's lawyer, R. A. Burns of Reno, and Estelle's counsel, Joseph Scott of San Francisco, are to thresh out last differences in Los Angeles starting today, and soon after the approaching conclusion of the actress' present film, "Street Scene," at United Artists, you probably will hear of her dropping innocently in at Reno, where once Jack files a divorce complaint, she can accept service, file a counter complaint, and with Dempsey passively doing nothing further, quickly secure an uncontested decree.

Columbia, the largest independent movie plant, has devoted recent weeks to cornering the uncontracted ace directors, with result that Mal St. Clair, Rowland V. Lee, Edward Sedgwick and Luther Reed are to record Columbia's next special stories on celluloid.

Elizabeth Patterson, who was on the Chicago stage with Richard Bennett this winter, Lew Ayres and Anita Louise were making a scene in Universal's "Heaven on Earth" in northern California near Stockton when a stiff breeze rattled the leaves on the trees so greatly that the scene could not be recorded. The sound staff had to climb the trees and strip them of leaves to go ahead with the action.

No sooner had this company returned to the home lot at Universal City this week, that retakes were discovered necessary and they adjourned to the "back lot" to make them. Again sound complications arose, this time from the frogs in the stream that winds through the grounds.

The scene finally was shot when the harassed company armed themselves with revolvers, and at a given word, fired three times. This terrified the frogs into silence for nearly a minute, and in that one minute of silence Miss Patterson, Ayres, and Miss Louise dashed frantically through their lines to get them recorded.

Fanchon and Marco, trainers and producers of stage dancing acts, who for eight years have been putting on most of the vaudeville that accompanies movie showings in California chain theaters, are now branching out to the legitimate, with Ethel Barrymore and "The School for Scandal" as the ambitious ice breaker. The Fanchon-Marco combination plans to take dramatic shows of proven popularity and run them in one night showings in the twenty or thirty smaller cities of the state which have been denied a look at a good stage production for years.

Billy Dove has entered her final divorce decree from Ervin Willat, director, but says, "I'll talk about anything you ask me, except questions whether I am going to marry Howard Hughes or not." Her engagement to Producer Hughes was locally printed a few months back, and so were items stating that a trousseau was being prepared, but the course of romance struck a snag at just about the time the final divorce decree seemed to have smoothed everything.

Clara Bow is back in town with her hair a new shade. It is reddish chestnut. She says it's the real color of her hair which she has had to wear auburn, orange, black, and gold ever since movie ambition first played a part in her life at the age of 16.

Zionists Pick Control Board Without Radicals

BASEL, July 15.—(AP)—After more than two weeks of debate the steering committee of the Zionist congress this afternoon submitted a slate for the new resident Zionist executive. It was approved, 103 to 42, at the closing session.

The revisionists, excluded from the new executive, voted against the slate and the radicals, the only other party not represented on the new executive, abstained from voting, the Jewish telegraphic agency reports.

The new executive, which will guide the Zionist organization for the next two years consists of two Laborites, two General Zionists and one representative of the Mizrachi, Orthodox Zionists. The members of the executive are Dr. Chaim Arlosoroff, Palestine Laborite, Prof. Selig Brodetsky, British General Zionist, Heschel Farbstein, Polish Nizrachist, Emanuel Neumann, American General Zionist, and Berl Locker, American Laborite.

Hearers Shout in Approval of Ravinia Opera

"Love of Three Kings" Thrills Audience.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"L'Amore dei Tre Re" as dramatic poem and as music, the most magnificent work of its kind in the operatic repertoire, went on at Ravinia last night. At the end of the second act the audience shouted its applause. When this happens at an operatic performance it means something out of the common.

Probably the most striking part of the performance was the way that Lucrezia Bori and Edward Johnson, the Fiora and Avito of the cast, turned their song and action to the portrayal of youth, struggling, unavailing, pitiful youth, in a contest doomed from the start to failure against pitiless age, pictured in Virgilio Lazzari's suspicious old volcano of an Archibaldo. This was something that all tragic opera should be and a great deal succeeds in not being—great drama emphasized, underlined, glorified by great music, and superbly projected from the stage. Every handclap, every shout that went up from the audience was entirely justified. The occasion really deserved more.

The third of the three kings, Manfredo, was sung by Giuseppe Danise in perhaps the most difficult rôle of all, because there is so little striking about it, as compared with the others. Mr. Danise managed to make an effective and eloquent bit out of his solo address to Fiora before his departure. But the vivid pictures were those of Miss Bori, with Mr. Johnson and Miss Bori again with Mr. Lazzari. And the vivid music was that of Mr. Papi with the orchestra, directing the piece like the fine that it is.

Herbert Butler, violinist, and Heniot Levy, pianist, two of the city's eminent pedagogues, combined forces as soloists in a recital at Kimball hall yesterday afternoon. They began in a joint performance of Beethoven's Sonata in C minor, continuing separately in groups of solos for their respective instruments, and registering a marked success in both capacities with an audience that crowded the hall.

Women Plan Campaign for Scenic Highway

Hear Lecture, Foster Tour of Illinois Roads.

As chairman of the National Council for Protection of Roadside Beauty, she, with her husband, had just motored from New England, where they had been engaged in studying the views to be obtained from the highways, what made them better, and whatever might hinder the enjoyment of fine landscapes. Since the first of this year, Mrs. Lawton explained, they have spent most of their time making such surveys in various parts of the country.

This morning the Lawtons will confer with Mrs. Howard C. Phillips, chairman of the billboard and roadside committee of the Lake Forest Garden club of Illinois. That group, with 103 additional member clubs of the Garden club of Illinois, started the move for a highway beauty survey in Illinois. Mr. and Mrs. Lawton will make such a tour of Illinois highways.

Photographs will be taken, to be shown as lantern slides to various clubs later. If, for instance, Mrs. Lawton observes that a vista of rolling country or a view of distant valleys and hills is obliterated by a large signboard placed at the bend of the highway, a notation will be made. If she observes that raw scars due to highway construction are repaired by plantings of trees, shrubs or other vegetation, she will make a note of that.

She will lecture in various towns. Next Monday night, for instance, she will address the Rotary club of Springfield. The purpose of her series of tours, financed in large part, she said, by the American Nature association, is the issuance of an illustarted report. That report will be used to inform the public.

"Not only billboards, but unsightly country filling stations and hot dog stands act as eyesores," Mrs. Lawton said. "My idea is that eventually highway zoning will forbid the erection of any more busines buildings on highways, except where actually needed. Two counties in Maryland have a zoning ordinance which ruled that a place of business may have only one sign on it. In Oyster Bay township in Massachusetts there is a zoning ordinance.

"In Connecticut a law that auto dumps must be licensed has removed 2,000 of them in two years. In Pennsylvania twice a year a clean up campaign to get down illegal signs on private property as well as public property is undertaken. Last year, of 32,000 taken down, 8,000 were on private property.

"We do not ask that billboards be banished, but only kept in commercial districts in cities or towns. Billboard companies have claimed that rural signs constitute only 5 per cent of their business."

GRACE MOORE.

After the ceremony, witnessed by Samuel Chotzinoff, New York music critic, and Saa Dedra, wealthy Cuban friend of the bridegroom, the couple were guests at a garden party attended by the elite of the Riviera.

The other guests at the party, including celebrated authors, actors and society folk, came in dress varying from formal afternoon attire to pajamas and one piece bathing suits.

Among the guests were Charlie Chaplin, Gloria Swanson, Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Arlen, Signora Arturo Toscanini, Maurice Dekobra and Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso.

Wonders If He's Tenor.

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Broadway wondered tonight whether the young Spanish moving picture actor, Valentine Parara, who was married in Cannes, France, today to Grace Moore, blond American soprano, is a tenor.

Recently the slender, internationally known singer was asked what type of husband she would choose. Her terse reply was that she would marry "anything but a tenor."

The Moore home is in Jellico, Tenn., where her father, R. L. Moore, has a dry goods store, and in 1928 a delegation of 125 Tennessee friends heard their idol score a hit as "Mimi" in "La Boheme" as she made her debut as a Metropolitan Opera company artist.

Her almost meteoric rise with successes as "Juliette" in "Romeo and Juliette" and as the flaxen haired "Marquerite" in "Faust" followed.

Miss Moore rose to stardom through musical comedy from a home town church choir. She's now scarcely 30 and has sung before European royalty. Both in New York and abroad she has found time to devote herself to social activity in theatrical and art circles.

The Tennessee girl met Señor Parara while they were passengers on the liner Ile de France about two months ago. Parara is 32 years old, and then was returning from his first appearance in Hollywood. It is said they now plan to go to Bayreuth for a concert conducted by Toscanini and then make a film together in France.

American Negroes Called New Race by Writer

American Negroes are treated as a new race, and not as transplanted Africans, in a book the manuscript of which was finished yesterday by Edwin R. Embree, president of the Julius Rosenwald fund. The book, "Brown America: The Story of a New Race," will be published in October. The author gives facts and figures in proof of his contention that the American Negro has the blood of many races in his veins, and is, in fact, a member of the newest race on the earth today.

T. J. Houston, Chicago, New Shriners' Chief; Others Are Advanced

Cleveland, O., July 15.—(AP)—Shriners of North America elected a new potentate today, advanced the remainder of the officers a noteh, and then resumed the festivities of their 57th annual convention tonight with a mammoth illuminated parade.

The imperial council elected Thomas J. Houston of Chicago, imperial potentate, and started George L. Olendorf of Springfield, Mo., on the way to succeed him eleven years hence.

The election of Houston, a 54 year old Chicago insurance broker, clubman, and athletic leader, was a formality in accordance with the custom of moving each officer up each year, but Olendorf's selection came after two ballots in, a six sided contest. The Missourian was elected imperial outer guard, the first of 11 offices he will go through before becoming potentate.

He lacked a majority on the first ballot, but four candidates then withdrew and his election followed.

Imperial chief rabban—John N. Sebrell, Norfolk, Va.

Imperial treasurer—James C. Burger, Denver.

Cleveland Cops Find Bar In Tent on Downtown Lot

Cleveland, O., July 15.—(AP)—A tent on a downtown lot which flaunted an "information" sign but had something else inside was pulled down today under police orders. A raiding squad reported they found a 60 foot bar in operation in the tent yesterday. They arrested one man and closed the place, but made a second visit and arrested another man when they observed the tent again doing a rushing business.

Loyola Summer School Figures Break Old Records

The largest summer school registration in its history was reported yesterday by Loyola university. Students and members of religious orders in the summer session number 1,444. The best previous record was last summer, when 1,290 were registered. Of this summer's total, 413 are men students, 275 women, 725 women in religious orders, and four are priests.

Bad Sitting Posture Causes Unsightly Hump at Shoulders

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"I'm getting old. Look at that hump on my back!" That's what came from the thirty year old person standing before the triple mirror getting a threefold glimpse of the jersey suit.

Women run along placidly enough about their silhouettes until a definite projection is sighted. And this one up around the back shoulder line usually puts the fear of discard into them. There's nothing like a tight fitting topcoat or suit coat to sharpen the intelligence about that "old-gal's hump" on the shoulder blade section. Not a formal evening frock exposes it quite so decisively.

It's bad enough, however, in the formal frock, or in the bathing suit. Anyway, a protruding abdomen isn't nearly so age-piling as that wad of fat below the back neckline.

Of course, it begins with bad sitting posture: slumped head over book, typewriter or desk. Thus the muscles are set for cushioning with adipose. Women who look bony in other respects may gather this age insignia. Women who are inclined to flesh suffer it. But of all the backs, this roll decorates most discouragingly is that of the short, plump darling with not much neck. It makes her look twice as fat and dumpy.

And that fat doesn't diet off easily. In fact, sometimes it won't diet off at all. You have to get after it with a broomstick or something just as vigorous. I say the broomstick because you can use that household implement for corrective exercise work. You simply have to exercise to reshape that kind of back. The broomstick will serve, but a straight long stick like the wash boiler stick or a curtain pole [not too long] is better. Grasp the thing with both hands and bring into from abdomen line, up overhead and down the back as far as you can reach. Here's another way to get rid of that age-weight up there. Just hold your hands high overhead and slowly but firmly force the arms back, with the action coming mostly at the shoulder pits.

Jersey Unrivaled as Chic Sport Material

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Jersey has no rival in the hearts of the great Paris dressmakers this summer. When they set out to cut a sports dress or coat or whatnot they just can't bear to do it with anything but jersey, it seems, from the number of chic little jersey ensembles that are running around the grandest of grand couture salons.

It isn't enough to have an outfit in just one kind of jersey. Not in the least. Don't be monogamous, says Paris. Marry two jerseys and have a really chic outfit. Here in the style capitol they unite silk and wool jersey, plain and clocky jersey, cotton and silk jersey, lace and solid jersey, plain and printed jersey and so on indefinitely.

The Lucile ensemble shown illustrates the combination that is most successful; that of a silk jersey frock with a wool jersey coat. The frock is purest white. Nothing is more fashionable than a pure white daytime dress this summer. Have it cut simple, like the Lucile dress shown. It is a fitted, sleeveless waistcoat with a slender skirt, made ample in front by setting inverted plaits under the edges of the two bias bands at the front of the skirt, three plaits in all, set quite low on the skirt.

Over this dress Lucile places a coat of pure bright lemon yellow wool jersey, which has loose sleeves and inset pockets under the buttoned panels at the sides. No collar mars the trim neckline, but a brown and yellow jersey scarf, with a very wide end, is sewed to the right side of the neck. The three-quarters length of this coat is a smart length for summer.

Society Cheers Polo Victory of Argentines

SOCIETY sat in the sweltering heat at Onwentsia yesterday afternoon and watched the International polo teams play their second match on the sun baked field. Everybody felt sorry for the players and sorrier for the horses, but there was general rejoicing at the Argentine victory, because it means there'll be another game on Saturday.

Despite the heat the attendance was as impressive socially as that of an opening night of opera or the Assembly. Although not a breeze stirred around the grand stands or the box enclosure, most of the women managed miraculously to look much cooler than they felt. The men sensibly doffed their coats and consumed soft drinks at frequent intervals.

One of the coolest looking ladies at the polo match was Mrs. B. Stewart Hibbert, who watched the game from the Earle H. Reynolds box. She wore a printed crêpe frock of white and pink against a black background, with a bolero jacket and wide white chiffon collar. Her hat was one of those diminutive white twisted turbans so popular this season. Also with the Reynoldses were Mr. and Mrs. Farwell Winston and Mrs. Hendricks K. Whitman [Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor].

Mrs. Reynolds was in soft pink chiffon and a large brown hat of loosely woven straw, Mrs. Winston in salmon colored crêpe with a matching hat, and Mrs. Whitman's smartly sunburned skin was offset by a white crêpe frock and white panama hat lined in brown.

In the box next to them Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn had as her guests Congressman and Mrs. Robert L. Bacon of New York, Mrs. Paul D. Mills of New York, mother of James Mills, an Old Aiken player, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson and their daughter, Joan Ryerson. Mrs. Linn wore a pale green chiffon gown with a waist length cape wrap and a wide green straw hat and held an old fashioned bouquet with a stiff paper frill. Mrs. Bacon wore a yellow printed chiffon and Mrs. Mills a coral crêpe dress and a blue straw hat with coral trimming.

Still More About the Day at Onwentsia.

Still others at Onwentsia were Mr. and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, the latter in a white dress and blue and white hat. They had with them in their box Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, all in white; Miss Edith Cummings, in red printed crêpe and white hat, and Mrs. Ronald Talbot in a white sleeveless frock and white hat.

The Walter S. Brewsters were here to their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Hodges, Jr., and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, and Mr. and Mrs. Willard N. Boyden [Angela Johnston], who returned recently from their wedding trip.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter had a family group, including her mother, Mrs. John R. Williams of Washington, D. C.; her daughter, Miss Nancy Leiter; her niece and nephew, Ashley and Colin Campbell, and Miss Catherine Hare of Long Island, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Niblick had a luncheon party at Arlington before driving to Lake Forest for the polo match with their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney of New York. The Charles F. Glores came from Arlington, too, with their large party of guests, which included Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dixon of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Bryce, and Henry Pearce, Jr.

George Brown of Maryland was with his son-in-law and daughter, the John Wentworths, and the William Bliss of Washington, who have been in Lake Forest since Sunday, were with their hosts, the Laurance H. Armours and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr., the latter in brown and pink flowered chiffon and a brown horsehair hat wreathed in pink and white blossoms, spent a great deal of their time at the rail to get a close view of the game.

Among others observed were Mrs. John Payne Kellogg, hatless, and wearing a red and white printed frock; Mrs. William H. Mitchell, in a bright yellow sleeveless dress and also minus a hat; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, Mrs. E. A. Cudahy Jr., in a white sleeveless frock; Mr. and Mrs. John Borden, Miss Constance Hasler, Mrs. Samuel Insull, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hertz, Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. John T. Pirie, Mrs. Albert B. Dewey Jr., Miss Caroline B. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Butler.

Toward late July the resort season approaches the height of its gayety, and correspondence from those reporters who keep tab on our vacationing townsfolk takes on a livelier tone.

Watch Hill, R. I., according to our informer, is well populated now with resorters who go there annually for the golf, swimming, and informal entertainments which make the resort popular. Hospitality is the order of the day, and every household is having a succession of visitors.

Last week-end twenty-four planes of the Aviation Country Club of America made Watch Hill their first stop on their first annual cruise. The 10 women and 30 men pilots, after anchoring their planes in the bay Friday night, were met and entertained at a dinner and dance. Practically all of Watch Hill participated in their reception and saw that they were hospitably taken care of until they took off the next morning for Nantucket.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, who spend their summers at Dromley house, on Ocean drive, are among the most popular hosts in the colony. Last Saturday night they gave a large dinner at Ocean house and on Sunday a luncheon at their residence.

Tony Sarg, the famous creator of marionettes, was a guest last week of Mrs. George R. Nichols and went for a short cruise on C. K. G. Billings' yacht. Mrs. Oren E. Taft, who's been visiting at various resorts in the east for several weeks, is now at Watch Hill for a 10 days' stay with Mrs. A. A. Stewart of New York before sailing for Europe.

Miss Eleanor Belding Married to G. W. Curtis.

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Belding, daughter of Mrs. Hiram H. Belding of Deerfield, to George William Curtis, son of Dr. and Mrs. Francis G. Curtis of Boston, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at Trinity church in Highland Park. After Aug. 15 Mr. and Mrs. Curtis will reside at Ashfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sheppard Stone and their family aren't going to Lake Rosseau, Ont., this year, but will lease a house on the north shore for the rest of the summer. Miss Lucy Stone who returned a few weeks ago from Vassar, is taking a short course at the Northwestern summer school.

Musical Observer to Take Over Musical Courier

New York, July 15.—(AP)—The Musical Observer, a monthly publication devoted to music, will be merged Aug. 15 with the Musical Courier, described as the oldest musical journal in America.

George H. Hilbert, owner of the Musical Observer and the Metronome, an orchestra and band monthly, announced he had become sole owner of the Musical Courier company by a stock purchase. The editor in chief of the Musical Courier is Leonard Liebling.

No change in the personnel or policy is contemplated, Hilbert said.

Shame for Errors, with the Dunce Cap, Belongs to the Past

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Shame is a dreadful word.

What does it picture to you?

It's a feeling best not felt by any one. But chiefly not by a child—little or big. Certainly it's not a feeling that you should arouse in him for anything your child has done. And I mean literally ANYTHING.

He may be sorry or regretful—he may recognize that he had been, we'll say, lazy or rude or inconsiderate, that is, if he's old enough. He may be made to see that he must do differently. But he must not be made to feel ashamed. It is a destructive feeling.

It is a feeling which destroys self-respect. And it is just as important for a child to be self-respectful as to be respectful of other people.

If your daughter fails at school, or if your son lies to you or takes things from your pocketbook don't try to arouse a sense of shame in them.

That is why dunce caps are a thing of the past.

Many children are delinquent because their parents have shamed them before friends and neighbors—and in their own hearts.

That is why we avoid until the last gasp sending delinquent boys and girls to corrective institutions like reform schools. A sense of shame accompanies such an experience, which has a bad effect on a boy or girl. Instead we have probation officers, boys' clubs, Big Brother and Big Sister movements—to save them the sense of shame.

All this doesn't mean that we sit by and do nothing when our children are crude or rude or lazy or lie or steal. We do do something—we ferret out the cause—we try to understand—we change conditions or our own behavior—we give affection and companionship and loyalty—we correct what is warping the growth of our child. But we don't make him feel ashamed.

Princess Elizabeth Plays Great Lady to Cousin

LONDON, July 15.—(AP)—Princess Elizabeth still is a very little girl, but she can act the great lady. This is the newest story Londoners are chuckling over.

No longer allowed to wheel out her baby sister, Princess Elizabeth pushes a perambulator with her favorite doll in it.

"Very well, then," said the little Princess, "I shan't marry you when I grow up." She stalked away very haughtily.

FLOWER OF THORNS

By Marie Conway Oemler

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and suicide of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. A porter's lodge, facing the Dixie highway, gives her the idea of starting a hot dog stand. She arranges with a milkman, who says he is Mr. Forman, foreman of the Winstead dairies, to deliver milk. He is really Samuel Forman Winstead, only son of Henry Winstead, town banker and holder of the Oakleigh mortgage. Sam, well educated and traveled, prefers farming to finance. The Rutherford ladies "didn't know" the Winsteads, of carpetbagging stock, whose estate adjoined Oakleigh. Sally's milkman helps her get the Shack ready for business. Antiques from Oakleigh are offered for sale. The venture is a huge success. The young set from town patronizes the Shack and Sally meets the handsome and romantic Lowndes Jennings. The interest on the mortgage falls due and Sally receives a receipted bill.

INSTALLMENT X.

A ROYAL RAGE.

Sally liked Sam; she trusted him; she was forced to defer to his opinion. Indeed, she would have missed him sadly, she admitted. But, for all that, he couldn't be expected to understand how a Rutherford could feel about Oakleigh; how a member of an old family must feel about a threatened ancestral home. How could he?

"You're pretty fond of the place, naturally. It's home," said he sympathetically.

"Yes, it is home. I love it better than anything in the world. I—I think I would rather die than see Oakleigh go." She spoke with passion, so that he looked at her oddly, and said nothing.

Sam stepped into the kitchen for a cheery word with Moses, who was always punctiliously polite and respectful, and always careful to call him "Mister Forman" as often as he could crowd the name into a sentence. Moses was making coffee when two buyers came into the shop.

One was tall and stout, the other smaller and thinner. Their manner was familiar and they retained their hats.

Sally had one sampler, a very good old patchwork quilt of unusual pattern, and a colored engraving of New York harbor in the eighteen hundreds. The price was plainly marked.

"This all you got?" asked the older man.

"For the present, that is all," said Sally politely.

"I heard you had some good plunder at times. That's why we stopped by. I'm a buyer, miss. Mr. Myers is my name. What'll you take for the three things?"

"The prices are marked."

He laughed, and paused to light a cigar. When he spoke again the cigar was still in his mouth.

"That's all right for the rubes," said he. "But I'm in the same trade. What didya say you'd lemme have the three for?"

"The prices are marked."

"Say, you're a tight little one, sister! Didn't ya hear me say I was in the trade? I want them three pieces for a customer I got."

"I am sorry, but my prices are fixed. And I do not sell to the trade."

"What do you wish to buy?" asked Sally.

"O, just thought I'd give the place the once over, sister. But I see it ain't no use to talk business with you. You sure you won't sell me the three? Here's my price." He named half what she asked.

"No."

"Mean little gal! She ain't a bit nice! But say, how about a little ride tonight? Just me and you, huh? My friend here, Alf Wilkins, can't come. Now how about a little spin? Nice moonlight. Nice car. Nice gal." He reached over the counter and caught her hand before she could move. "Ain't that a cute lil' paw—gee, I sure want to see me and you drivin' in the moonlight!" He leered at her: "I can drive with one hand, sister."

Somebody came with long strides across the room and took him firmly by the collar. Half lifting, half pushing him, the dairyman ran him across the floor, and threw him out bodily.

"Get!" he ordered Alf Wilkins briefly.

The brute had touched her, he had taken her hand. He had spoken to her as to some pert serving wench—to her, Sally Rutherford! Never in all her life had such a thing happened to her. It brought to her, in a rush, the difference in her circumstances. This couldn't happen to grandpapa's darling granddaughter; but it could—and it did—happen to the keeper of a public hot dog stand. Anger almost choked her. She burst into tears.

Awkwardly, miserably, the young man stood looking at her, his face still slightly flushed. He read her feelings, and he understood that she was in a royal rage. None the less, she was crying, and that distressed him acutely.

"It's all in the day's work, Sally," he said unguardedly. "It wasn't pleasant, but it really didn't do you any harm. Be a sport and laugh it off! He got what was coming to him, good and plenty, and you haven't lost anything but your temper.

"That's right—be a good sport . . . learn to take it on the chin without yelling," he admonished. Considerately he turned aside and stood looking out of the open back window giving upon Oakleigh grounds. At that moment Maud Lucas' car stopped outside, and Maud herself, followed more sedately by five other girls, hurtled into the room.

"Sally, darling, we want you to plan us a special tea for tomorrow afternoon at five. We want your very nicest"—Maud began, and then stopped, her mouth open. Her eyes had fallen on the milkman's face as he turned. She clapped her hands and squealed.

"Of all the luck!" she shrieked joyously. "Look who's here! The mighty milkman, the butter and egg sheik! Everybody bow—girls, here's Sam Winstead, the hard to get at Sam Winstead, the great Sam Winstead himself!" And then to him: "Stand still, Sam—you can't make a nose dive through that back window. You're caught, fairly caught."

"I am fairly caught, Maud," said he, laughing. "And I wasn't even dreaming of going through any window—I was merely dazed by my good luck."

Sam Winstead! The boy from the mountain school . . . Sam Winstead! Sally went a little sick. How had she been so blind?

"Where have you been hiding, Sam Winstead? And what do you mean by sending regrets to two of my nicest parties?" demanded Maud, who had the impertinence of an adored and spoiled child. Even people who disapproved of her liked Maud Lucas.

"I haven't been hiding, my child. I've been working like a beaver. A milkman must, you understand," said he.

"O, Mr. Winstead, while we're so near your place, can't we visit the dairy?" they chorused eagerly. "Do let us! We've heard so much about it."

"And be properly introduced to my prize cows? Well, why not? White Clover Queen is almost royal—I know I'd rather see her than any two legged royalty I've ever heard of," he said. "You've got your car, and mine's outside."

"I'm going with you, Sam," said Maud firmly. "Sally, leave Moses in charge and come along with us. Do, Sally! If you only knew how hard it is to get hold of Sam Winstead and make him play the gallant you'd appreciate this offer at its proper worth, my child."

The milkman looked at Sally expectantly. Her eyes went right through him without seeing him.

"I couldn't manage it . . . not today, Maud. I'm so sorry! I've heard a great deal about Mr. Winstead's wonderful dairy, but I've never seen it. You asked me to plan you a special tea for tomorrow afternoon, didn't you? If you want it, I've got to stick to my job."

"O, Sally, I'd love to have you go with us," said generous Maud. "We'll be back here again after a while, honey—on our way back from Sam's El Dorado. We can't afford to lose this chance—he's too wary a bird. A bird in the hand is worth two in the dairy," she finished impudently. She ran out, followed by the other girls. The tall young man lingered a step or two behind. He leaned to Sally.

"Be a sport!" he pleaded coaxingly. "Besides, I never told you anything but the truth—my name is really Forman—Sam Forman Winstead."

"O, that!" said she with the best Rutherford manner. "What difference could that possibly make? Don't you remember, when you told me your name was Forman, you quoted 'What's in a name? A milk can by any other name would cattle as loudly?'"

He himself had evidently learned to take it on the chin without yelling. He looked at her with a hint of laughter in his gay blue eyes. He leaned a little closer.

"Sometimes I find myself unaccountably disliking the salt of the earth, but do you know I've got an unholy hankering for cayenne pepper?"

Then he followed the girls. Sally saw him helping Maud to the seat beside him. The cars whizzed away. Moses peeped apprehensively out of the kitchen door, but Miss Sally was staring ahead of her with unseeing eyes the while she chewed the end of her pencil to pulp.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Wartime Diversion.

History class lectures had always bored me. Becoming more restless with each additional result of the French revolution, I began twirling my pen top around the point of my pencil. I was sitting in the front seat, nevertheless. I twirled on gayly and heedlessly. Suddenly the pen top flew from the pivot and hit the stern pedagogue squarely on the nose. He gave me one long withering glance, put the pen top in his pocket and went on as before. Greatly embarrassed and quite squelched, I stopped at the desk after class to reclaim my straying boomerang.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Well, boys and girls, haven't our Cubs been doing things to the Giants during the easterners' stay in our fair city! They beat them two days in a row. I wonder what they'll do today! That's all important, you know, for isn't this the day of our big Cubs-Giants party at Wrigley field? Yes sir, this afternoon will find one hundred of us occupying the choice box seats, which Mr. Veeck so generously presented me with, eyes glued on the field so that we won't miss a single play.

That must have been a thrilling game yesterday.

I hope every one who's anxious to attend our movie party at the Chicago next week when we see "Politics" with Marie Dressler and Polly Moran has mailed a letter that will reach me today. You know, I shall read them this morning and select the hundred boys and girls who will win places in this group. I hope not any of you are late because it's going to be a grand show with pictures and singing and dancing and music and comedy both on the stage and on the screen and I'd hate to have any eager young fan miss it. The winners will find their names listed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

It's Her Prerogative.

"Dear Miss Blake: My girl thinks it's right to go out with other fellows. She claims a girl can go with others until she's engaged. DONALD."

It's her prerogative, Donald, and usually it is well to exercise it, for until there is an understanding, the young man may walk off and leave the girl without friends. It has been done.

Girls Want to Know How to Start Gentle Art of Golddigging

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Here's something, Doris, I wish you'd answer for a couple of girls, including myself. We're not soreheads about it. We don't care so much, but we would like to know why it is that some girls, some of them no more popular apparently than we are, seem to get all the breaks where presents are concerned—and we get none.

"We're not looking for large gifts, understand. Just the things that please girls—only they never please us because we don't get them. Our wants are as mild as books and flowers, a package of cigarets; something just to put us on the receiving line, if you get what I mean.

"We have decided we belong to the 'giving' end. We give parties, provide cigarets, cocktails, too, and so on and so on. Our men always seem to forget that we have to pay for these things out of salaries that aren't magnificent. It's a problem, Doris.

"THREE OF US."

It's not a problem, girls. It's a talent—that present getting is. A science. An art. Some girls, I suspect, come by the gift naturally, others cultivate it. Anyway, it's more than mere chance. It may not start out as a studied science. But the art of appearing to appreciate deeply any little offering at her shrine magnifies a girl's chances of more offerings quite appreciably. The art of accepting small favors isn't one to be sneezed at, you know. Some girls destroy all future chances by an embarrassed acceptance, a short, cut acceptance, or a rude acceptance.

Some girls have the talent to load the conversation with gentle hints and the ability to put them over artfully. In the case of supplying cigarets and cocktails for the party, being inexperienced, they hint, they just don't know how to go about purchasing the former nor where to get good stuff for the latter.

Or, they have a skilled way of "regretting" that they haven't seen the play that is being talked about. I'm not advocating for a moment that you cultivate the talent, or the art or what you call it. It might grow on you to real gold digging proportions. But you asked me why and I'm trying to answer.

FARM AND GARDEN

WATERING YOUNG TREES.

Too many persons in attempting to help young trees and shrubs get a start in their early growth after transplanting apply water and plant food incorrectly. Results of this amateur treatment are said to have been most apparent in 1930 when natural moisture was insufficient and when home owners carried pailfuls or held the garden hose many warm evenings.

According to Dr. E. Porter Felt, editor of a journal of entomology, many trees received extra water last summer, but the water was applied directly at the base. An open area two feet in diameter was practically the only portion of soil that received moisture, whereas the roots should have received water as far out from the base of the tree as its height.

Where most of the root growth should have occurred, the soil was left ash dry and the trees naturally became stunted. Partial recovery will be made by normal precipitation and correct watering, but the wrong method makes normal root development impossible.

Recently transplanted trees have their root systems in a limited area but normally these roots grow out until they attain the usual spread. Watering, according to Dr. Felt, should be well out toward or even beyond this periphery of roots.

Enough water to saturate the soil to a depth of 12 inches is best, he says, and advises that this be done in very dry weather at intervals of five to seven days.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Leona was sent to the store for milk and was just given the bottle. Some how we forgot to give her the money, so the woman at the store thought we wanted to charge it. She did not know Leona and asked her what her daddy's name was.

Johnny had been sent upstairs to wash his hands and face before sitting down to supper with company.

A few minutes later, from the top of the stairs, he yelled down in a voice audible to all:

SO SKINNY IN A BATHING SUIT

....she was ashamed to be seen!

...Now she has a lovely figure—more pep, too

GO OUT on the beach before everybody? Have her boy friend see how scrawny she looked in a bathing suit? How she hated to!

But what a different story Miss Hattie MacLean of Florence, N. S. has to tell now! She writes: "I always felt ashamed to wear a bathing suit, I was so very thin. But now even my hollow cheeks are filled out. I think I am about the best-shaped woman around.

"I was always called 'Tired Hattie', I couldn't keep up with the other young people in sports, but now they can't keep up to me. My indigestion is corrected, too. Everyone is asking me what I did to make such a change in me. I tell them all it was Ironized Yeast."

Yes, all over the continent once-scrawny, once-rundown, sickly folks are now gaining firm, attractive flesh—sparkling health—thanks to Ironized Yeast! North, south, east or west—wherever you live—you, too, can gain these priceless benefits the same quick way Miss MacLean did!

Two Tonics in One!

Ironized Yeast not only adds pounds of firm, healthy flesh in lots the usual time (doctors report average gains of 5 to 15 lbs. in a few weeks)—but it revitalizes the whole system as well. For it is a double tonic containing brewers' yeast—the richest weight-building yeast known—and strengthening, blood-enriching iron!

Specially cultured, this famous health yeast is concentrated seven times—made seven times as effective as ordinary yeast. It is then scientifically ironized—treated with three distinct kinds of iron. No wonder users tell of more energy, more punch—as well as an increase in weight and a speedy goodbye to skin troubles, constipation and "nerves"!

Food Talk.

Coffee cake or kuchen is coming into greater popularity and wider use—not only as a tea cake but also as a breakfast cake or delicious dessert. The leavening agent in this cake is yeast, not baking powder. Such cake is light and delicate, yet sufficiently rich to be pleasing. The rich content of butter, eggs, fruit, and nuts adds a satisfying flavor and makes the cake nourishing.

The principles used in bread mixing are used for coffee cake. The yeast growth is stimulated by adding a little sugar to it, then adding potato water, or lukewarm milk that has been scalded, to destroy any undesirable organisms. Lukewarm liquids are the best medium for growth of the yeast organism which is responsible for the lightness and palatability of the cake.

Either the sponge or straight dough method may be used for the cake. But in either case, as in bread making, a thorough mixing of the ingredients is necessary. And less flour is needed for coffee cake than for bread.

The same basic recipe with a variation of fillings or icings may make a dozen different kinds of cake. Fruits, nuts, flavorings, cinnamon, and sugar are most often used. It is often a good plan to prepare fillings of various richness and kinds. Then we may have plain cakes for breakfast, fancy shaped cakes for tea, and rich fruit filled cakes for dessert from the same dough.

Yeast cakes will keep fresh for several days. They are easily freshened by placing in a warm oven for a few minutes.

PLAIN COFFEE CAKE OR KUCHEN

¼ cup lukewarm milk
1 teaspoon sugar
1 cup milk
5 to 6 cups flour
2 eggs
1½ cups sugar
Grated rind of ½ lemon
1 teaspoon vanilla

Dissolve the yeast in the ¼ cup of lukewarm milk, to which has been added the teaspoon of sugar and the salt. Let stand for 30 minutes. Scald the 1 cup of milk and add enough of the flour to make a light batter. When the batter is cool add the yeast mixture and beat until the mass blisters. Cover and stand in a warm place to rise three or four hours, or until at least double in bulk.

Now add the well beaten eggs, the sugar, melted butter, grated lemon rind, and the vanilla. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Beat again until the dough is full of bubbles and let it rise until double in bulk.

Roll out the dough and place in the pans [round or square tins] and cover with any desired kuchen filling. Let rise again until light and bake. Bake in a moderately hot oven [400 degrees F.].

CINNAMON COFFEE CAKE FILLING

1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour

VICTORY OF 1781 AT YORKTOWN IS A NUISANCE NOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—The state department woke today to find itself in the very center of the controversy of the propriety of recalling some of the more stirring episodes of the siege of Yorktown and in the traditional position of the benevolent bystander persuaded into offering his services as mediator.

SOL BLOOM.

The siege of Yorktown is about to receive more prominence than at any time in the 150 years since it was fought, with its own semi-centennial anniversary occuring this year and the George Washington bicentennial being observed next year.

No Official Action.

The state department has nothing officially to do with either celebration, but the recollections of officials were busily taxed today, when Representative Sol Bloom, associate director of the United States George Washington bicentennial commission, suddenly issued a statement taking the department to task for having asked the Yorktown sesquicentennial commission to delete the episode of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis from its Yorktown pageant.

Representative Bloom said he understood the state department had asked the Yorktown commission to amend its program "for fear of wounding the sensibilities of a nation that has long since ceased to bear the least resentment on account of that famous surrender."

At the state department it was said that nothing official had been done, but it was learned on good authority that a delegation from the Yorktown commission recently had visited the department, asking for aid in settling a puzzling question.

Part of the membership, it appeared, wished to have the pageant include all of the Yorktown finale of the revolution. "Others felt that it would not be politic to include the surrender of Lord Cornwallis. A delicate hint was dropped that the commission would be greatly relieved if it could learn that the state department opposed the Cornwallis episode.

The commission delegation was said to have been informed that the state department was not particularly concerned, but would agree with any decision the commission might make. Apparently the Yorktown group decided to delete Lord Cornwallis.

Fears for Later Fêtes.

He referred today to the siege of Yorktown as "the climax of that period of blood and tears which cost so many sacred lives and which is unequaled in sacrifice and devotion in the whole history of the world."

"Yorktown means more to civilization than any other military victory that was ever achieved," he continued. "The whole world is reaping the benefits of that campaign which ended so wonderfully on the banks of the York river."

VALLEE'S MOTHER DIES; RADIO CROONER PROSTRATED BY GRIEF

Westbrook, Me., July 15.—[Special.] Mrs. Katherine Lynch Vallee, 61, the greatest admirer among Rudy Vallee's fans, died at 11:30 this morning following several weeks' illness.

The famous crooner and all other members of the family were at her bedside when the end came.

Suffering severely from the strain of remaining by his mother's bedside for two nights, together with anxiety for the health of his bride of a week, Fay Webb, Rudy was in an extremely nervous condition and unconfirmed reports had it that he was ordered to bed.

The death of Mrs. Vallee was due to heart trouble, high blood pressure and complications.

HUNT 2 BANDITS ROUTED AFTER $2,500 ROBBERY

South side detective squads were hunting last night for two robbers who were routed early yesterday by Edward Mraz, 9322 Prairie avenue, after they had robbed five members of his family of $2,500 in jewelry and held them captive for more than four hours. Under pretext of an appointment with Mraz, a cafe owner, the bandits were admitted by Mraz's mother, Mrs. Emily Mraz, 60 years old.

Drawing pistols, they marched the woman, her daughter, Mrs. Lillian Edwards, the latter's husband, John, and their two children, Edna, 16, and Eleanor, 14, upstairs where all were bound with sheets. Then the bandits awaited the return of Mraz, whom they suspected of carrying a considerable sum of money.

At the muzzle of a gun, Mrs. Mraz was forced to open the door for her son when he arrived. Seeing the gunman behind his mother, Mraz lunged forward and after a brief fight the bandits fled.

Every inch and ounce of it reveals superior quality, yet it sells at no premium in price.

It leads all other tires in sales and popularity, simply because it performs for the man who uses it as no other tire can or does.

As for it being first-choice, you needn't take Goodyear's word for it—that has been settled by millions of car owners like yourself.

The vote was taken in every state—in cities, towns and on farms, and the answers were not influenced in any way.

As the chart shows, the preference for Goodyears was nearly 2¼ times that for the second tire, and five times the average preference for all other makes.

This result checks with the known buying habits of the American people, for "More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!"

ANDRADA LEADS ARGENTINES TO FIRST TRIUMPH

Clash Saturday in Series Final.

BY TOM PETTEY.

Four horsemen from the Pampas pounded across the turf under a blazing, blistering sun yesterday afternoon at Onwentsia to defeat the Old Aiken team, 11 to 8, in the second game of the international polo series. The victory for Santa Paula evened up the series, and the third and deciding game will be played at 5 p. m. Saturday.

The game yesterday was played before an enthusiastic crowd of 5,000, an even larger attendance than on last Saturday. The excessive heat and the fact that Old Aiken had to break up its teamwork because of the illness of Stewart B. Iglehart, the star No. 3 of the College Boys' team, showed up the game in comparison to the first match.

Smith Replaces Iglehart.

Maj. C. C. Smith, a six goal player from Fort Sheridan who played against the Argentines in South America last year, replaced Iglehart and made a splendid showing, but the famous combination of Iglehart and Joseph C. Rathborne was missing and Old Aiken suffered. Rathborne and Iglehart were accustomed to playing close together and criss crossing the ball up and down the field. Yesterday such team play was impossible, for Iglehart was in bed in the home of the James Simpsons at Glencoe suffering from intestinal influenza, developed several days ago and made acute by the player's previous refusal to take to bed.

The South American ponies appeared to have made remarkable recoveries and, if anything, were a shade better than the American horses. There is no doubt that the Santa Paula players were a great deal better than they were Saturday. The No. 1 man, Manuel Andrada did not ride so close and his long distance driving was more accurate.

The combination of improved horses, more spirited horses and ill luck through the loss of Iglehart proved too much for Old Aiken. It is doubtful, however, if the same Old Aiken of last Saturday could have beaten the South Americans yesterday.

Andrada Star of Game.

Maj. C. C. Smith was hitting accurately during the first half of the game, but his mounts seemed to tire toward the close. Elbridge T. Gerry, the slightly built Old Aiken No. 1, accounted for four goals, but was not always able to keep up with Andrada in the long, dashing races. For that matter, no one was able to keep up with Señor Andrada. He was the outstanding star of the afternoon. The big brown faced hombre was everywhere on the field, bumping and smashing his way to the goal. No one could stop his slashing drives and before the close he had rammed home five of the South American scores.

Joseph Reynal was a fit teammate for the fiery Andrada, and young James P. Mills of Yale and North Carolina polo fields had a pretty tough time with the 200 pound gaucho most of the afternoon. Juan Reynal and Maj. Smith staged several pretty races and rode furiously against one another during the greater part of the match. It was not the match the spectators saw Saturday, but it was splendid polo.

Before the last bell both men and horses were drenched and the heat was taking its toll in missed shots and poor direction.

Play Saturday After Classic.

Rathborne played the hardest game of any man on the Old Aiken team and took the defeat most seriously. At the close he rode from the field, slumped in his saddle, and had little to say to any one. It was a hard played, well fought game and with Saturday's match to be staged after the Classic at nearby Arlington race track, another record breaking crowd is certain to be in attendance.

Yesterday's match was "velvet" for the Onwentsia club, which paid the bill to bring international polo to Chicago. The first game, with its 35 per cent of the tickets bought for the entire series, netted about $20,000 and that is what the matches cost the Chicago club.

Louis E. Stoddard, president of the United States Polo association, remained over for the match yesterday. He was enthusiastic about the game, but said Old Aiken suffered in team play by the loss of Iglehart. After the game word from the Simpson home was that Iglehart had only a slight temperature and might be able to play in Saturday's match.

Silver Plate For Winners.

Four pieces of silver plate were on display in front of the grandstand. They were to be presented to the winners of the series by the United States Polo association. Old Aiken had hoped to get them, but the South Americans said no. The silver, along with a number of cups to be offered by Chicago sportsmen, will be presented to the winners after Saturday's game.

Maj. Wesley J. White, the umpire, threw in the ball at 4:50 p. m. Andrada took it down the field. Mills brought it back and they played along

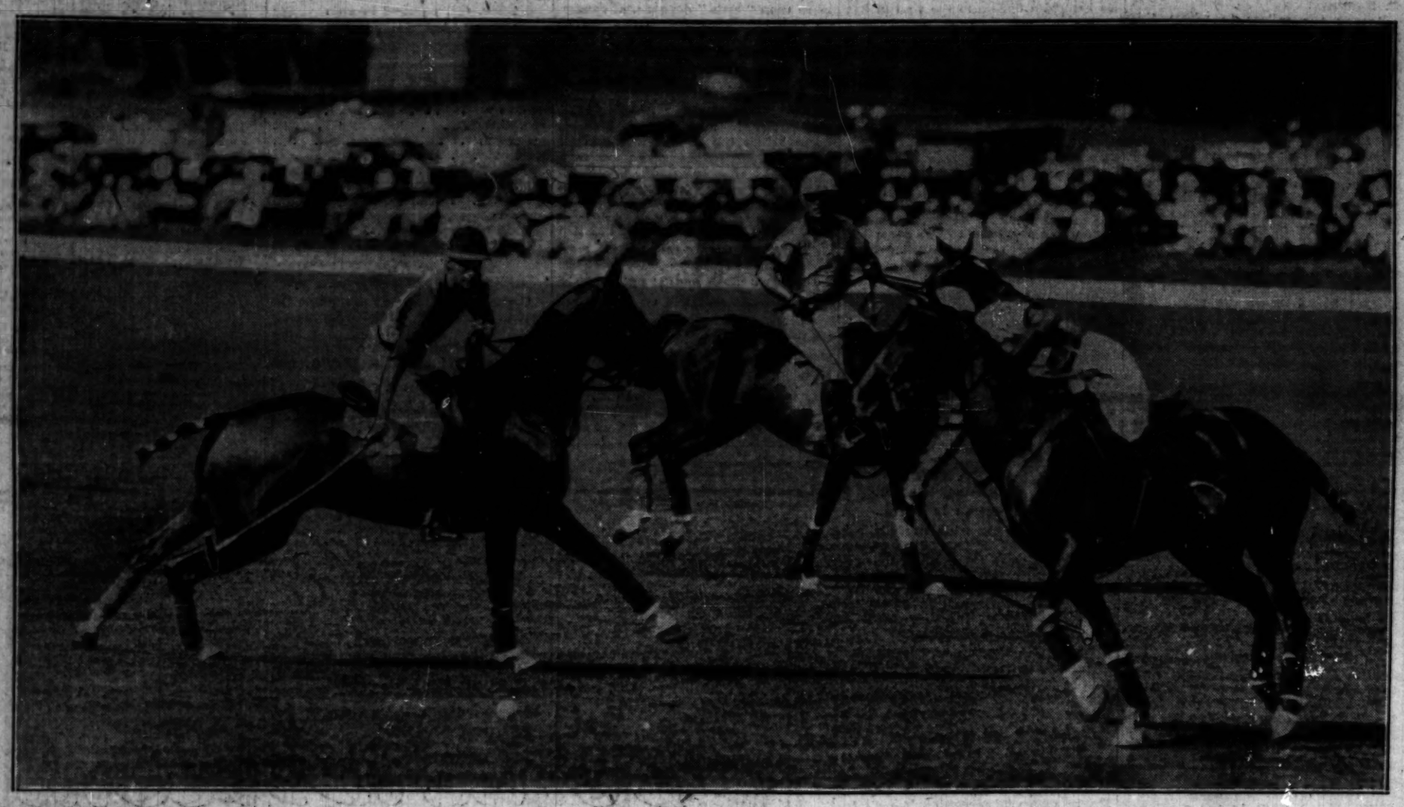
WHEN FOUR HORSEMEN OF THE ARGENTINE RODE TO VICTORY



Joseph Rathborne, back on the Old Aiken polo team, wages a single handed battle with Jose Reynal and Capt. Manuel Andrada of the Santa Paula four for possession of the ball in the fifth chukker of yesterday's match between the two teams at Onwentsia Country club. The Argentines won, 11 to 8. Rathborne is riding up on the left with his mallet poised to send the ball speeding down the field, while Andrada, in the right foreground, leans from the saddle in an effort to reach the ball before Rathborne. Reynal, in the background, is pulling up his mount to cut into the fray.

BARTON REPORTS TO CUBS; GETS A PLACE ON BENCH

Vincent Barton, the big outfielder recalled last week from the Los Angeles Coast league club, joined the Cubs yesterday. Manager Hornsby's present plan is to keep the rookie on the bench until either Hack Wilson or Dan Taylor gives signs of needing a rest. Barton played right field for the Angels. Another addition to the Cub baseball organization yesterday was Rod Corriden, former big league infielder. He will serve as a scout.

Dr. Kearns Tells How to Make Money—If You Find a Dempsey

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 14.—He sat at a table in a restaurant, his fingers monkeying with a little paper of matches. More money had run through those fingers than most of us ever see.

"How much did you and Dempsey handle, altogether?"

"Close on to four million," Jack Kearns said. "Counting fights, movies, and all, just around four million. We cut it all right down the middle until he married that girl and we split. I never bore him any grudge for that. Everybody knows how it is when a man thinks he can't live unless he marries some girl or other. It was just like two business men breaking up a partnership. Our only difference was that he owed me some money when we quit and wouldn't pay off. I knew I couldn't get a verdict when I sued. He had the popular side.

"Still, I made a couple of million myself, and had a good time. And now, if Mickey Walker knocks off Sharkey I'll be back in the money again."

In Broadway Burlesque.

Mr. Kearns grew reminiscent. A dozen years before he had come to Broadway with a tough, crude, ignorant kid prize fighter, an occasional laborer and field hand, calling himself Young Dempsey.

"We were playing in a burlesque show, meeting all comers," he said. "We carried a sparring partner for the rôle of all comers. The guy would get out of a seat and yell 'I can lick that mug!' and come up on the stage. Then Dempsey would slap him over. But our show stranded in Newark one night. We were short $80 for the electricians and I came over to New York to get the money.

"In the Biltmore bar I met John McGraw and borrowed $25. He said, 'You know Tex Rickard, don't you?' and I said 'Yes, and I know he's no good.'

"Rickard turned around and looked at me. I looked at him and said, 'Yes, I said you're no good.' I knew him up in Nome.

Kearns Promotes Fight.

"McGraw said Rickard could get me a lot of money and Tex began to talk. He wanted to put Jess Willard in the ring for another heavyweight championship fight, but he thought Dempsey was too small. Jack only weighed 186 then.

"Well, anyway, Rickard didn't have $500 to his name but I told him if he would let me send a telegram to Willard using his name, I would promote a fight for him. So I offered Willard $100,000 to fight Dempsey and Willard wired back for Tex to meet him in Chicago. Still Rickard didn't know what he was going to use for money until Frank Flournoy promoted a banker in Memphis for the expenses. Afterward Tex dropped Frank.

Champion and Still Broke.

"When we got the title I was still broke. They murdered us with that trial in California and the heavyweight champion didn't have a dime when he came to New York to catch Capentier the next spring. I promoted that one, too. Carpentier had a gentleman's agreement to fight for Cochrane, the English promoter, in London, for $40,000. I found Cochrane and said, 'If you are a friend of this boy do you mean to say you are going to hold him to an agrement for a $40,000 fight when he can make $200,000 otherwise?' We were drinking wine.

"Cochrane got proud of his sportsmanship and called off the agreement, but said, 'Who is going to give him the $200,000?' I said, 'I am going to guarantee it.' And, as I was saying, I didn't have a dime.

"That night I dug up William A. Brady and he agreed to promote the show $100,000 worth. Cochrane got

TWENTY GRAND CHUCKLES WHILE HE WORKS OUT

'Don't Have to Really Run Till Saturday,' He Says.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Twenty Grand is ready to defend his claim to the 3 year old championship of the American turf in the renewal of the Arlington Classic on Saturday afternoon.

Galloping gracefully over the course he will travel in the Classic in his final big workout for the $90,000 race late yesterday afternoon, he proved to everybody that there wasn't a sore muscle or a sore bone in his big powerful body and legs.

As he came down the stretch in long even strides with his head almost in the lap of Li'l' Marshall Lilly, the Whitney Negro exercise boy, he might just as well have shouted up to the crowd in the stands and clubhouse: "I can do a hell of a lot better than this."

Just A Loaf at That.

It wasn't a test for speed, and Marshall Lilly knew he wasn't supposed to let Twenty Grand run his best at any stage of the rehearsal. But, hard as he restrained the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont stakes winner, the big colt reeled off his furlongs and his quarter miles at a good even pace and he could have run faster any time if Li'l' Marshall had asked him to shake it up a bit.

He was at the quarter in :24 2-5, at the half in :48 1-5, at the three-quarters in 1:13 3-5, at the mile in 1:41, the mile and a furlong in 1:54 4-5, and was pulled up to end the mile and a quarter gallop in 2:11. Selling platers worked faster during the day. But they didn't do it as Twenty Grand did.

Twenty Grand was originally scheduled to do his final Classic work at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. But at 6 o'clock it was raining hard and the Arlington running strip was muddy.

"Big Train" Is Ready.

Several members of the Whitney family, including Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, John Hay Whitney, and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, were on hand to see the champion take his final drill. Their smile, after they had talked to Trainer Jimmy Rowe and to Li'l' Marshall indicated the "big train" is ready for the race of his life.

Other candidates for the Classic also took their final drills during the afternoon. Mate's was the least impressive of all, as far as time was concerned. He worked a mile and an eighth in 1:55 2-5, but was breezing all the way. Mate isn't a good work horse and A. C. Bostwick, who trains him, was impressed rather than disturbed by the way he moved throughout the drill. It was announced last night that Jockey A. Robertson will be in the saddle on Mate in the Classic.

Sir Ashley, a sort of dark horse in the Classic, showed that he can run when he was also asked for a mile and an eighth test. The time was 1:55. He was at the mile and hard held in 1:41.

St. Brideaux Works Easily.

St. Brideaux, stable mate of Twenty Grand, also stepped the Classic route. His work was easily accomplished and Marshall Lilly was in the saddle when he took the track early in the afternoon. He loafed slightly going down the back stretch where he turned in one very slow quarter mile, but he rallied at the turn and was running very handily as he finished out the mile and a quarter.

He was at the quarter in :25 2-5, at the three-eighths in :37 3-5, at the half in :49 3-5, the three-quarters in 1:14 2-5, the mile in 1:41 2-5, the mile and an eighth in 1:55 3-5, and was only cantering at the end of the mile and a quarter in 2:10.

Eight will go to the post in the Classic, it was indicated last night. Arnold Hanger, half owner of the Warm stable, announced definitely late yesterday that Epithet will go to the post. The other seven are Twenty Grand, St. Brideaux, Spanish Play, Sun Meadow, Mate, Joey Bibb, and Sir Ashley.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Those impudent Giants from New York thought they were going to win a ball game yesterday, but they were being kidded. The Cubs let them have the lead for a spell, but tied it in the seventh. Then for a couple of innings it looked as if the visitors could hardly avoid scoring. But the Cubs were kidding again. They suddenly turned serious in the ninth and pounded across a run which bumped the McGraw crowd for the second straight time. The score was 5 to 4.

It probably was a lucky thing for Manager Hornsby that he pinned his faith in Jakie May in the eighth, when the situation was desperate because of some sad relief work by Ed Baecht. The squatty southpaw cleaned up that mess in a hurry. He got into one of his own making in the ninth and he also cleaned up that without disaster. Then to cap it all, and make some 16,000 spectators forget that they were suffering from the excessive heat, May appeared with his bat in the final inning and furnished the punch which sent the Giants back on their heels.

May's Double Ends Suspense.

When May came forth to take his swing in the ninth, Joe Heving was heaving, having made his bow after the two tying runs had been scored off Carl [Lefty] Hubbell in the seventh. May didn't wait. He brought his bat down on the first pitch and sailed it into the left field corner for a double.

Jurges immediately singled past Terry, who was tearing in for a bunt. May was so surprised at the suddenness of this incident that he could move only as far as third. But he reached home a bit later when Cuyler, after English had popped out, slapped a single through short.

Although the whacks which decided the struggle were important, they couldn't eclipse a few delivered in the previous chapters. One of these was a homer by Dan Taylor with a mate on in the second. Another was a single in the seventh with which the same Taylor set in motion the two run rally that erased the advantage the Giants were enjoying as the result of four runs off Bud Teachout, the young southpaw. In the eighth Taylor came through again, but with two out and nothing happened.

Root to Face Giants.

Hubbell started off with a rush. He fanned Jurges and English in the first inning and Wilson to start the second. He was aided in this by the fact that the Cubs waited him out. That three of his men fanned didn't stop Hornsby from trying the same thing. But he walked. Then Taylor suddenly switched the tactics and went after

It was only the junior lightweight championship, a synthetic title, but it marked the top of the trail for Chocolate after many disappointments. Referee Leo Houck awarded him the championship on a technical knockout with only two seconds of the seventh round remaining, because of a deep gash over Bass' left eye. It was to go ten rounds.

Chocolate's Attack Deadly.

Pitting all his great natural ability, his fleet boxing skill, and deadly punching powers against the charging champion, Chocolate hammered Bass through six rounds, cutting him down steadily and methodically, ripping open a cut in the left eyebrow, smashing at it until the eye closed, splitting his lips, and tearing his face.

Bass took it all like a champion and never stopped charging in, flinging a sweeping left hook that bounced off the Cuban's slender body. He stung Chocolate at times, and made him hold, but could not keep away from the volley of rights and lefts that ripped at his features and burrowed into his body.

15,000 See Fight.

Bass was a sorry sight coming up for the seventh round, but there was no sign that the end was less than a round away. Methodically, carefully, Chocolate measured him with rights and lefts to the head. Suddenly the Cuban raced Bass to the ropes and lashed a volley of rights to the head. As Bass reeled into his own corner Referee Houck stepped between the warriors and stopped the fight. The round lasted 2 minutes and 58 seconds. Despite the fierce punishment Bass was not on the floor at any time.

Chocolate lost only one round, the fourth, when Bass' body punches slowed him down. He nearly floored the champion in the second with a series of crashing rights to the head.

A crowd of about 15,000 saw the bout in the National league ball park. Bass weighed 128½ pounds, slightly under the class limit of 130 pounds, while Chocolate was well within the featherweight poundage at 125½.

Pantaleo Sees Griffith as Victim No. 31

Paul Pantaleo yesterday paused during his workout at Howard's gymnasium to predict that he would knock out Tuffy Griffith, the west side Irishman, Monday night when the two heavyweights meet in a ten round bout at the White City stadium.

"One of the advantages of training in the same gym as your opponent is that you can watch him daily," Pantaleo said. "I believe I have discovered Tuffy's weakness."

Pantaleo intimated that he will carry the fight to Griffith at the start of the first round and use his right hand continually. Paul's record of 30 knockouts in 42 fights indicates that he is the dangerous puncher he is touted to be.

Griffith, veteran of battles with Young Stribling, King Levinsky, and Tommy Loughran, did not divulge his plans of battle for Monday night.

Promoter Mique Malloy's supporting card has Edgar Norman and Gary Leach, two light heavyweights in the semi-windup of eight rounds. Jerry Crano, middleweight, will face Jack Moran in a six round bout. Pat McLaughlin, heavyweight, faces Joe Corbett, and Dick Sisk, Brighton Park welterweight, tackles Tony Saunders. Buck Everett and Marion Matuszack open the show.

Old Salts Favor Siren as Mackinac Fleet Primps Up

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Belmont Harbor yesterday resembled one of the old New England fishing ports before the start of a cruise, as the fleet prepared for the world's longest fresh water marathon, the 331 mile sail to Mackinac Island, which gets under way Saturday afternoon. Skippers and crews were giving their crafts a final overhauling and some of them ventured out into the lake for last minute sails. All of these doings will be resumed today and tomorrow.

Club members who will not compete content themselves with criticizing the entries of those who will be at the starting line Saturday and recalling Mackinac races of the past. There is no Enterprise or Shamrock V. in this fleet, but a half an hour with any of these skippers convinces one they wouldn't trade their particular vessel for a half dozen of America's cup winners. And this is apparent in spite of the fact that they refer to their boats by such strange names as "pot" and "bus."

Seven Out of Town Entries.

The starting fleet this year is rated one of the most closely matched in recent years. It will include 22 boats, which will be divided into two classes —racing and cruising. The winner, on a corrected time basis, in the racing class will have its name affixed to the Mackinac Cup, while the cruising victor's name will be engraved on the Chicago-Mackinac trophy.

Four boats originally entered in the race have been compelled to withdraw. One of these is Intrepid, winner of the race in 1916, 1922, and 1926, which has been unable to obtain new canvas in time for the race. The others are the Picaroon, the Gaviota, and the Sea Girl.

The out of town entries this year number seven, and judging from the comments of the local sailors yesterday, they are held with some respect. It appeared to be an unanimous opinion of each skipper that if his own boat can't win, he'd like to see the Dorello or the Vagabond, both from Milwaukee, capture the race. Each has come within an inch of winning the big race time and again, but somehow neither has ever been able to score, and the Chicagoans who have defeated them ever nothing would please them more than a Dorello or Vagabond victory — providing, of course, they can't win themselves.

Manning Sails Again.

The Dorello is owned by O. Lyman Dwight and the Vagabond by E. A. Purtell. E. F. Knight of Perrysburg, O., is sending the Bimesa, the largest boat in the fleet, having an overall length of 84 feet 3 inches. From Whitehall, Mich., comes Charley Bissell and his Malabar schooner, the Aurora. St. Joseph, Mich., will have a representative in the Bangalore, the only cutter in the battle, a sleek, rakish vessel owned by Donald Ross. Two other Milwaukee entrants are the Capsicum, Harold Flemming's Q class sloop, and the Cleo, owned by B. V. E. Nordberg.

Among the sailors to whom this year's race will be nothing novel is Harold Manning. As a record of Mr. Manning's nautical talents, it may be set down here that he has shipped aboard six winners. He began sailing at the age of fifteen, and has done duty with canvas, mast and rudder for 30 years.

Last year he was one of the crew of the Karas brothers' Q sloop, Siren, which won the race after one of the worst calamities which can befall a boat. A week before the start of the race, Sterling Morton's Volante entered Belmont's waters and fouled the Siren, tearing away her mast and fittings. A new mast was ordered, and arrived Thursday night, less than forty-eight hours before the race. The crew fell to and worked in shifts, repairing it and setting the mast even while sailing down the north branch of the river and on the lake to face the starter's gun. They worked on through the first night of the race and Manning spent nearly two hours the following morning strapped in a bosun's chair, putting the final touches on the rigging.

Siren Is Favored.

The Siren is one of the favorites this year, having won in 1927, 1928, and last year. The crew will include the brothers Karas, Ole and Al; Manning, Phil Hill, Bob Haynie, and Fred Peterson. Manning also sailed with the Siren in 1928. During his Mackinac career he shipped four times with the Intrepid, twice each with the Dorello, Celeritas, Larakin, Vennana, and once with the Vencedor. His winning journeys were made with the Intrepid, and the Siren twice, the Vencedor and the Celeritas once.

He recalls the 1922 trip with Intrepid as one of the hardest he ever has sailed on. They were fleeing a northwest squall in the Manitou passage, pushing the boat hard, but it overhauled them. They were flying full canvas, including a large spinnaker, which went to the masthead during the blow, and they had a time of it to haul it down. They succeeded, however, and went on to a twelve hour victory, the largest time margin in the history of the race.

CUYLER'S SINGLE BEATS GIANTS IN 9TH INNING, 5-4

the first pitch. It sailed over the screen just inside the right field flagpole for a homer. Then Grimm scratched a hit past the pitcher, Hartnett filed out, and hits by Teachout and Jurges filled the bases. With this opportunity in front of him English filed to right.

A double by Allen, after Critz had walked with two out in the third, was the only threat made by the Giants until the fourth when things suddenly took a turn for the worse. Terry singled to center and Ott to right. Jackson crowded the bases with a single past Hornsby. Verges was kind enough to hoist a short fly to center, but Hogan insisted on being rough. He banged a double to the wall in left center and everybody scored, putting the Giants in front by 3 to 2.

Jackson Makes an Error!

Allen gave Teachout something to fret over by leading off with a double in the fifth, but a two dollar stop by Jurges on Terry prevented the hit from growing into a run. Another extra base tap in the sixth wasn't as easily avoided. Jackson started the inning with a triple to right center. Verges popped out and Hogan was purposely passed, but Hubbell spoiled the strategy. He bunted toward Grimm, who pegged to the plate but not in time to keep Jackson from being squeezed across.

The usual infallible Jackson cut in with an error at exactly the proper moment in the seventh and it helped considerable in the knotting of the count. The inning started with Taylor's single past Critz. Grimm popped out and Hartnett let a third strike slip past. Hemsley, batting for Teachout, revived the waning hopes with a single to left. Jurges drove a grounder straight to short and it slid under Jackson's hands, Taylor scoring and Hemsley going to third. English tore off a hit to right, Hemsley counting and Jurges dashing to third.

Giants Threaten in Ninth.

The Cubs spent some anxious moments in the eighth due to Ed Baecht's limited engagement on the mound. Two men faced the ex-coast leaguer. He walked Jackson and plunked Verges in the vertebrae. Hornsby promptly shooed him away, May taking over the job. Marshall batted for Hogan and sacrificed. O'Farrell, who batted for Hubbell, was intentionally passed, crowding the bases. Then Jurges reached up to flag Critz's liner, and an instant later picked up Allen's hopper to end the spasm.

McGraw's gentlemen were again on the verge of accomplishing something in the ninth. May handed a pass to Fullis, who was forced on Terry's intended sacrifice. Ott singled to left and on Jackson's fly to deep center, Terry took third. Wilson grabbed Verges's fly and that was the end of that.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

AT THE RACES.

THE WAKE often has wondered whether a person could go to the races and enjoy the afternoon if one did not make a bet. So we resolved to try it. We chose last Saturday afternoon for the test because it was our first appearance at Arlington since returning from the recent fistic quarrel between Schmeling and Stribling at Cleveland.

Our task was easier because we had not followed the contesting horses, or "ponies" in the vernacular, as closely as is our wont. Being an innocent bystander was not so hard to take. True, the races had not quite the same thrill as when our usual two-spot is on the line. But there was the fine race of Gallant Knight, and interest, if not excitement, when Canfil, an outsider, captured the stake.

Our enjoyment, however, was largely in the acquaintances we met. There is no place like the race track to meet people one knows, some one of whom one sees rarely at any other time. A Chicagoan of many years' standing hardly can take a step without being able to say "hello" to some friend or former friend. Whether one says more than "hello" depends, of course, on how glad they are to see you or vice versa.

So our conclusion was that it is possible to attend the races with enjoyment without making a single bet, but there is really more fun in being among the "moaners" or winners.

Confession! Just before starting home before the last race it dawned on us we had not contributed anything to the improvement of the breed of thoroughbreds for cavalry remount purposes, which is the raison d'être (or however you spell it) for racing. This lack of patriotism so worried us that we put down one small wager just to prove we were a patriotic American. This wager lost, so our patriotism was vindicated without crass commercial thoughts.

Kearns Tells How to Make Four Million

suspicious and decided he would have to be a co-promoter." Then I dug up Rickard and let him in for the third partner. They were glad to have him.

Kearns Demands $300,000.

"All this time, the champion was really digging up the challenger. Nobody had offered Dempsey any money yet, and I thought it was about time to say something about that. So when they had Carpentier I said, 'Now all you boys have to get is the heavyweight champion and you will have a match. We will take $300,000 for our end.'

"Rickard nearly went crazy.

"'And moreover,' I said one night, 'if you think we can't get the money you wait till I see some people tomorrow morning. I am seated [illegible] Cuban millionaires who want the fight for Havana.'

Waiters Put on Their Ear.

"At the moment I didn't [illegible] where I could dig up a Cuban in New York, but Dan McKetrick knew a Cuban restaurant down town and got hold of a couple of little waiters who looked good in spats. He [illegible] them in what they were to say, and wrote out a check for $500,000 on a bank down in Havana for the [illegible].

"The waiters met us in a [illegible] at the Claridge next morning. The sport writers and photographers were all there and when this little waiter flashed his rubber check the flash light bombs nearly blew the whole out of the hotel."

"So Tex gave us $300,000 for our end and the show drew $1,000,000. And to think I could have taken it per cent!

Mr. Kearns sighed. I didn't ask the logical question, "How much of that money have you got now?" realizing that the answer would have been, "Not a dime."

HOXIE (ARK.) HAS ITS CHAMPION IN TRIBUNE'S SWIM

Never Been Beaten and Rarin' to Go.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

We introduce this morning C. O. Dugger, 14 years of age, from Hoxie, Ark. C. O. [the initials stand for Clarence Oliver] walked into the sports department last night.

"I want to enter THE TRIBUNE'S championship swimming races," he said, all in a breath.

In this desire the young man did not differ from several score of boys who have visited the office and entered the 100 yard sprint championships which will be held in the Lincoln park lagoon on July 26.

"I'm the champion swimmer of Lawrence county down in Arkansas," Dugger explained. "There's nobody can beat me. Sure, Hoxie isn't so big. About 500 live there, but Walnut Ridge, the county seat, has a thousand people and it's only 'bout a mile away.

Hard Man to Beat.

"I've beat them all. Some of them was as big as you. Where do we swim? Over in Clear lake. Everybody gets together on the Fourth of July and such and we have races. No one has beat me," he reiterated.

"Well, I saw about this swim championship in THE TRIBUNE. So I thought I'd come up here and beat some of these city sheiks. I got about a month before the first cotton pickin'.

"I've got 40 acres of cotton, but we ain't had much luck with cotton lately. You read about the drought last year. Burnt up all my cotton. The year before the boll weevil cleaned it out. We ain't had a good crop for six years."

And as we talked to young Dugger, we learned more about this ambitious youth than who had traveled 900 miles to find competition. It's his first trip outside of the state. Although Memphis, Tenn., is but 90 miles west, he knows that metropolis only by hearsay. Neither has he ever visited Little Rock 100 miles south of Hoxie.

Rests on Record.

Just how fast Dugger can swim, we don't know and neither did he for he never has been timed. He just "never has been beaten" and he rested on that record.

Dugger never went to high school. He started farming to support his grandmother and mother when he was in the sixth grade. For reference, Dugger mentioned his uncle, J. C. Childers, county judge in Lawrence county.

This is no bumming trip, Dugger said. He rode the train and expects to go back the same way after he has won the championship a week from Sunday. In the meantime he's staying at a loop hotel and "spending my time getting lost and swimming."

Entries close for THE TRIBUNE races on July 20. All letters postmarked of that date will be accepted. The entry in the ten races—five for boys and five for girls—now approaches the thousand mark. Each swimmer will receive a merit badge if he finishes the 100 yard test.

The team which scores the most points in the ten events will be awarded a trophy.

JOHNNY LEHMAN WINS FIRST TWO MATCHES EASILY

Portland, Ore., July 15.—(AP)—The defending champion and only middle westerner in the tournament—Johnny Lehman of Chicago—breezed through his two matches in the Western Amateur Golf championship here today. Lehman was four under par for the two rounds without counting the third hole this afternoon where he picked up when he messed up a couple of shots and his opponent was sitting close to the cup. Others advancing to the quarter finals were Harold Thompson and Jack Gaines, Glendale, Cal., Fay Coleman, Los Angeles, Dr. O. F. Willing, Don Moe, Eddie Wilhelm and Malcolm MacLaughton, Portland.

Murphy Wins in Pow Pow with 153 Card

Eddie Murphy, former professional at Ridge Country club, but now a member at Olympia Fields, returned to his old club yesterday to lead the parade home in the annual Ridge Powwow with a 36 hole gross score of 153. Eddie went around the morning 18 holes in 77, and clipped one stroke off that figure in the afternoon. A field of 240, the largest in the history of the Powwow, competed.

C. A. Cahill's score of 138 was the best net card for the day turned in by a guest. Cal Smith of Olympia Fields shot a gross 75 in his morning round, while C. E. Carner of Ridge has the best gross score for members, a 79. W. G. Hunt came home with 87—22—65 for the best low net performance of Ridge members in the matinee round.

The first monthly tournament of the Oak Park Business Men's association was held at St. Andrews yesterday, with S. Stitzer's 84 leading the gross scorers. E. I. Wood and Frank Pebbles were next with 87s. R. E. Nicholas, H. G. Gardner and Dr. A. W. Campbell were the blind bogey victors. Low net leaders included P. Metzger, 105—41—64; E. L. Thomas, 97—32—65; Larry Horton, 107—40—67; S. Rosenfelt, 101—32—69; George Bennett, 127—58—69, and H. Feldman, 93—24—69. The day's consolation prize went to N. Daveby, who shot a 71—72—144. The winning low gross foursome included Wilmer Snow, R. E. Nicholas, R. E. Grabble and Frank Pebbles, who had a total of 374. Arthur Jacobs was adjudged the best dressed golfer, while Merrill Potter was awarded a prize for having talked the best game of the day.

The Tri-Parks Business Men's association chose a hot day to shoot its tournament but a goodly number went 18 holes at Cherry Hill. H. L. Middleton led the low net section with 95—33—62. Other low net scores: H. J. Phillips, 92—26—66; C. F. Fisher, 96—26—70; K. E. Webster, 97—25—72; R. L. Felton, 94—22—72; Bud Barbee, 94—22—72; H. A. Wood, 99—27—72, and R. L. Martinson, 89—17—72. St. Louis, Mo., July 15.—(AP)—Watson Clark won his seventh straight game today, pitching the Brooklyn Robins to 10 to 3 victory over the league leading St. Louis Cardinals.

Cincinnati, O., July 15.—(AP)—John Ogden, who has been pitching fine games but losing them because his team mates failed to hit, finally got the breaks today, defeating Ed Brandt, Braves' star southpaw, 1 to 0, in a mound battle. Ogden was touched for five hits to Brandt's four. The lone run came when Cuilop's fly to Worthington scored Heathcote, who had tripled.

In the ninth Maranville singled, went to second on a wild pitch, but the tying run was wiped out when Stripp pulled the hidden ball trick on the Rabbit. Score:

Santa Paula Poloists Beat Old Aiken, 11-8; Even Series

the side lines. Rathborne sent the ball spinning toward the goal, but it went over the line. Andrada took it away from Smith, but after a long run missed goal. Then Harrington got the ball and shot a goal. The play was fast for the next few minutes, José Reynal taking the ball for a long run and Rathborne saving the goal.

Smith Scores for Old Aiken.

Rathborne hit it out to Gerry to open the third chukker and Gerry had a long run along down the field, but failed to score. Then José Reynal took the ball down the field and passed it to Juan Reynal, who scored. Harrington and Rathborne were having a tight fight racing their horses head to head. Mills sent the ball to Smith, who scored for Old Aiken, making the score 4 to 2 in favor of Santa Paula.

Heat Bothers Horses.

The horses appeared to be feeling the sun more and more as the game progressed into the fourth chukker. Harrington picked the ball from the sideline, but Rathborne made a sensational save. A few seconds later Andrada turned the ball just as Mills appeared certain to score. Andrada placed the ball for Harrington but Harrington could not get his pony on it in time to score. After the ball seesawed up and down the field three times the Reynal brothers got the ball between them and José Reynal scored. Gerry made a difficult shot through the goal from the deep north west side after Rathborne had brought the ball down the field, leaving the score 5 to 3 in favor of Santa Paula.

Smith was hitting accurately during the first half and in the last two periods Gerry managed to keep up with Andrada in the up and down the field races. Mills was having a tough time with Jose Reynal, and Juan Reynal and Smith were playing furiously.

Scores in First Minute.

Smith scored in the first minute of the fifth chukker on a long run down the field. Juan Reynal scored on a quick run after taking the ball from Smith. Smith rode across Juan Reynal and a foul was called, Andrada shooting a goal on the free shot, with Old Aiken being held behind the goal posts until the ball was hit. The score then was 7 to 4 in favor of Santa Paula.

The Old Aiken goal post went down as Gerry and Andrada crashed into it fighting over the ball in the sixth chukker. There was no score. Rathborne rode across Harrington and the umpire called a foul. Andrada missed from 50 yards. Andrada scored after a long drive and after Mills had failed to turn the ball. A foul was called on Santa Paula. Rathborne made the goal on a free try from the 40 yard line, putting the score at Santa Paula, 8; Old Aiken, 5. The heat was telling on the horses and men and slowed down the game.

Gerry Opens Seventh with Goal.

After a long ride by Rathborne he shot the ball to Gerry who scored early in the seventh chukker. Juan Reynal stopped a ball with his shoulder, but was not hurt. Andrada took the ball down the field and Harrington, outriding Mills on a fresh mount, scored. Andrada took the ball away from Rathborne and rode through the Old Aiken team for a goal. The last minute of the period was furiously fought, but the score remained at 10 to 6 in favor of Santa Paula.

A foul was called on Andrada for crossing Mills, Rathborne made the shot at goal and Gerry helped it across, getting credit for the goal. Smith and Andrada both missed chances out in front of their opponents. Harrington was on La Mascota and was riding like a house afire. Gerry scored after the ball was played in on safety. Rathborne assisted in making the goal possible. Jose Reynal scored for Argentina just as the bell rang.

LUCKITE WINS STEEPLECHASE AT ARLINGTON

Indigo, Coupled with Him, Finishes Second.

Mrs. FI FI Widener Holden of Philadelphia and her father, Joseph E. Widener, vice chairman of the Jockey club in New York and international sportsman, carried away nearly all the glory and the gold that went with the North Shore Steeplechase at Arlington Park yesterday.

The race, carrying a gross value of $6,700, was won by Mrs. Holden's chaser Luckite, a son of Stephan the Great-Lusk Stone which was ridden by A. Bauman. Charging home second with a terrific rush which carried him past nearly every horse in the field came Indigo, which carried Mr. Widener's scarlet and white jacket. He beat Inception, owned by Rigan McKinney of Cleveland, by a neck for the place money.

Entry Pays $5.40.

Luckite and Indigo, both trained by Tom Donohue, ran coupled as an entry and had been made the odds on favorites at post time. In the mutuels the entry paid $5.40 to win, $3.42 to place, and $2.92 to show. Inception, coupled with Canterbury, which finished fifth paid $8.56 to show.

But for a faulty landing on the next to the last jump Inception no doubt would have won. He lost a half dozen lengths while recovering, but came with a renewed rally in the last half furlong which all but carried him to victory. But for the bad landing he might have been a handy winner, although Indigo came in the late stages as if he could have beaten most any mount's horse if urged a bit harder.

It was the most thrilling steeplechase run at Arlington since the cross country sport was introduced in Chicago. The field ran closely gathered all the way and only one of the seven which strived for the prize failed to finish. The Fox Chapel stable's Liberty refused to make the tenth jump and was eliminated.

Stands Off Challenges.

Luckite went to the front after the first turn of the field had been completed. But that didn't end his day's work. Canterbury and Gracie were challenging desperately. Inception was jumping better than at any time in his career and he was running on the flat a little bit better than any of the others.

But as the challenges came one after another Luckite gamely clung to his lead and after Inception had faltered at the twelfth jump he traveled home safely under hard urging. Indigo's race was the more brilliant, for he came very rapidly after clearing the last fence, closed a tremendous gap and likely could have won if his rider had not eased him up to allow his running companion to take command. They ran the two miles in four minutes and the course was not at its best because of the early morning rain.

Paul Bunyan Beats Silverdale.

It was the most stylish midweek program of the season at Arlington, and the Wyoming handicap at a mile brought a thriller when Paul Bunyan, from L. M. Severson's Chisago stable, got up in the last strides to beat Silverdale, which had won the inaugural handicap of the Arlington season.

Silverdale looked unbeatable as he slipped down the back stretch four lengths in front. Bunyan was running fourth at that stage, but gradually improved his position until only Silverdale was between him and victory. He wore down Silverdale gradually in the stretch and finally got the decision by half a length after running the mile in 1:39 1-5. Spinach, showing his best effort of the season, was going fast at the end and got third money.

Chicago Cricket Club Wins 2d Game in Canada

LONDON, Ont., July 15.—[Special.]—The Chicago Cricket club won its second successive victory today when it defeated London and District, 71 runs to 61. Rain made playing conditions difficult, which accounts for the small scoring. Tomorrow the Chicagoans move to Hamilton, where the third game of the four will be played.

TRADE HOLDS OWN IN JUNE, INSTITUTE SAYS

And Electric Output Shows Upturn.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Here and there, and despite irregularities and cross currents, various factors point to better things ahead for American business. Yesterday brought the encouraging news that industrial production last week for the first time this year showed a gain over the corresponding period last year, according to the National Electric Light association.

The output amounted to nearly 1 2-3 billion kilowatt hours, which was about 1 per cent larger than a year ago. It also was larger than the preceding week, but this was largely because the previous week contained the Independence day holiday. The Atlantic seaboard region reported an increase of 4.6 per cent over a year ago and Pacific coast territory made a gain of 2.6 per cent. On the other hand, the central industrial region showed a decrease of 8.2 per cent and output in the Chicago district receded 1 per cent.

Index Is Unchanged.

Contrary to general expectations, business activity did not decline in June but held its own, according to the American Institute of Finance. Its index remained unchanged from May. Trade activity last month increased in greater than seasonal proportions, offsetting a further decline in production. Thus, there was in June a further drawing down of stocks of goods on hand.

Reference to the institute's index shows that during the last thirty years low levels of various periods of business depression and recession came in the summer months. The low of the 1904 depression was in August, of the 1907-'08 depression in June, of the 1911 recession in July, of the 1920-'21 depression in June, of the 1924 recession in July.

Business defaults this week, as reported to Bradstreet's, have fallen off perceptibly. The total for the week aggregates 361, which is 23.5 per cent below the previous week and 14.6 per cent less than the like week of 1930.

Retailers again furnish the bulk of bankruptcies, being 67.5 per cent of the total number, while the manufacturing group is second with forty-six, or 12.7 per cent of the total. Commercial service defaults number thirty-nine and wholesalers twenty-three, these being 10.8 and 6.3 per cent respectively of the total. In the banking group there were ten suspensions, which constituted only 2.8 per cent of the number failing this week.

Little Change in Steel.

The situation of the steel industry has changed little in the last week, according to the midweek reviews, which state production between 32 and 33 per cent of capacity, or not much changed from a week ago.

"Widespread industrial shutdowns for vacations and inventories, together with the generally poor business conditions in most steel consuming lines, have further restricted steel buying and plant operations," the Iron Age says. "Slight curtailment is likely before the end of the month. Present activity is only a little above the low point of last December.

"Operations have gained a trifle in the Chicago district. Elsewhere pig iron and steel production is off from last week, or barely maintaining the recent rate. Notwithstanding belief that resumption of manufacturing by many steel consumers in August will bring a moderate improvement in replacement buying, there is no evidence yet of a definite turn upward in requirements. Some large tonnages, particularly for building construction, are exchanging the market, but there is a disposition to await more favorable conditions in the general situation before making awards.

GERMAN 6 MONTH TRADE BALANCE IS $204,500,000

BERLIN, July 15.—(AP)—Germany's trade balance for the first six months of this year was 818,000,000 marks (roughly $204,500,000).

Official trade figures made public today showed imports of 3,700,000,000 marks [$925,000,000]; exports, 4,518,000,000 [$1,129,500,000], exclusive of reparations in kind which amounted to 300,000,000 marks [$32,500,000] in the month of June alone.

The reichsbank exported 567,000,000 marks in gold [$141,750,000], of which 367,500,000 went to France, $19,000,000 to Holland, $18,500,000 to Belgium, and $9,500,000 to Switzerland.

John Burnham & Co. Moves Offices and Reduces Staff

John Burnham & Co., dealers in securities, announced yesterday that its present offices in the State Bank building, La Salle and Monroe streets, will be vacated. The business will be conducted in smaller quarters in the same building and with substantially reduced forces. Bank loans formerly held by the Foreman-State banks and taken over by the First National bank group have been liquidated. Before the collapse of the stock market in 1929, stocks sponsored by the Burnham group were heavily traded on the Chicago stock exchange.

Frank McClure, head of the Chicago office of Albert Frank & Co., has resigned to become a vice president and principal in Carroll Dean Murphy, Inc., general advertising agency, it was announced yesterday. He was for five years head of the advertising council of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and for nine years chairman of the National Advertising commission.

Railroads Present Arguments in Request for Higher Rates

Washington, D. C., July 15.—In sweltering heat and in a hearing room packed with coatless litigants, the railroads and rail security owners today began the submission of evidence before the interstate commerce commission in support of the railroads' petition for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates and charges.

R. H. AISHTON. [Russell Photo.]

A statistical story of the financial plight of the railroads by Dr. Julius H. Parmlee, director of the bureau of railway economics; an appeal for improved credit that the railroads might continue giving the people efficient service by Richard H. Aishton, president of the American Railway association and threatened withdrawal of insurance companies and savings banks from the field of railroad investors because of the impaired credit of the railroads, voiced by Edward D. Duffield, president of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, speaking as chairman of a committee representing life insurance companies and savings banks, were placed before the commission during the day.

"Despite the most rigorous economy and the greatest operating efficiency on record, the American railroads have not been able to make a fair living during the last decade and their future ability to serve the public adequately is seriously threatened unless additional income is forthcoming," is the epitomization of the railroads' position.

Spend Nearly 7 Billion.

In the period from 1922 to 1930, Dr. Parmelee testified, the railroads operated with increasing efficiency, expending nearly seven billion dollars on their properties for additions and betterments, which he said contributed greatly to the increased efficiency of operation, aiding in reducing substantially railway operating expenses for each traffic unit carried. Declining revenue a ton mile, he added, and the sharp drop in traffic had brought a reduction in revenue greater than the savings due to increased efficiency and economy of operation.

Had the railroads been permitted to have a return of 5¾ per cent, the fair return prescribed by the commission in 1922, in the ten years 1921 to 1930, they would have had net earnings in the amount of $2,574,877,000 greater than they had had, asserted Dr. Parmelee.

Reductions in rates since 1921, he asserted, had reduced the carriers' freight revenue more than $6,500,000,000. In 1929, he said, the year of record net earnings, the railroads as a whole covered their fixed charges only 2.28 times. This ratio, he said, dropped to 1.76 times fixed charges in 1930, and, in 1931, the forecast now indicated that it would be less than 1.27 times fixed charges.

The witness pointed out the significance of this testimony by stating that the laws of the state of New York, with respect to the conditions to be met by railway bonds before they may become eligible for savings banks and trust investments in that state, require that the issuing railway must earn one and one-half times fixed charges, in at least five of the next six preceding fiscal years, and in the last fiscal year next preceding such investment.

"If net railway operating income for 1931 declines at the same rate as during the first four months of the year," Dr. Parmelee said, "and if the other factors of the income account remain the same in 1931 as in 1930, fixed charges for 1931 will be earned only 1.27 times."

Citing increased taxation as a heavy burden, Dr. Parmelee said the ratio of taxes to total operating revenues increased from 5 cents to the dollar of revenue in 1921 to 6.6 cents in 1930. Had the tax ratio in 1930 been 5 cents, the carriers' net income would have been larger than it was by $84,500,000, he said. For the first four months of this year, he added, taxes consumed 7.58 cents out of each dollar of railway gross revenues. He said more than a third of the carriers' net operating revenue was being absorbed by taxes in 1931.

Face Heavy Burden.

The railroads face the heavy burden, according to the testimony, of meeting more than one billion three hundred million dollars of bond and equipment trust maturities in the next five years.

The decline in rate of return on property investment of the carriers was recorded by Dr. Parmelee, who said it was 4.95 per cent in 1926, the peak rate of return since the war; 4.81 per cent in 1929, and 3.27 per cent in 1930. It dropped to a new low level of 2.07 per cent on an annual basis in the first four months of this year, he said.

Mr. Aishton declared it was in the best interests of the people as a whole to keep the railroads in a position where their credit was sound and where required capital was available and that the concern of the railroads now was their ability to continue the fast and dependable service that the country now enjoyed. His evidence covered the adequacy of rail service and the efficiency and economy of rail operation.

Paints Rail Importance.

"I do not think it is possible," he asserted, "to overestimate the importance to the nation as a whole of maintaining railroad credit at a point which will permit a continuation of the capital expenditures, which are not only that the railroads may provide at all times a machine adequate in every respect to the transportation demands of the country, but also that their business may be conducted at the lowest possible operating cost."

Mr. Aishton said the reduction in operating expenses in 1930 as compared with 1920 amounted to $1,896,662,459.

The railroads amended their application by restricting the exceptions, to preserve differentials, to coal and coke. On lake cargo coal, Mr. Kern said, a flat increase of 26 cents a ton to Lake Erie ports and 27 cents to Lake Ontario ports, was proposed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 15.—The drastic decline in German bonds, as a group, today on the stock exchange, quite eclipsed the declines of the two previous days, and precipitated a general decline in all foreign bonds. Only a comparatively few foreign loans escaped losses. French government bonds formed the strongest spot in the entire foreign list.

The losses for the day in the active German issues ranged from a point to 21 points. The major losses were due to the fact that bids were practically nonexistent rather than to any general dumping of bonds on the market. As a matter of fact, the maximum decline of 21 points was made by Electric Power Corporation of Germany 6½s of 1950 on a single transaction. The corporation's 6½s of 1953 were down 20½ points on a turnover of a handful of bonds.

Trading in foreign bonds on the stock exchange yesterday reached $5,454,500, the heaviest day's business since Oct. 29, 1929 at the time of the break in the stock market. Sales on that day aggregated $5,857,000. Total transactions in listed bonds, domestic and foreign, reached $13,541,500 today, the heaviest since June 2, last. Domestic bonds were substantially lower, on the average.

Mitchell Explains What Texas Gas Means to City

BY SCRUTATOR.

This fall natural gas will be distributed in Chicago in mixture with manufactured gas. The thousand mile pipe line through which it will flow from Texas wells to Chicago mains is almost completed.

G. F. MITCHELL. [Moffett Photo.]

Nothing like this project has been attempted before. There are other pipe line projects of considerable proportions up to 400 or 450 miles long passing through or near other gas fields and operating at pressures up to 400 pounds.

But the Texas-Chicago line surpasses any that have been constructed to date. It is practically 1,000 miles long and is built to operate at 600 pounds pressure with the assistance of at least ten compressor or booster pumping stations en route.

The cash investment in the pipe line for transporting the gas, and in the necessary adjuncts to it—gathering lines, reserve supply acreage, etc. —will be in excess of $75,000,000.

What It Will Mean.

What will the introduction of Texas natural gas into Chicago mains mean to users here?

The writer put this question to Mr. George F. Mitchell, president of Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, which will take the natural gas from the pipe line, mix it with the local manufactured product and distribute the combination through its mains.

Briefly, his answer is this: that the pipe line is an experiment, and that the rate charged will depend directly on the volume of demand.

"Even with manufactured gas," says Mr. Mitchell, "the cost of the gas itself—the production cost—is only a minor factor in the sum of costs that must be covered by consumer rates.

"In Chicago last year, this production cost, that is, the cost of all gas put into the holders and prior to distribution—was less than one-third of the final delivered cost."

Must Absorb Charges.

He emphasizes the point that the charges on the $75,000,000 investment in the pipe line must come out of what the Peoples Gas and other companies will pay for the gas. Gas out of a well in Texas is cheap, he says, but by the time it gets to Chicago it must absorb fixed charges on a heavy investment.

"When only a comparatively small amount of gas is carried by the pipe line," says Mr. Mitchell, "these charges make the cost of it at Chicago prohibitive.

"On the basis of the Peoples Gas company's output in 1930, the amount of Texas natural gas that could have been utilized would have cost at Chicago a fraction more than the manufactured gas which it would have displaced. The company's operating expenses would have been slightly increased instead of reduced.

"It is, therefore, evident that the present market for gas here is not yet large enough to justify an immediate general reduction of consumer rates on account of natural gas utilization.

How Consumer Can Gain.

"But if the present demand for gas can be increased, so that the pipe line can be made to work nearer to its capacity, then the fixed charges per unit of gas transported [whether measured in therms or cubic feet] will be correspondingly less and can be given advantageous effect in consumer rates.

"Even then, the direct effect upon consumer rates can be only the difference between the cost of the 'natural' at Chicago and the cost of producing that part of the manufactured gas supply which the natural displaces."

Mr. Mitchell estimates that the use of gas in Chicago must be more than doubled within the next few years to make natural gas utilization here economical from a practical standpoint.

Development and realization of the potential economies, therefore, will take time and effort. There must be much research and promotional effort to develop the new uses and the increased amount of use that are necessary to attain the required volume.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 15.—Concern over the German financial crisis was still the dominating influence in operations on the New York Stock exchange today. Prices opened lower and on a moderate volume of trading continued to decline until losses of 1 to 5 points were shown by leading issues. Some of the more excitable descriptions gave up as much as 6 or 8 points.

The trend reflected cautious selling and timidity in support rather than any aggressive pressure by bear traders—a fact shown eloquently by the small volume, only about 2,600,000 shares. All groups were affected, however, and with the exception of an unconvincing little rally which developed in the last hour the drift was steadily toward lower levels.

On the face of the final tables the market has lost the bulk of the gains it ran up so flamboyantly following the announcement of President Hoover's plan for an international debt moratorium, and the reversal is said to have cost some professionals who thought they could see a real prosperity boom ahead and who launched —many of them—newly born syndicates to help the good thing along, a pretty penny for their pains. More than one of them has been heard to remark here of late that he wished he had shown less patriotism and more financial sense about it.

News a Trifle Better.

The news from abroad was a trifle more reassuring, telling as it did of a disposition at Paris to lend some real, honest to goodness aid in the situation and of emergency "self help" measures being taken by Germany herself to stave off the threatened crash. However, the skies over there are still far from clear and the Wall street view is that much can happen before the various plans in the making are ready to be set clicking. Nor was the day's domestic news exactly calculated to stir up any wild enthusiasm for whatever might remain of the bull cause.

United States Steel operations yielded another 1 per cent during the week, according to the midweek statistics, forcing them back to a 33 per cent level, which closely approaches the minimum reached in the latter part of December. Also the

FOREIGN EXCHANGE IS DISRUPTED DUE TO GERMAN CRISIS

New York, July 15.—(AP)—World financial markets were acutely unsettled and foreign exchange trading partly disrupted as Germany took drastic measures to deal with her banking crisis today.

A sharp decline in the British pound sterling brought it to the lowest level since the return to the gold standard six years ago. The German mark was quoted nominally, occasionally dipping under 21 cents. Leading banks abandoned quoting several of the central and southern European currencies, including the Austrian schilling, the Polish sloty, the Rumanian leu, the Czecho-Slovakian crown, the Jugo-Slavian dinar, and the Greek drachma.

Sterling dropped to a low of $4.83 13-16 for cables, thereafter recovering to $4.84¼, for a net loss of 1⅝ cents, and 2¼ cents under its gold parity with the dollar. The French franc, on the other hand, pushed up to 3.94 cents, compared to parity of 3.91⅜.

These rates made it profitable to ship gold from London to New York or Paris, and it was reported a movement to Paris had started. The franc, furthermore, was high enough to make it profitable to take gold from New York. While there were no actual exports, the amount of gold held by the New York federal reserve for foreign banks was increased by $10,000,000. It was not known whether that increase was for French account. At any rate, such an increase is equivalent to an export.

It was explained in well informed banking circles that the strength of the American dollar and the French franc against other currencies reflected a widespread effort to convert funds into these currencies, which are best protected by gold. The United States now holds about half the world's monetary gold supply, and France about a fifth.

Selected Shares Sales Rise 191 Per Cent in Last 6 Mos.

Selected Shares corporation, sponsor of Selected American Shares and Selected Income Shares, showed an increase of 191 per cent in sales during the first half of 1931, compared with the corresponding period of last year, according to an announcement made yesterday by Max Adler, chairman of the board.

In dollar volume this amounted to 141 per cent of sales made in the first six months of 1930, Mr. Adler stated. He added that the dollar volume of sales in June, 1931, exceeded that of May and that July is running ahead of June, despite industrial readjustments throughout the country and general inactivity on major stock exchanges.

$40,000,000 PIPE LINE IS FINISHED TO MISSISSIPPI

New York, July 15.—(AP)—A $40,000,000 pipe line, by which natural gas is eventually to be brought from the Texas panhandle 1,000 miles north and east to Indianapolis had been completed today as far as the eastern shore of the Mississippi river at Louisiana, Mo., New York engineers in charge of the construction announced.

The line crosses the Mississippi on the Champ Clark Memorial bridge and is the first pipe line ever brought across the river above the water line. Gas in the pipe extending across the Mississippi was turned on today.

Announce New Line.

Kansas City, July 15.—(AP)—Plans for extending the gasoline pipe line of the Great Lakes Pipe Line company to Omaha, Neb., and Council Bluffs, Ia., were announced at headquarters of the company here today. The company last Saturday filed application with the railroad commission for Iowa for a permit to build a four inch line from Council Bluffs to tap the trunk line which carries gasoline from Oklahoma refineries to Kansas City, Des Moines, Chicago, and St. Louis.

Copper Available at 7¾c; Export Price Unchanged

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Copper is still available in the domestic market at 7¾ cents a pound, delivered, from custom smelters, although at least one custom smelter is out of the market. Producers continue to hold their metal at 8 cents, but nearby deliveries from speculative sources are obtainable at 7¾ cents a pound. Export copper held unchanged on a parity with 8 cent domestic copper.

Bush, vice president of the Diamond T Motor Car company in charge of sales. He adds that this gain is expected to be the first of a series of further increases throughout the remainder of the year.

"We take our June gain to be a favorable sign, indicating an upward trend in business, and I believe that the last six months of this year should be at least 50 per cent better than the first six months," states Mr. Bush.

ARMOUR TAKES STEP IN CONSENT DECREE OF 1920

Washington, D. C., July 15.—(AP)—The justice department today announced the approval of plans for the sale by Armour & Co. of Illinois of all public stock yard market facilities still held by the company or its subsidiaries. An order was signed yesterday by Justice Jennings Bailey of the District of Columbia Supreme court, the department said, giving approval of the plan of sale.

The department characterized the action as "an important step toward the final execution of the packers' consent decree of 1920." Under the plan the purchasers of the Armour holdings are to be the Stanmour corporation, the Armforth corporation, and the Valmay corporation, all of which are owned within the Armour family. It was said by the department, however, that none of the owners holds any substantial voting interest in the Armour packing business.

Murray Says Short Sales Below Normal in Chicago

President James C. Murray of the Chicago Board of Trade said in a statement issued yesterday that the amount of short selling on the Chicago board was below normal, and had been below normal for the last few months. The statement followed a detailed investigation launched after President Hoover's recent criticism of alleged excessive short selling in commodities by a few unnamed traders. Absence of normal buying, Mr. Murray said, had influenced price declines. He expressed hope for an early return of better price level.

Sears Catalog Shows Price Cuts of 10 to 30 Per Cent

TRADING PERKS UP IN CHICAGO STOCK MARKET

But Prices Again Finish on the Downgrade.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Business moved at a slightly faster pace as offerings increased in volume on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The weakness in the pivotals in New York brought out some real liquidation but most of the selling came from professional traders who evened up commitments before the day ended and reduced the losses to negligible proportions.

Final quotations on the great majority of stocks here were less than a point away from the previous closing prices although earlier prices in some cases represented losses of 2 points or so.

More Encouraging News.

The increase in liquidation yesterday could not be traced to any significant development in the foreign situation which is generally regarded paramount influence on the market at the present time. The late dispatches from Paris intimating that France may be willing to extend credit to Germany without political strings was more encouraging that the news received during the two previous days when the market remained comparatively calm.

Commonwealth Edison, which for several weeks has been one of the few shares selling above 200, slipped below that mark yesterday and was quoted as low as 197. The issue was selling ex dividend and the final price of 198 represented a net loss of only 2 points. Other Insull stocks, quoted ex dividend, were moderately lower on final transactions.

In other sections of the list the price changes were nominal among the active shares, but in the case of a few stocks infrequently dealt in the net losses amounted to as much as 2 and 3 points. The day trading accounted for a turnover of 100,000 shares.

Store Corp. Cuts Dividend.

The Twelfth Street Store corporation yesterday notified the exchange of the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the preference "A" stock. Previously the stock has paid 50 cents quarterly. The dividend on the issue is cumulative at the rate of 50 cents quarterly. The action of the corporation's directors was attributed to the prevailing business conditions.

The Associates Investment company, an automobile finance concern whose shares are traded in on the exchange, yesterday reported that business purchased during the first half of 1931 amounted to $19,142,191, which was a gain of $646,021 over the same period of 1930. Transactions handled in the six months' period increased by more than 6,564 over last year. Earnings, it was reported, amounted to $437,028 for the period, as compared with $428,699 in the first six months last year.

PROFESSIONALS RUN THE COTTON MARKETS

Cotton markets were easier yesterday, with trading largely professional. A moderate amount of trade buying was visible at times, but the market lacked the animation that has been so pronounced of late. Prices moved with a fair range and closed with losses of 60@10 points in Chicago and 70@7 points in other markets. Spots were off 8 points to 9.03c in New York and Galveston, and 9.35c in New Orleans and Memphis.

The weekly weather government crop report said temperatures were above normal. Beneficial rains in the east and much of the western areas. Stock and grain prices were lower early and had a depressing influence, but the general disposition of the trade was to go slow. Exports are better than last year. Prices follow:

ALL TIME RECORD LOW FOR JULY WHEAT IS MADE

Price Recovers, However, at Market Close.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

An all time record low level for wheat futures was established on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday when the July dropped to 50¾c, the lowest figure at which any delivery has sold since its organization in 1848 and ¼c below the old record of 50¾c established on July 26, 1894. The nearby month was the only one to break into record low ground, however, as the September at the inside was 51¾c, or ¾c above the 1894 record, although it was at a new low for the season.

The dip in the wheat market was due largely to hedging pressure and sympathy with corn and the New York stock market and followed an early upturn of around ¾c, but a strong rally came in the last few minutes of trading, which rushed all futures up 1¼@1¾c from the bottom, with the close at the top, with net gains of ⅝@1¾c from the bottom, with the close at the top, with net gains of ⅝@1¾c from the bottom, July being 51¾c, September 52¾@52¾c, and December 57¼@57¼c.

Fear Russian Crop Damage.

The upturn in wheat futures yesterday was the first time they have closed higher than the previous day since July 7 on the nearby month and the first time in ten days on the deferred month.

London cables reporting that three weeks of hot and dry weather in Russia would probably reduce the size of the crops to around that of last year and unless conditions become more favorable the yield of wheat would be well below that of 1930 attracted some attention from the trade and led to some buying, but there was also a change in sentiment apparent in some quarters, with the belief that prices had declined to a level where almost everything bearish was discounted and any change in conditions would have to be for the better.

There is one factor in the domestic wheat situation that is causing considerable comment and may prove ultimately to be the salvation of the American farmer, according to those who have made a thorough analysis of conditions.

It is figured that there is a total available supply of wheat for the 1931-32 season in the United States of 1,169,000,000 bu, or somewhat less than two years' normal requirements. Cash wheat was quoted as low as 13c per bu in eastern Colorado yesterday, and should farmers cut their winter wheat acreage 50 per cent or more for the 1932 crop it is figured that they would receive at least $1 per bu for the same grain without going to the expense of planting or harvesting next year.

Chicago was the only market where wheat prices dropped to a new low yesterday, as Kansas City rallied to get as low as on Monday and Winnipeg closed ¼@⅝c higher, with the July at 56⅝c. Owing to the sharp break in sterling exchange Liverpool July wheat came within a small fraction of a cent of selling at a new record low, the actual price being somewhat under 56c per bu for the future. There was only a small business in North American wheat yesterday, with sales of around 500,000 bu, including 200,000 bu Manitobas.

July Corn Congested.

Gyrations in July corn kept the trade on edge yesterday, the price advancing 3c early to 69¼c, with comparatively little buying necessary to make the advance, but the bulge brought in profit taking and a reaction to around yesterday's finish. In the last few minutes of trading there was buying attributed to a leading local professional which found little for sale and the price was quickly advanced around 2c, with the finish well toward the top, with a net gain of 1½c, final sales being at 69¼@69¾c.

Deferred deliveries of corn were unsettled, but advanced sharply toward the last on short covering and in sympathy with the July, and on hot and dry weather reports from the west and closed at the top with September 51⅞@52c and December 46@46¼c, gaining 1¼c for the day. Sales of 250,000 bu were made to go to store, while 135,000 bu were booked to arrive from the country.

A return of hot and dry weather in the west has resulted in a fear of damage to the new oats crop, and with the strength in corn the close was ⅝@¾c higher, with July 25¾c, September 26¼c, and December 28⅛@28c. Thrashing returns from Iowa show a wide difference in yields. Rye was dull but slightly firmer with wheat and closed ¼@¾c higher, July being 32⅛c, September 35¾c, and December 39¾c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Declining prices in grain have reached a level where traders are beginning to look around for constructive influences and are more nervous about selling short. This was illustrated late on Wednesday when prices advanced sharply on a report of damage to the Russian wheat crop. There is less disposition to press the selling side on breaks. Hedging pressure continues to be the most important factor and there is a belief that the peak of the southwestern marketing movement is near at hand and a few advance the theory that it will be by the end of this week. The trade is so sensitive that any rumor of a bullish character is readily accepted and has its influence on prices. It is said also that should foreign markets and the financial situation show pronounced improvement it would be immediately reflected in American and Canadian markets.

There appears to have been several sized holdings of July corn, in addition to the one large one credited to Thomas Howell. The holding was unloaded yesterday, causing a break of nearly 2c, but the quick support at the critical moment turned prices up 2c. Open interest in July corn is about 3,000,000 bu. Cash interests are taking advantage of the premium on July corn over September of around 9c to sell as much corn to go to store as possible.
